Be it enacted, etc., That in special recognition of the high public service rendered and disabilities contracted in the interest of humanity and science as voluntary subjects for the experimentations during the yellow-fever investigations in Cuba, the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to publish annually in the Army Register a roll of honor on which shall be carried the following names: Walter Reed, James Carroll, Jesse W. Lazear, Aristides Agramonte, James A. Andrus, John R. Bullard, A. W. Covington, William H. Dean, Wallace W. Forbes, Levi E. Folk, Paul Hamann, James F. Hanberry, Warren G. Jernegan, John R. Kissinger, John J. Moran, William Olsen, Charles G. Sonntag, Clyde L. West, Dr. R. P. Cooke, Thomas M. England, James Hildebrand, and Edward Weatherwalks, and to define in appropriate language the part which each of these persons played in the experimentations during the yellow-fever investigations in Cuba; and in further recognition of the high public service so rendered by the persons hereinbefore named, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to cause to be struck for each of said persons a gold medal with suitable emblems, devices, and inscriptions, to be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, and to present the same to each of said persons as shall be living and posthumously to such representatives of each of such persons as shall have died, as shall be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury. For this purpose there is hereby authorized to be appropriated the sum of $5,000; and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such amounts annually as may be necessary in order to pay to the following-named persons during the remainder of their natural lives the sum of $125 per month, and such amount shall be in lieu of any and all pensions authorized by law for the following-named persons: Pvt. Paul Hamann; Pvt. John R. Kissinger; Pvt. William Olsen, Hospital Corps; Pvt. Charles G. Sonntag, Hospital Corps; Pvt. Clyde L. West, Hospital Corps; Pvt. James Hildebrand, Hospital Corps; Pvt. James A. Andrus, Hospital Corps; Mr. John R. Bullard; Dr. Aristides Agramonte; Pvt. A. W. Covington, Twenty-third Battery, Coast Artillery Corps; Pvt. Wallace W. Forbes, Hospital Corps; Pvt. Levi E. Folk, Hospital Corps; Pvt. James F. Hanberry, Hospital Corps; Dr. R. P. Cooke; Pvt. Thomas M. England; Mr. John J. Moran; and the widow of Pvt. Edward Weatherwalks.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time and passed.

ALLEGHENY RIVER SEWER OUTLET, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, from the Committee on Commerce I report back favorably without amendment the bill (S. 5746) to legalize the sewer outlet in the Allegheny River at Thirty-second Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., and I call it to the attention of the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. REED].

Mr. REED of Pennsylvania. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill. It will not lead to any discussion. It is to legalize an existing sewer opening built in the city of Pittsburgh to take the place of one that had fallen in. The city officials did not realize that it required the consent of the Chief of Engineers. They went ahead and built it and are now told that it requires the consent of Congress.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The bill is approved by the War Department?

Mr. REED of Pennsylvania. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sewer outlet constructed in the Allegheny River at Thirty-second Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., by the city of Pittsburgh, be, and the same is hereby, legalized to the same extent and with like effect as to all existing or future laws and regulations of the United States as if the permit required by the existing laws of the United States in such cases made and provided had been regularly obtained prior to the construction of said sewer outlet.

SEC. 2. That any changes in said sewer outlet which the Secretary of War may deem necessary and order in the interest of navigation shall be promptly made by the owner thereof.

SEC. 3. That the right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

KANKAKEE RIVER DAM, MOMENCE, ILL.

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, from the Committee on Commerce I report back favorably without amendment the bill (H. R. 13831) granting the consent of Congress to the Momence conservancy district, its successors, and assigns, to construct, maintain, repair, and improve a dam across the Kankakee River at Momence, in Kankakee County, Ill. I call the attention of the Senator from Illinois [Mr. GLENN] to the bill.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I request immediate consideration of the bill.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from Illinois if this is the bill which in the second section thereof provides for recapture of the dam in certain contingencies?

Mr. GLENN. I understand that the second section provides for recapture by the Government in case there is any necessity for it.

Mr. JOHNSON. The bill provides for a recapture privilege. If the Senator from Illinois is satisfied with that provision, I have no objection. I simply wanted to call his attention to it.

Mr. GLENN. I have discussed it with the Senator from Washington. There is practically no power available there, I understand.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress be, and is hereby, granted to the Momence conservancy district, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, repair, and improve a dam across the Kankakee River at Momence, in Kankakee County, Ill.: Provided, That work shall not be commenced until the plans therefor have been submitted to and approved by the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, and by the Secretary of War: Provided further, That in approving the plans for said dam such conditions and stipulations may be imposed as the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War may deem necessary to protect the present and future interests of the United States: And provided further, That this act shall not be construed to authorize the use of such dam to develop water power or generate hydroelectric energy.

SEC. 2. The authority granted by this act shall cease and be null and void unless the actual construction of the dam hereby authorized is commenced within one year and completed within three years from the date of approval of this act: Provided, That from and after 30 days' notice from the Federal Power Commission, or other authorized agency of the United States, to said Momence conservancy district, or its successors and assigns, that desirable water-power development will be interfered with by the existence of said dam, the authority hereby granted to construct, maintain, repair, and improve said dam shall terminate and be at an end; and any grantee or licensee of the United States proposing to develop a power project at or near said dam shall have authority to remove, submerge, or utilize said dam under such conditions as said commission or other agency may determine, but such conditions shall not include compensation for the removal, submergence, or utilization of said dam.

SEC. 3. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PROPOSED NICARAGUAN CANAL

The Senate resumed the consideration of the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 117) authorizing an investigation and survey for a Nicaraguan canal.

Mr. McMASTER. Mr. President, I desire to discuss very briefly the measure which is now pending and under consideration by the Senate. The joint resolution calls for a survey of the feasibility and the probable cost of the construction of a Nicaraguan canal. I realize that the distinguished Senator from New Jersey [Mr. EDGE] will insist that this means only the acquiring of information and that it has no other significance. But I wish to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that there never was a canal constructed in America at public expense but that a survey was necessary as the initial step. After the passage of this joint resolution calling for a survey as to the cost of the construction of a Nicaraguan canal, within two years' time there will be introduced into this body a bill providing for an appropriation of from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 for the construction of that canal, and that eventually its cost will probably amount to $500,000,000.

At this point, Mr. President, it would be well to review certain phases of the great political campaign which was concluded last November. It will be remembered that both political parties, that the presidential candidates of the two major political parties, that the vice presidential candidates of those two parties, both of whom are distinguished and honored Members of this body, vied with each other in their promises for agricultural relief. As a matter of fact, Mr. President, those western prairies reverberated with their clarion voices telling the farmers of the Northwest that at last their hour in court had arrived. Both political parties and the leaders of those political parties told the farmers of the Northwest that the agricultural question was the greatest economic question which had confronted this Nation in more than a century.

They went further than that, and said that the agricultural question was the paramount question. They said that when Congress convened that question should be the first question that should be considered; that all other questions should be laid aside. They made the definite promise to the American people that the agricultural question would be settled with finality and that it would be settled justly.

Now, Mr. President, after the heat and the passion and the strife and the turmoil of that campaign have died away, and after Congress has again convened, we find that one of the first measures for agricultural relief was the bill providing for the building of cruisers to protect the grain of the farmers upon the highways of the sea.

Then, again, both political parties in the campaign in analyzing the farm question said that one of the evils affecting the farmer was high transportation rates. They told us that because of increased costs of living and high wages the freight charges imposed upon the farmers were burdensome and excessive, and they said that one of the elements in the solution of that problem would be the improvement of the inland waterways of this country in order to give agriculture an opportunity to transport its products by water to European countries, where those products must be sold in competition with the cheap labor and cheap materials of foreign countries. Now, after Congress has assembled, the first measure that we find considered in order to bring relief to the transportation problem of the farmer is the pending joint resolution that eventually will mean the appropriation of $500,000,000 for the building of a Nicaraguan canal. And not one word can be found in the joint resolution in regard to the development of the inland waterways, which was promised to agriculture of the Northwest during the last campaign.

Mr. President, what a wondrous and glorious fulfillment of campaign promises! Blessed be the memory of that character of redemption of agricultural promises. This joint resolution sounds with a fine ring of irony in the ears of the farmers of the country!

Mr. EDGE. Mr. President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield for a statement?

Mr. McMASTER. I yield.

Mr. EDGE. I have no desire to enter into a political discussion or one as to the alleged failure to carry out campaign promises, because I am quite sure they will be carried out, but I must draw the attention of the Senator to the fact that the joint resolution now before the Senate was introduced on March 20 last year—1928—almost a year ago, and before either political party even held its national convention.

Mr. McMASTER. But during the campaign they were not advocating the expenditure of $500,000,000 to build the Nicaraguan canal. They were advocating the expenditure of millions to develop inland waterways.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator from South Dakota yield to me?

Mr. McMASTER. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. It would be interesting if the Senator from South Dakota would permit the Senator from New Jersey to elaborate the statement he just made and tell us how it is proposed to redeem the pledge for farm relief, and what is the nature of the measure which it is proposed to pass for that purpose.

Mr. EDGE. Mr. President, I do not want to take the time of the Senator from South Dakota, but I will say that in a very few days now—approximately one week—a new President of the United States will be inaugurated and I am quite sure his message to the country——

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Is that all the farm relief the Senator from New Jersey is looking for?

Mr. EDGE. I am quite sure the message of the President elect to the country will very clearly and very definitely elaborate a practical program of farm relief.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, before the Senator from New Jersey gets away from that matter there has been so much said in reference to the McNary-Haugen bill that I should like to repeat a story which has been current around the Capitol. During the recent campaign when Governor Smith was to go out into the West and discuss the farm-relief question somebody said to Raskob that he had better post Governor Smith on the McNary-Haugen bill, and Raskob rejoined, "Has not that bill been paid yet?" [Laughter.]

Mr. McMASTER. Mr. President, continuing with the discussion, at the time of the completion of the Panama Canal there was naturally great rejoicing throughout the Nation over that particular achievement, and I have been told that farmers in the West built bonfires in commemoration and celebration of that great event. But those bonfires have long since been extinguished and in the sobering experience of the years which have followed, the farmers have discovered that the building of the Panama Canal has laid upon them extremely heavy burdens. It is a fact that in the interior industries have been obliged to change their location in order to get upon the waterways of the country; that industries have had their markets curtailed; that young and promising industries have absolutely been forced to go out of business.

Mr. President, I have a letter here from one of the most important manufacturing associations of the Middle West which represents industries with over 800,000 employees whose manufactured products exceed more than $500,000,000 a year. I desire to quote what is said in regard to the effect of the building of the Panama Canal upon the great interior; and I mean by "the interior" that range of country extending from the middle of the Ohio clear out to the city of Spokane in the eastern part of the State of Washington. The letter is from the secretary of this manufacturing association. We must bear in mind that no one had any objection to the building of the Panama Canal providing that at the same time there had been a corresponding program of waterway development in the interior. If that had been consummated and brought about, then these evil effects would not have been visited upon the manufacturing and agricultural interests of the Northwest. Listen to this statement:

> Since the completion of this canal in 1914 these manufacturers have lost trade with the Pacific coast and South America amounting in the aggregate to many hundreds of millions of dollars. They have lost this trade because manufacturers and dealers on the Atlantic coast and some distance inland have been favored with exceedingly low rates for the transportation of their products by water from the eastern ports through the Panama Canal to ports on the Pacific coast.
>
> This low water rate applies to all manufactured products in Illinois and other Middle Western States, and includes many articles which manufacturers of these States formerly sold to western customers in great volume. It includes iron and steel, agricultural implements, canned goods, cement, chemicals, clothing, drugs, electrical machinery, lumber, foundry products, furniture, leather, packing-house products, paper, printing matter, soap, structural ironwork, tinware, and many other commodities. Our middle western manufacturers have seen much of this trade dwindle, flicker, and disappear.

Listen to these handicaps that have been imposed upon the industries of the Middle West through the failure of the Federal Government to complete the program of inland-waterway development.

> It costs $3,060 to ship a carload of first-class freight from Chicago to San Francisco, and only $1,200 from Baltimore to San Francisco. A second-class carload from Chicago costs $2,658 to San Francisco, from Baltimore $1,050. The rate on third class is $2,205, compared with $900; fourth class, $1,866, compared with $750; fifth class, $1,588, compared with $600. * * *
>
> It costs $768 to ship a carload of canned goods from Chicago to San Francisco, and only $210 to ship from Baltimore to San Francisco by the water route.

Mr. President, that is the unbearable burden that has been inflicted upon the interior by the construction of the Panama Canal and through the failure of the Federal Government to complete the program of inland-waterway development. I want to ask how much longer will that condition be permitted to exist? We have pending before the Senate now a joint resolution calling eventually for the appropriation of $500,000,000 to build a Nicaraguan canal, but containing no provision for the completion of the inland-waterway program.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. McMASTER. I yield.

Mr. DILL. The Senator realizes that the only way additional money can be secured for this purpose will be by some kind of a new tax on the American people. What does the Senator think will be the attitude of the people toward a new tax levied in order to build another canal and leave the inland waterways as they are?

Mr. McMASTER. Mr. President, in concluding I wish to say that the Senators from the interior have always been generous to other sections of the country. The Senators from the interior have always supported the tariff system which has conferred great benefit upon the eastern section; they have voted hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars for the development of the harbors and waterways of the Coast States of the Union, and it seems to me that the time has now come when the interior should insist upon a program of development on its own account. The farmers need cheaper water transportation in order to ship their grain to foreign markets.

Mr. President, in view of the campaign promises made to agriculture by both political parties, every Senator, out of respect to those promises, ought to vote against this joint resolution. Most assuredly the funeral rites ought to be held over those campaign promises and they ought to be given decent burial before we flaunt before the eyes of the people a joint resolution of this nature calling for the appropriation eventually of $500,000,000 for the building of a Nicaraguan canal. I repeat, that out of respect to those campaign promises, this joint resolution ought to be defeated; and before any consideration is given to it we ought to give complete consideration to the development of the inland waterways of this country.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 17223) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, and prior fiscal years, to provide supplemental appropriations for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1929, June 30, 1930, and for other purposes, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED

The bill (H. R. 17223) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, and prior fiscal years, to provide supplemental appropriations for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1929, and June 30, 1930, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

DECISION OF DISTRICT COURT OF APPEALS IN RADIO CASE

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia this morning decided the radio case of WGY adversely to the Radio Commission; and I ask unanimous consent to have that decision printed in the RECORD at this point in my remarks.

There being no objection, the decision was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

COURT OF APPEALS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The General Electric Co., appellant, v. Federal Radio Commission. No. 4870

The People of the State of New York, appellant, v. Federal Radio Commission. No. 4871

The General Electric Co., appellant, v. Federal Radio Commission. No. 4880

Appeals from a decision of the Federal Radio Commission.

Before Martin, Chief Justice, and Robb and Van Orsdel, Associate Justices.

These appeals are brought under section 16 of the radio act of 1927 (44 Stat. 1169) for a review of a decision of the Federal Radio Commission whereby the commission refused the application of appellant for a renewal of its broadcasting license dated November 1, 1927, for the operation of station WGY, located at Schenectady, N. Y., with permission to use 50 kilowatts power, at a frequency of 790 kilocycles, and without limitation as to time of operation.

The novelty of this subject justifies a preliminary reference to the controlling statutes and also a statement of certain elementary facts drawn in part from the record and in part from common knowledge and public history.

The electric impulses which carry sounds when broadcast proceed through the ether in waves which move at a distance of 300,000,000 meters per second. The length of the waves may be measured by scientific instruments, likewise the number of waves produced each second; the latter measurement is called the frequency of a station, the former its wave length. A vast demand is made for the use of the ether for various purposes, of which broadcasting is only one. In the present state of the art the broadcasting band is limited to frequencies extending from 550 to 1,500 kilocycles per second, or if stated in wave lengths from 545 to 200 meters. It is conceded that in order to avoid interference between stations when broadcasting at the same time there should be a difference of 10 kilocycles between the frequencies respectively employed by them, otherwise they will interfere with one another and can not be clearly distinguished by the receiver. It follows that there are but 96 practicable frequencies, or so-called wave channels, employed in broadcasting as at present carried on. Six of these channels have been set aside for the exclusive use of stations in Canada, with the result that only 90 remain for use in the United States. It is agreed that certain broadcasting stations, employing high power, should be recognized as national and be given the exclusive use of appropriate frequency bands in order to avoid interference with one another and with smaller stations, while certain other stations, recognized as regional or local, operate with less power, and for this reason and because of relative geographical locations may operate with the same frequency without serious interference with one another. It is well known that the time of day or night which may be allotted to a broadcasting station is a factor of importance in its operation. Owing to the fact that the sun's rays absorb the broadcasting waves there is less interference among stations in the daytime than at night. The greater audiences, however, listen in to radio programs between sundown and midnight and from September until March, and accordingly that period is the most advantageous for operation.

On August 13, 1912, Congress passed "An act to regulate radio communication" (37 Stat. 320), which was the first general law upon the subject, and was in force from its date until the passage of the act of 1927. The art of broadcasting, however, as now understood had not then been developed, as appears from the following extract from the report of the Senate committee upon the bill:

"The term 'radio communication' instead of 'radio telegraphy' is used throughout the bill so that its provisions will cover the possibility of the commercial development of radio telephony (sec. 6, p. 14). Experiments have been made here and abroad for some years in carrying the human voice on hertzian waves, but with only limited and occasional results. Radio telephony involves the application of the same principles as are involved in inventions to enable apparatus to select and record accurately one message on a given wave length out of a mass of messages on various lengths. When this latter result has been attained—an unfulfilled promise of some years' standing—radio telephony will quickly follow. The bill is framed to be adjusted to that improvement when it comes, but in the meantime it deals with the art as it exists to-day." (S. Rept. 698, 62d Cong., 2d sess., pp. 5, 7.)

The "unfulfilled promise" thus referred to was finally fulfilled, and the first broadcasting station in the United States was constructed in the year 1920. Other similar stations rapidly followed, and owing to the lack of effective regulation under the act of 1912, a chaotic condition known as the "breakdown of the law" ensued, and the usefulness of the art was for the time being seriously impaired.

In order to correct this condition Congress enacted the act of February 23, 1927, entitled "An act for the regulation of radio communication, and for other purposes" (44 Stat. 1162). This act, which is yet in force, forbids all radio broadcasting in this country except under and in accordance with a license granted under the provisions of the act. For the purposes of the act the United States is divided into five zones, the first zone including the State of New York and certain other Northeastern States, while the fifth zone includes the State of California and certain other Western States. The act establishes the Federal Radio Commission with power to classify radio stations, to prescribe the nature of the service or class of stations, to assign bands of frequencies or wave lengths to the various stations or classes of stations, and determine the power which each station shall use and the time during which it shall operate, to determine the location of classes of stations or individual stations, and to make such regulations not inconsistent with law as it may deem necessary to prevent interference between stations and to carry out the purposes of the act, provided however, that changes in the wave lengths, authorized power, in the character of emitted signals, or in the times of operation of any station, shall not be made without the consent of the station licensee unless, in the judgment of the commission, such changes will promote public convenience or interest or will serve public necessity or more fully comply with the provisions of the act. The act provides that the licensing authority, if public convenience, interest, or necessity will be served thereby, subject to the limitations of the act, shall grant to any applicant therefor a station license provided for by the act; and that in considering applications for licenses, when and in so far as there is a demand for the same the licensing authority shall make such a distribution of licenses, bands of frequency or wave lengths, periods of time for operation, and of power among the different States and communities as to give fair, efficient, and equitable radio service to each of the same. The act provides that no license for the operation of a broadcasting station shall be for a longer term than three years, and upon the expiration of any license, upon application therefor, a renewal of such license may be granted from time to time for a term of not to exceed three years; and no renewal of an existing station license shall be granted more than 30 days prior to the expiration of the original license. The act also provides that if upon examination of any application for a station license or for the renewal or modification of such a license the licensing authority shall determine that public interest, convenience, or necessity would be served by the granting thereof, it shall authorize the issuance, renewal, or modification thereof in accordance with its finding, but if the licensing authority upon examination of any such application does not reach such decision with respect thereto, it shall notify the applicant thereof, and shall fix and give notice of a time and place for hearing thereon, and shall afford such applicant an opportunity to be heard under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe. The act also provides that any applicant for the renewal of an existing station license whose application is refused by the licensing authority (in this case the Federal Radio Commission) shall have the right to appeal from such decision to this court, by filing with the court within 20 days after the decision complained of is effective, notice in writing of the appeal and of the reasons therefor; that the licensing authority shall be notified of the appeal by service upon it, prior to the filing thereof, of a certified copy of the appeal and of the reasons therefor; and within 20 days after the filing of the appeal the licensing authority shall file with the court the papers and evidence presented to it upon the original application for a permit or license, and a copy of its decision thereon and a full statement in writing of the facts and the grounds for the decision as found and given by it; that the court may order the taking of additional evidence in such manner as it may deem proper; that the court shall hear, review, and determine the appeal upon the record and evidence, "and may alter or revise the decision appealed from and enter such judgment as to it may seem just."

By force of an amending act, known as the Davis Act, passed March 28, 1928 (45 Stat. 373), it is provided that the people of all the zones established by the act of 1927 "are entitled to equality of radio-broadcasting service, both of transmission and of reception, and in order to provide said equality the licensing authority shall as nearly as possible make and maintain an equal allocation of broadcasting licenses, of bands of frequency or wave lengths, of periods of time for operation, and of station power to each of said zones when and in so far as there are applications therefor; and shall make a fair and equitable allocation of licenses, wave lengths, time for operation, and station power to each of the States, the District of Columbia, the Territories, and possessions of the United States within each zone, according to population." And that "the licensing authority shall carry into effect the equality of broadcasting service hereinbefore directed, whenever necessary or proper, by granting or refusing licenses or renewals of licenses, by changing periods of time for operation, and by increasing or decreasing station power, when applications are made for licenses or renewals of licenses."

The General Electric Co. was first licensed to operate station WGY on February 4, 1922, under the act of 1912. The license was for three months; the power, 1,500 watts; the frequency, 832.8 kilocycles, corresponding to a wave length of 360 meters. Thereafter, during successive periods of three months each, the company applied for and was granted renewals of its licenses, each for the period of three months. By the renewal of May 21, 1923, it was assigned a frequency of 790 kilocycles, which it has had ever since, although at times the same frequency has been concurrently used by other licensed stations. The station power was gradually advanced by successive renewals from 1,500 watts to 50,000 watts, with greater power allowed for experimental purposes. On June 1, 1927, the first license issued to the company under the act of 1927 was received by it. This license was for the period ending July 31, 1927, and granted a frequency of 790 kilocycles, the time to be shared with station WHAZ. On September 15, 1927, a renewal license was issued to the company for the term ending October 14, 1927; frequency, 790 kilocycles; power, 50,000 watts; time of operation to be shared with station WHAZ. On November 1, 1927, a similar renewal license was granted the company for the term ending December 31, 1927, with the same frequency and power, but with unlimited time of operation. The licenses issued under the act of 1927 contained the following term: "This license is issued under and in accordance with the radio act of 1927, and all of the terms and conditions thereof are made a part hereof as though specifically set out in full herein." By certain general orders of the commission the license dated November 1, 1927, was extended until November 11, 1928, being a period slightly in excess of one year. On January 14, 1928, the company filed an application for a renewal of this license. On October 12, 1928, the commission authorized a revision of the allocation of all broadcasting stations, to take effect on November 11, 1928. By the terms of this revision WGY was granted a frequency of 790 kilocycles and power of 50,000 watts as before, subject to the limitation that the station was to share this frequency with station KGO, Oakland, Calif., and was not to operate after sunset at the latter station. This would require WGY to cease operating at the following average times throughout the year, to wit: During the month of January, at 8.17 o'clock; February, 8.48; March, 9.18; April, 9.47; May, 10.17; June, 10.32; July, 10.28; August, 10; September, 9.16; October, 8.32; November, 8.01; December, 7.56. Station KGO, Oakland, Calif., also belongs to the General Electric Co. and operates with a power of 10,000 watts. The commission's order accordingly granted a cleared or exclusive channel of 790 kilocycles for the use of the two stations, granting KGO full time of operation and WGY limited time at night as aforesaid. Appeals 4870 and 4871 herein were filed on November 9, 1928. Appeal 4880 was filed on November 30, 1928. They present the same issue, and while the earlier appeals may have been premature the last appeal conforms to the rules and is regular.

The appellant rightly contends that the refusal of the commission to renew its license, except as modified with respect to the time of operation, amounted to a refusal of a renewal within the sense of the act of 1927; and appellant contests the commission's action upon a claim (1) that it wrongfully deprives appellant of its property rights by preventing the full-time operation of station WGY; and (2) that in fact the public convenience, interest, and necessity will be served by renewing appellant's former license with unrestricted time of operation, and will not be served by the modification aforesaid.

In respect to appellant's first contention we may say that under the commerce clause of the Constitution Congress has the power to provide for the reasonable regulation of the use and operation of radio stations in this country and to establish agencies such as the Federal Radio Commission to give effect to that authority. Without such national regulation of radio a condition of chaos in the air would follow, and this peculiar public utility which possesses such incalculable value for the social, economical, and political welfare of the people and for the service of the Government would become practically useless. (Davis, Law of Radio, 71; Zollman, Law of the Air, 102, 103.) Reference is made in appellee's brief to a decision by Judge Wilkerson in White v. Johnson, United States attorney, United States district court, Chicago, not yet reported, wherein it is said:

"The construction of plaintiff's plant and its operation under the license obtained prior to the act of February 23, 1927, did not create property rights which may be asserted against the regulatory power of the United States if that power is properly restricted."

The terms and conditions of the various licenses received and enjoyed by appellant as herein recited also tend to confirm the view that if the time limitation imposed by the commission upon WGY be reasonable and such as to serve the public convenience, interest, or necessity, the order should be sustained; otherwise it should be overruled. Upon this point, however, we feel that the contention of the appellant should be sustained. It appears that station WGY represents a large investment of capital, said to be $1,500,000, adventured in part during the pioneer stages of broadcasting, and that the station has been one of the most important development stations in the country; that through is enterprise important and valuable apparatus has been developed which has greatly advanced the art of broadcasting; that it has been one of three stations recognized in this country as development broadcasting stations; and that at present it carries on great experimental work of this character in the public interest. It appears that within a hundred miles of the station there is a very large population, both urban and rural, estimated to number more than 2,000,000 persons residing in the States of New York, Massachusetts, Vermont, and New Hampshire, who in large part are dependent upon this station for reliable and regular broadcasting service; and that if the station should be silenced during the early hours of the evening, as determined by the commission, the general public within this territory would be seriously prejudiced. In view of the service to the art hitherto rendered by WGY and still continued by it, with the resulting advantage to the public, and in view also of the "public convenience, interest, and necessity" of so great a constituency for full-time operation of the station, it appears that the restriction complained of is not reasonable and should not be enforced.

The considerations inducing the action of the commission are fully set out in the record. When the commission commenced its official services under the act of 1927 and undertook to bring order out of the chaos then prevailing in broadcasting it decided that the public convenience, interest, and necessity required that not more than 40 of the 90 available broadcasting frequency channels should be maintained as cleared channels for the exclusive use of the high-powered national broadcasting stations, and that the remaining 50 channels should be reserved for regional and local broadcasting. Accordingly, under the Davis amendment of March 28, 1928, the commission divided the 40 cleared channels equally among the 5 broadcasting zones, allocating 8 to each zone. In making this allocation the commission assigned the frequency of 790 kilocycles to station KGO, Oakland, Calif., as a cleared channel for use by it without time limitation, and assigned the same frequency to station WGY, but forbidding its use by the latter in the evening hours after sunset at station KGO. It is contended in support of this allocation that it is an essential part of a general system for the regulation of broadcasting throughout the country; that the system was adopted after thorough investigation of the situation, with the aid of competent radio engineers; and that the granting of a frequency of 790 kilocycles to WGY without time limitation would destroy the system as a whole, thereby producing great confusion. It is argued also that such an order would have the result of giving the first zone 9 cleared full-time channels instead of 8, which is the number allocated to each of the other zones.

We have but little information concerning station KGO except that it operates on a power of 10,000 watts and that it also is owned by the General Electric Co. It must be assumed that WGY, operating in the evening with a power of 50,000 watts, would at certain distances interfere with the broadcasting of KGO with its smaller power. It does not appear, however, that this interference would compare in point of public inconvenience with that resulting from the silencing of WGY after sunset at Oakland, nor that full-time operation in the evening by WGY with 790 kilocycles would seriously impair the general scheme of allocations otherwise adopted by the commission. We are convinced that the public interest would be enhanced by granting full time to the latter station.

It is the judgment of this court, therefore, that the appellant, the General Electric Co., was on November 11, 1928, and is now, entitled to receive from the Federal Radio Commission a renewal of its license to operate station WGY upon the same terms as those contained in the license dated November 1, 1928, to wit, upon 790 kilocycles with power of 50 kilowatts and without time limit for operation; and this cause is remanded to the Federal Radio Commission to carry this judgment into effect. Costs assessed against appellee.

GEORGE E. MARTIN,
Chief Justice Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

(Indorsed: Nos. 4870, 4871, and 4880. The General Electric Co., appellant, v. Federal Radio Commission; The People of the State of New York, appellants, v. Federal Radio Commission; The General Electric Co., appellant, v. Federal Radio Commission. Opinion of the court per Mr. Chief Justice Martin, Court of Appeals, District of Columbia. Filed February 25, 1929. Henry W. Hodges, clerk.)

A true copy.

Test:

HENRY W. HODGES,
Clerk of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

STATEMENT BY LOUIS G. CALDWELL, FORMERLY GENERAL COUNSEL FOR THE FEDERAL RADIO COMMISSION

The news which I have just received that the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia has rendered a decision on the case pending before it on appeal by the General Electric Co. takes me completely by surprise. We have now in the hands of the printer an extensive brief on the merits of the case which, under the rules of the court, is due on February 28. My assistants and myself have worked arduously in the preparation of this brief because of the importance of the issues to the future of the regulation of radio communication by the Government of the United States.

I am at a loss to understand why we were not given an opportunity to answer the General Electric Co.'s brief on the merits, which was filed on February 8. It will be remembered that this case began with the filing of an appeal on November 9, 1928, by the General Electric Co. at a time when I was absent and engaged in the argument of a case for the commission in Chicago. On less than two hours' notice to the commission the General Electric Co. obtained a stay order from the court, and the court set the case for hearing on December 3, an unusually early date in view of the importance of the proceeding. This, however, was acceptable to the commission and to myself. Both the attorneys for the General Electric Co. and myself filed briefs with the court just prior to the oral argument, neither side having seen the other's brief.

Thereafter, on December 13, pursuant to leave given by the court, the General Electric Co. filed a brief in answer to what was said in our brief in support of certain motions we made, including a motion to dismiss the appeal. On December 23 we filed a reply to this brief on the motions. After extensive conferences between opposing counsel and ourselves a printed record was prepared and filed on January 10, and pursuant to the rules of the court the appellant filed its regular brief on the merits on February 8. The rules of the court (No. 8, sec. 4) provide:

"For the appellee there shall be filed with the clerk 15 copies of the brief for his side of the case within 20 days from the filing of appellant's brief."

We have never had an opportunity to answer either appellant's brief of February 8 or the brief which it filed just before oral argument on December 3.

The brief which we have in the printer's hands contains arguments and authorities which we believe to be absolutely essential to a proper understanding of the points involved in the case.

The opinion, which I have only just had an opportunity to read, holds that WGY is entitled to full-time operation with 50,000 watts power on the frequency of 790 kilocycles. This frequency or channel was assigned by General Order 40 to the fifth zone to be used by the General Electric Co. Station KGO at Oakland, Calif. Although the court does not say so, this decision necessarily holds that General Order 40 is invalid to the extent that it assigns this channel to the fifth zone, and, if both KGO and WGY are to continue to operate on it, the channel ceases to be a cleared channel, with the result that all the listening public outside of a comparatively small area around either station will have reception spoiled for them by a heterodyne whistle. It also means that the equalization which the commission so carefully worked out between the five zones has been destroyed as between the first and fifth zones with respect to cleared channels. Just what effect, if any, the decision will have on the other portion of General Order 40, it is too early to say.

While the court does not do so directly, by implication it seems to uphold the commission's contention that WGY has no property right, and Judge Wilkerson's decision against the claim of a property right in the WCRW case in Chicago is cited. The court of appeals places its emphasis on the standard of "public interest, convenience, or necessity" and rules that under the standard WGY is entitled to full time.

From a hasty reading of the opinion I gather the following:

(1) The court did not pass on our motions to dismiss each of the three appeals. These motions were based on the grounds, among others, that the appeals were not filed within the 20-day period prescribed by the statute, and that the questions involved are now all moot questions. This latter point is based on the fact that the commission can not, under the amendment passed in 1928, issue more than three months' licenses, and, therefore, if the commission had granted the utmost to the General Electric Co., it would have granted a license beginning November 11, 1928, and ending February 11, 1929.

2. The court did not rule on our motion to strike a large portion of the appeal papers filed by appellant, on the ground that they were improperly used as a method of introducing evidence into the record. By implication the court seems to have overruled this motion as it cites as facts material which is contained only in the document which we moved to strike.

3. The court did not pass on our motion to require the appellant to elect between the two appeals of the General Electric Co.

4. The court did not pass on our motion to dismiss the appeal of the State of New York on the ground that the statute does not give any right of appeal to persons other than those whose applications are denied by the commission.

5. The court seems to assume that under the statute the commission has authority to grant licenses for three years to broadcasting stations whereas under the amendment of 1928 its authority is limited to three months.

6. The court did not take any notice of the actual arrangement which was offered to WGY, namely, that it might operate every evening until 10 p. m., on condition that KGO at Oakland, Calif., close down for a period of 51 minutes daily just prior to 7 p. m.

7. The court assumes that under the commission's ruling WGY had to close down every evening at the hour of sunset at Oakland, Calif.

8. The court did not discuss our contention that WGY had every opportunity for a hearing and rejected it.

9. The court, by holding that WGY is now entitled to a full-time license on 790 kilocycles is necessarily ruling that the commission has no right to pass on whether each renewal of license of every three months will serve public interest.

10. The court, by ruling positively that WGY is entitled to 50,000 watts power, is by implication holding invalid the part of General Order 42 which limits power to 25,000 watts on cleared channels, with an additional 25,000 watts experimentally, to determine whether there is interference.

11. The court has made its ruling so far as facts are concerned entirely on the basis of an ex parte statement furnished by appellant, a large portion of which is in the form of an affidavit by one of its lawyers, and according to our contention improperly a part of the record.

Needless to say, we shall move immediately for a rehearing and if that is not successful shall take such measures as are open to us to obtain a review by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, at an earlier hour in the day I meant to say something about the decision of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia sustaining the complaint of the radio station of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, WGY, against the Radio Commission. The Senator from Missouri [Mr. REED] then had the floor and wanted to talk about the Vare case, and therefore I did not attempt to make any statement at that time. I desire now to call attention to the way in which the District Court of Appeals has handled this case.

In the first place, the temporary injunction which was issued by the court of appeals was issued on less than two hours' notice by the opposing counsel when the chief counsel of the Radio Commission was in Chicago arguing another case. The first briefs in the case for oral argument were filed December 1 by the commission on December 3 by the General Electric Co. The reply briefs on the motion were filed December 13 by the commission and December 22 by WGY, and the commission's answer on December 22. The printed record in this case was not filed until January 10, 1929. Under the rules WGY had 30 days in which to file its brief on the merits, and it filed its brief on February 8. The commission then had 20 days in which to file its reply brief; and the counsel of the commission had prepared its brief on the merits, and it is now being printed by the Government Printing Office. This morning the District Court of Appeals, without waiting for the filing of the brief of the commission's counsel, decided the case and overruled the commission's action.

Mr. BRATTON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. BRATTON. Do I understand that the court decided the case without any brief on behalf of the commission being before the court?

Mr. DILL. It decided it before having any brief on the statement of facts as agreed upon. There were briefs upon the motions made by the commission, and a brief had been filed by the General Electric Co. on the statement of facts which was filed on January 10, and the commission had 20 days from February 8 in which to file its reply brief or its brief on the merits. That period of 20 days would not expire until the 28th of February.

Counsel for the commission tells me that the brief is now being printed by the Government Printing Office, and that it would have been available and ready to file in two or three days; but the court, without waiting for the brief of counsel for the commission, proceeded to give its decision this morning.

Mr. BRATTON. Does the Senator know of any reason for such seemingly undue haste?

Mr. DILL. None except that the court has disregarded counsel for the commission at practically all times. Its treatment of the counsel for the commission at the time of the oral argument was discourteous, to say the least, and was such that I seriously thought of discussing that treatment here in the Senate, and then I decided to say nothing about it. The action of the court in granting this order to override the commission's ruling on two hours' notice, knowing that counsel was in Chicago, was another action on the part of the court that I think was prejudicial.

The District Court of Appeals decided this case on the basis of the public interest, convenience, and necessity, and failed to pass directly on the question which counsel for the General Electric Co., Mr. Hughes and Mr. Hogan, made so much of, namely, the property right in the wave length that had been obtained by the use of that wave length by WGY. The opinion indicates that the court is opposed to that contention. The opinion disregards the fact that the present law grants only a 3-months license. In fact, it cites the fact that the time for licenses is three years, and then proceeds as a matter of finding of fact to declare that the commission is in error and that WGY is entitled to this cleared channel for 24 hours a day, and in that way overrides the commission's order in accordance with the Davis amendment to equalize the channels in the various zones and gives the first zone nine channels instead of eight channels, as had been agreed upon.

Of course, this case will probably go to the Supreme Court of the United States. I think it can be taken there on a writ of certiorari. In case it does, there probably will not be so much damage done; but this action on the part of the District Court of Appeals is such that that court, the appeal body of the commission, will probably be called upon to override every action on the part of the commission to which anyone has objection.

I want to say further that while the General Electric Co. makes this appeal on its own behalf it is not only its rights that are involved, because the General Electric Co. is a part of the great $3,000,000,000 combination known as the Radio Trust. In that trust are the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Co., the United Fruit Co., the Radio Corporation of America, and the National Broadcasting Co. The case is thus one of the cases that really are being brought by that combination of corporations. Owen D. Young, who is chairman of the General Electric Co., is also chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, and is the directing genius of the entire monopoly.

I just want to say again that I do not know of any case of a legal nature where counsel has been treated with as little courtesy, and his rights have been overridden as completely, as they have been in this case by the District Court of Appeals. I think it is evidence that the court was so impressed by the very appearance of former Justice Hughes, of the Supreme Court of the United States, and Mr. Hogan, that they did not even consider the arguments raised by counsel on the other side.

Mr. President, I have here, in the United States Daily of February 25, a statement by Mr. Louis G. Caldwell, attorney for the Radio Commission, which is a review of legislation by States and municipalities regulating radio transmission. I should like to have that statement inserted in the RECORD at this point in my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FESS in the chair). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The matter referred to is as follows:

[From the United States Daily of Monday, February 25, 1929]

LEGISLATION BY STATES AND MUNICIPALITIES TO REGULATE RADIO TRANSMISSION REVIEWED—EXTENT OF RIGHT OF CONTROL NOT DETERMINED, SAYS GENERAL COUNSEL OF FEDERAL COMMISSION

Only three States, Maine, Michigan, and Nevada, have enacted laws to regulate and prevent interference with radio reception, according to a nation-wide survey made by the Federal Radio Commission's legal division.

Two States, Michigan and Nevada, have laws placing jurisdiction over broadcasting in the State public utilities commissions. Illinois has a statute with particular reference to slander over the radio.

Thirteen cities, the survey shows, have adopted ordinances to prevent interference with radio reception. There is no information that any county authorities have attempted to regulate.

In a statement accompanying the Digest of Radio Regulation, State and Municipal, Louis G. Caldwell, general counsel of the commission, states that one problem of radio jurisprudence is the extent to which States and cities within States have the right to legislate on the subject.

The full text of the summary of Mr. Caldwell's statement follows:

"One of the most interesting and difficult problems of radio jurisprudence is the extent to which States and cities within States have the right to legislate on the subject.

"The digest we have made of State laws and ordinances which have already come to our attention reveals that the extent and variety of the methods already employed to suppress interference, restrict the location of broadcasting stations, do away with the nuisance of loud speakers in public places and at late hours, and so on, is already very great. Some States have already gone so far as to class broadcasting stations as public utilities and attempt to regulate them as such.

"So far as I am aware only one case has been decided by a court on any statute or ordinance falling within this class. This is the case of Whitehurst v. Grimes (21 Fed. 2, 787), a decision by the District Court of the Eastern District of Kentucky in 1927, in which an ordinance attempting to license radio stations was held unconstitutional on the ground that 'radio communications are all interstate.'

"The inevitable conflict between the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce and the police power of the State to promote the welfare of its citizens is present in such statutes and ordinances. Where the line is to be drawn is impossible to foresee.

"As a result of my examination of the material already collected, I am convinced that some of the statutes and ordinances are clearly unconstitutional while others are legitimate exercises of the States' police power.

"I earnestly recommend that before any State legislature or city council passes an enactment concerning radio it give the matter careful study, both so that any unnecessary conflict between State and Federal Government may be avoided, and so also that the results of the experience and study of others be at hand before any hasty steps are taken.

COURT CONSIDERS RADIO AS INTERSTATE TRAFFIC

"For the purpose of being of assistance to such States and cities as may desire it our legal division has made a summary of material so far gathered which will be sent to any State or municipal corporation desiring it. In turn, so that we may be in the best position to be of such assistance, we request that we be advised of any statute or ordinance which has already been passed, or which is proposed, or which may be enacted in the future. We shall be glad to offer suggestions to those that submit ordinances to us.

"The following States have enacted laws to regulate and prevent interference with radio reception, viz: Maine (see ch. 215, Public Laws of 1927), Michigan (see act No. 131 of the Public Acts of 1927), Nevada (see ch. 28, Statutes of Nevada, 1928).

"The Michigan and Nevada statutes provide for regulation by the public service commissions through orders, rules, and regulations promulgated by them. In addition, Illinois has a statute with particular reference to slander by radio.

"So far as we have any information, the following municipalities have adopted ordinances to prevent interference with radio reception: Spokane, Wash., ordinance No. C4237; Portland, Oreg., ordinance No. 51269; Minneapolis, Minn., Section VII (a) and (b), radio ordinance, adopted February 11, 1927; Antigo, Ashland, Marshfield, Stevens Point, Waupaca, and Wausau, all in Wisconsin; Iron River, Mich.; Atchison, Kans.; Lincoln, Nebr.; Boonville, N. Y.

"The operation of certain instruments, devices, and machines, the operation of which would cause electrical interference with radio reception between certain hours is prohibited by these ordinances. Some of the ordinances are general and certain of them specifically mention X-ray and violet-ray machines, vibratory chargers, machines using the Tesla coil or principles, and open and quenched spark machines.

"Minneapolis, Minn., has an ordinance forbidding the operation of broadcasting stations of more than 500 watts' power within the city limits and prescribing the distance outside the city limits within which station of higher power may operate. This ordinance also provides for licensing stations and fixing time schedule of operations.

"So far as we have any information, Detroit, Mich., and Oakland, Calif., have ordinances to regulate the operation of loud speakers so as to prevent annoyance and disturbances of those who live within the neighborhood.

"So far as we have any information, the following municipalities have adopted ordinances to regulate the installation of receiving and transmitting apparatus and antenna systems: Washington, D. C., Berkeley, Calif., St. Louis, Mo., Flint, Mich.

"The Nevada Public Service Commission act (ch. 28, Statutes of Nevada, 1928), above referred to, authorizes the commission to make rules and regulations generally with respect to the installation of transmitting and receiving instruments and antenna systems.

"The University of Wisconsin, university extension division, municipal information bureau, Madison, Wis., has published a bulletin on Municipal Radio Interference Ordinances, by Ford H. MacGregor. This bulletin is information report No. 69, and the price is 25 cents.

"Two reports are now available on the regulation of radio installation, and ordinances are now being collected with respect to interference with radio reception to be compiled in a future report by W. P. Capes, executive secretary, conference of mayors, City Hall, Albany, N. Y.

"We have no information that any county authorities have attempted to in any way regulate radio transmission or reception."

Mr. DILL. I may say further that the fact that this case has been decided as it has, and that it will probably go to the Supreme Court, makes it all the more imperative that Congress shall pass the bill to extend the life of the Radio Commission, which contains a provision authorizing the commission to hire attorneys at salaries that will enable the commission to secure counsel of sufficient experience and ability to present this case to the Supreme Court of the United States in the way that it should be presented. I hope that within a very few days the radio bill may be taken up and acted upon, because of its extreme importance.

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. HARRISON. What the Senator is now saying is of very great importance not only to the Senate but to the country. Will the Senator yield in order that I may make a point of no quorum, so that at least the steering committee of the majority side of the Senate can consider the words and suggestions of the Senator from Washington?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. HARRISON. I make the point of no quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Ashurst	Fess	McMaster	Simmons
Barkley	Frazier	McNary	Smith
Bayard	George	Mayfield	Smoot
Bingham	Gerry	Metcalf	Steck
Black	Glass	Moses	Steiwer
Blaine	Glenn	Neely	Stephens
Blease	Goff	Norbeck	Swanson
Borah	Gould	Norris	Thomas, Idaho
Bratton	Greene	Nye	Thomas, Okla.
Brookhart	Hale	Oddie	Trammell
Broussard	Harris	Overman	Tydings
Bruce	Harrison	Phipps	Tyson
Burton	Hastings	Pine	Vandenberg
Capper	Hawes	Ransdell	Walsh, Mass.
Caraway	Hayden	Reed, Mo.	Walsh, Mont.
Copeland	Heflin	Reed, Pa.	Warren
Couzens	Johnson	Robinson, Ark.	Waterman
Curtis	Jones	Robinson, Ind.	Watson
Deneen	Kendrick	Sackett	Wheeler
Dill	Keyes	Schall
Edge	King	Sheppard
Edwards	McKellar	Shortridge

Mr. BLAINE. I desire to announce the unavoidable absence of my colleague [Mr. LA FOLLETTE]. I will let this anncuncement stand for the day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Eighty-five Senators having answered to their names, there is a quorum present.

Mr. BROOKHART. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Washington yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. DILL. What does the Senator desire?

Mr. BROOKHART. I desired the floor for 5 or 10 minutes.

Mr. DILL. I had the floor when I yielded for the call of a quorum.

Mr. BROOKHART. I did not understand the situation.

PUGET SOUND BRIDGE

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, I report favorably from the Committee on Commerce the bill (S. 5879) authorizing Llewellyn Evans, J. F. Hickey, and B. A. Lewis, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across Puget Sound, within the county of Pierce, State of Washington, at or near a point commonly known as the Narrows. I call the matter to the attention of my colleague.

Mr. DILL. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of this bill. It is for the construction of a bridge across one arm of Puget Sound and is in the usual form.

Mr. EDGE. It gives me pleasure to join in that request for unanimous consent.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, Llewellyn Evans, J. F. Hickey, and B. A. Lewis, hereinafter called the grantees, and their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, be, and they are hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across Puget Sound, within the county of Pierce, State of Washington, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near a point commonly known as the Narrows, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Washington, or any municipality or political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of five years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interest in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interest in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Washington, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of tolls shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of tolls shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. The grantees and their assigns shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War, and with the highway department of the State of Washington, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the highway department of the State of Washington shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge. For the purpose of such investigation the said grantees and their assigns shall make available all records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the grantees and their assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000, shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the State in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with.

SEC. 7. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

RETIREMENT OF MEMBERS OF THE LIFE-SAVING SERVICE

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, quite a number of years ago the Senate passed a bill, I think possibly twice, to pension life-savers who were disabled in the line of duty. The bill neither time passed the other body, but I think it was in 1915 that the House passed a bill providing that the Life Saving Service should be a part of the Coast Guard, and that that should be a part of the Military Establishment, so that whenever a member of that service was injured permanently he retired at three-fourths of his pay.

It is felt that those who were permanently injured prior to that time, and who are still living, are justly entitled to be put on the same basis with those who are in the service now. A bill has passed the House, I think unanimously, providing for this, and this morning the Committee on Commerce unanimously directed me to report the bill favorably.

I, therefore, report, from the Committee on Commerce, the bill (H. R. 16656) providing for retired pay for certain members of the former Life Saving Service, equivalent to retired pay granted to members of the Coast Guard. I ask for the immediate consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate as in Committee of the Whole proceeded to consider the bill, which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted etc., That any individual who served in the former Life Saving Service of the United States as a keeper or surfman, and who on account of being so disabled by reason of a wound or injury received or disease contracted in such service in line of duty as to unfit him for the performance of duty was continued upon the rolls of the service for an aggregate period of one year or more under the provisions of section 7 of the act entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the Life Saving Service and to encourage the saving of life from shipwreck," approved May 4, 1882, and who ceased to be a member of such service on account of such disability, which disability still continues at the time of the enactment of this act, shall, upon making due proof of such facts in accordance with such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, be entitled to retired pay from the date of the enactment of this act at the rate of 75 per cent of the pay he was receiving at the time of his separation from such service. No such individual shall receive a pension under any other law of the United States for the same period for which he receives retired pay under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. No agent, attorney, or other person engaged in preparing, presenting, or prosecuting any claim under the provisions of this act shall, directly or indirectly, contract for, demand, receive, or retain for such services in preparing, presenting, or prosecuting such claim a sum greater than $10, which sum shall be payable only on the order of the Secretary of the Treasury; and any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section, or shall wrongfully withhold from the claimant the whole or any part of retired pay allowed or due such claimant under this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall, for each and every offense, be fined not exceeding $500 or be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THE RADIO COMMISSION

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, just before the quorum call was made the Senator from Washington, who has taken a great deal of interest in the work of the Radio Commission and legislation affecting the continuation of the Radio Commission, was addressing the Senate on that subject. Some of us thought that there ought to be more Senators in the Chamber when he was making his very wise suggestions.

I now see in the Chamber the chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce [Mr. WATSON], and I hope the Senator from Washington will bring the matter again to the attention of the Senator, so that we can ascertain where we are going to get with reference to that legislation. It seems to me that is one of the pieces of legislation which ought to pass; and when the Senate is for it and it is necessary, it seems to me that the steering committee ought to put the measure in such a position on the program that it may be passed.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, at the time the Senator made the point of no quorum I had just explained the action of the District Court of Appeals in overruling the commission in the case of the General Electric Co. I had pointed out the fact that it was very important, in the light of that decision, especially, that the legislation now pending before the Senate should be enacted before adjournment, for two reasons: In the first place, that legislation authorizes the commission to employ attorneys at salaries sufficient to secure legal talent of the order and standing needed to present its cases properly. Secondly, because it is highly important that the limitation of licenses to 90 days for broadcasting stations and to one year for other classes of stations, which will expire in March of this year, shall be continued.

I hope the chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WATSON], may be able to get the Radio Commission bill before the Senate at some time in the near future in order that we may have some consideration of it, and pass it if possible.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. President, I will say to the Senator, if he will yield to me, that I am sure he is fully aware of the situation. The Senator from New York [Mr. COPELAND] is the Senator who objected the other night and kept the Senate here until pretty nearly 11 o'clock. I have been trying to reach some sort of an agreement with him about the matter.

My own view now is that it will be necessary to make the radio bill the unfinished business of the Senate, and then apply cloture, if we can not do anything else in order to pass it. This bill must be passed, because if it is not passed the entire radio situation in America will be thrust into a chaotic condition which will not be justified, and for which the Senate of the United States alone will be censurable.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. COPELAND. We had a meeting the other night, we were in session two hours, and my good friend the Senator from Washington [Mr. DILL] was on his feet an hour and a half. I had the floor something over 30 minutes, and half of that time at least was taken up by comments of members of the Committee on Interstate Commerce. So I think it is hardly fair for the Senator from Indiana, who is usually so just, to say that through any efforts of mine the Senate has failed to be advised regarding the many aspects of this case. I am perfectly willing, glad, indeed, to discuss with the Senator from Indiana or with anybody else interested the other side of this case.

I do not want to see the Senate of the United States continue a sort of arrangement which is universally unsatisfactory, continue a commission which has finished its administrative work, and, in so far as it could be done, has done it well, exceedingly well. This administrative work, as the Senator from Indiana himself said the other night, is a thing which in four months' time could be taken over by the Department of Commerce and dealt with in a scientific and proper way. I am willing to concede four months or six months, any period which will be ample time for the Department of Commerce to arrange its affairs to take over the purely administrative part of the work.

Mr. DILL. I call the Senator's attention to the fact that this decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals practically wipes out General Order No. 40, which provided for the allocation of the broadcasting wave lengths. This may compel the commission to reorganize the entire broadcasting allocation plan.

Mr. COPELAND. I agree perfectly with the Senator from Washington; it has created new problems, most of them legal in their nature. I want to see the commission given the proper legal aid, and to be permitted to devote itself to the legal aspects of the case. That decision makes it more important than ever that most of the provisions of the bill which is presented here, particularly that section which provides for legal talent, should be passed. Further than that, the commission should be able to devote its time to the legal aspects of the problem which will be increasingly complicated.

That is exactly why I am opposing the measure as it is presented here. I want the commission to be relieved of administrative duties, in order that it may deal in a large way with the judicial side of its work.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, I will not take more time on this subject, because of the fact that the Nicaraguan canal resolution is pending, and I have some remarks I want to make on that subject.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further to me.

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. COPELAND. If the Senator from Indiana will modify the first paragraph of his bill, fixing a time, four months off, or six months off, or some definite time, for the commission to turn over the administrative side of the work to the Department of Commerce, so that it may devote itself to the judicial side, we can pass the bill in five minutes, as far as I am concerned.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. President, I have no right to the floor except by courtesy of the Senator from Washington——

Mr. DILL. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, will the Senator from Indiana yield?

Mr. WATSON. I yield to the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Washington yield to the Senator from West Virginia?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, if the able Senator from Indiana [Mr. WATSON] should modify his bill agreeably with the suggestion of the Senator from New York, many other Members of the Senate would oppose its passage.

In my opinion, the Radio Commission ought not to be stripped of any of its powers.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. COPELAND. So far as I am concerned I do not believe in abolishing the commission. The law as it originally passed provided that the commission, as an administrative body, should be continued for one year. Last year we continued it for another year to do those detailed things which should be done. Now, it will be better, in my judgment, to leave the commission free to do the large things of which the Senator speaks. It does not propose the abolition of the commission. No matter whether the view of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. WATSON] should prevail or my view should prevail, the commission continues to exist as an appellate body and it would have ultimate jurisdiction in all cases coming before either the Department of Commerce or the Radio Commission itself.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, I shall resist to the limit of my capacity any effort that may be made to rob the radio commission of any of its jurisdiction or transfer any of its functions to the Department of Commerce.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Washington yield to the Senator from Indiana?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. WATSON. The bill provides that the life of the commission shall be extended one year. If it fails of passage, it casts the whole service into the Department of Commerce, which is in no wise prepared to receive it and administer it.

The Senator is willing to postpone action for nine months. The bill provides postponement for one year. On that little difference of three months he is willing to hold up the passage of the bill—just on that slight difference of three months! My contention is that even if we intended to abolish the commission and not permit it to have charge of the operation of radio any longer, it would take a full year for the Department of Commerce to organize and equip itself successfully to take hold of it.

We had full hearings on the matter in the Committee on Commerce, I will say to the Senator from New York. We talked with the members of the committee on the House side, who were thoroughly informed of the situation, and we agreed on this bill and introduced identical bills on the same day. In my judgment, it would work not destruction, indeed, because we can not destroy this great industry, but disaster to the industry for months to come if the bill does not pass in its present form. So far as I am concerned, I shall not be willing to make any kind of compromise, and we shall either win for the bill or lose it altogether.

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. HARRISON. As I understand it, the radio commission goes out of existence on the 23d of March unless we continue it at this session of Congress?

Mr. WATSON. It still remains in existence under the law, but wholly as an appellate body. Its original administrative jurisdiction is lost altogether.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, I think I shall have to bring this discussion to a close, because I want to discuss the Nicaraguan canal situation before 4 o'clock, and unless we do bring the discussion of the radio question to a close it will go on all afternoon.

PROPOSED NICARAGUAN CANAL

The Senate resumed the consideration of the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 117) authorizing an investigation and survey for a Nicaraguan canal.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, on Saturday last I discussed the Nicaraguan canal resolution at some length from the viewpoint of the objections to our longer keeping our forces of marines in Nicaragua, and also from the standpoint of not needing the canal at this time and the proposed investigation not being necessary. I want now to talk for a few moments about the needs of the country for the expenditure of money for other purposes rather than for a Nicaraguan canal.

On looking through the RECORD I was amazed at the information placed in it from authoritative sources—authoritative sources which even the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. EDGE] did not dispute and can not dispute—to the effect that 19 ships every day are now passing through the Panama Canal on an average and that the capacity of the canal is 54 ships a day. In addition to that is the statement that when the new water supply has been provided one additional lock in the Panama Canal will make it unnecessary for any new additional canal facilities for 70 years to come. These statements are undisputed and come from men in charge of the Panama Canal. Yet the Senator from New Jersey proposes to go ahead now with his joint resolution to investigate routes in Nicaragua, and by his own consent there has been stricken out all reference to the report of 1901, which the Senator from Ohio [Mr. BURTON] showed was highly colored largely for the purpose of inducing the Panama Canal people to sell their route in Panama at a lower rate.

The Senator from Ohio was careful in his statements, but the only implication that can be drawn is that the extremely favorable report on Nicaragua was made for the purpose of beating down the price of the Panama route. So the Senator from New Jersey struck out all reference to that report, and now the commission of engineers is to go to Nicaragua and study this route and make such reports as they may see fit, and $150,000 is only a drop in the bucket compared to the total amount of money that we will spend before we have completed the investigations for a canal that admittedly will not be needed until 60 or 70 years from now—all that and the attendant troubles that will come from having the marines kept down there to protect those engineers.

Mr. EDGE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. EDGE. I think the Senator is mistaken as to the purport of the suggestion of the Senator from Ohio. The Senator from Ohio did not want the commission of engineers to be confined to the one report of the Isthmian Commission transmitted in 1901. In other words, he had, as the Senator suggests, some question as to their findings, because they were particularly favorable to the Nicaraguan canal, but there were other reports, and he simply asked that the joint resolution include those reports as well as the report which might be termed, though I shall not term it so, a one-sided report. The only change in the resolution is to give the engineers the benefit of the other reports.

Mr. DILL. It enlarges the duties of the engineers then to the entire Isthmian area and not merely to Nicaragua.

Mr. EDGE. On the contrary it gives them that much additional information.

Mr. DILL. On the contrary, too, the Senator from Ohio specifically talked about the San Blas route as being the only favorable route.

But I want to call attention to some of the pending legislation asking for money from the Treasury of the United States for purposes of development in the United States. It is almost unbelievable that the amount of money needed is so great as it is. I want to speak first of the waterway question. The Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MCMASTER] spoke of the great need for the development of waterways in the middle western country. I want to call attention—and I shall not take the time to analyze each of them—to the various amounts of money that are needed for pressing constructive purposes.

There is a great deal of agitation in the country for the building of the St. Lawrence canal. For the building of that canal down the St. Lawrence River it is estimated that it will cost $425,000,000. If we build it through the State of New York it is estimated it will cost $600,000,000. That canal is of exceedingly great importance to the producers of farm products all through the middle western country, reaching even into the far Northwest, where I live.

Then we have the Mississippi flood-control legislation, with $325,000,000 already authorized to be expended in the next few years, and the estimates show at least $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 additional will be necessary before the flood-control work can be finished.

Then we have the Illinois River additional locks, $3,500,000; the canalization of the Ohio River from Pittsburgh to Cairo, $110,000,000; the Mississippi barge line, which is asking $10,000,000 for new barges; intercoastal waterways on the Atlantic coast from Norfolk to Cape Fear along the Florida coast, $20,000,000; waterway from New Orleans to Corpus Christi, $14,000,000; a total of $1,150,000,000 for just these outstanding waterways which are needed in the country to-day.

We were told at the beginning of this session that we must limit appropriations or the Treasury would show a deficit.

Mr. WALSH of Massachusetts. Mr. President, the Senator failed to include the widening and enlargement of the Cape Cod Canal, for which a request is made of many million dollars.

Mr. DILL. How many millions?

Mr. WALSH of Massachusetts. At least $20,000,000.

Mr. DILL. I thank the Senator for the suggestion. Of course, I have omitted a great many other pressing requests for rivers and harbors throughout the country that are natural, but these are the exceedingly large amounts which will come in addition to the ordinary expenditures for the rivers and harbors of the country, more than $1,000,000,000.

Who will say that it is more important to spend money to start an investigation and look to the beginning of work in the building of a canal in Nicaragua, for which there will be no need for from 60 to 70 years, according to the undisputed testimony of the men who know what they are talking about—who will say that it is more necessary and desirable than the appropriation of money to build some of these great waterway projects?

Not only the waterways but we have Boulder Dam, for which an authorization of $165,000,000 has been made that must be spent out of the Treasury. As I said a moment ago, the Secretary of the Treasury told us in the beginning of this session that if there were particularly large additional drains on the Treasury there would be a deficit. The new administration about to be ushered in will be confronted with a tremendous number of demands for new projects in the country. The President elect has pledged himself to the country to build many of those new projects. Now the Senator from New Jersey comes here with a proposal to begin the investigation of another canal that will cost from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 before it can be made a sea-level canal, and there is no use to build any other kind of a canal down there. Any other kind of a canal would be just as subject to destruction by an enemy force as the Panama Canal is said to be now.

Then we have the Columbia River Basin project in my own part of the country which will cost $250,000,000 to $300,000,000. Only the other day the House of Representatives refused to vote a few thousand dollars to investigate further that project, because they said it was another step toward the expending of money and that the time had come to keep down expenditures for that purpose.

With more than a billion dollars of funds needed to build great waterway projects, the Senator from New Jersey comes here with his joint resolution and gets the steering committee to place it ahead of all the other legislation in the Senate. That joint resolution provides for the making of an investigation for the building of a canal that will cost another $1,000,000,000. I do not know what is the purpose of it other than, as I said the other day, that the Government may have some reason or some excuse for keeping the marines in Nicaragua.

Then there is the completion of reclamation projects that are already authorized in the country, amounting to nearly $100,000,000; the increased pension rate on pension claims now pending running to more than $150,000,000; the increase in expenditures for the Veterans' Bureau which annually run from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000; the purchase of privately owned lands in national parks $3,000,000; roads in the national parks, $5,000,000 annually; the civil service retirement bill, if passed, an annual charge of $10,000,000 for 30 years to come; the civil service salary increase bill with an average charge of $3,000,000 annually.

There is a bill on the Senate Calendar, the passage of which, I believe, is more urgently needed than that of almost any other kind of legislation to-day; that is, the bill to appropriate $50,000,000 for the improvement of the rural mail roads of the country. We have been spending millions and millions of dollars upon roads, but the money has been spent upon the big automobile highways. The farmers who live back in the country, away from the cities, off the main highways, where the rural mail roads go, receive no benefit directly by expenditures from the Treasury for such highways. The Senator from Tennessee has on the calendar a bill authorizing the expenditure of $50,000,000 to improve the roads that go back into the country districts, so that the farmers can get their mail if there happens to be a little bad weather, and the rural mail carrier will not be cut off from traveling the roads and carrying the mail to the people in the communities they are supposed to serve.

Then, we need a coast-to-coast highway. I have talked with the officials of the Bureau of Public Roads, and they told me it would cost $100,000 a mile—$300,000,000—to build such a coast-to-coast highway. I submit that it is far more important that we spend some money to investigate and secure a report about a coast-to-coast highway than it is to investigate and report about a canal that will not be needed for 60 or 70 years, and to build it in a foreign land at that. We need the highway now and should study the question now.

Scarcely any of these projects can be provided except by draining the Treasury to the point of a deficit, and if we are to undertake any considerable number of them, then we shall have to resort to some additional taxes upon the American people.

A great tariff bill is impending and will soon be before us. Everybody agrees that that tariff bill will increase the customs duties and if we shall increase the customs duties we shall thereby cut the revenue; we can not hope in that event for any additional revenue from the tariff. The increase in the income-tax collections, I care not how prosperous the country may be, will no more than take care of the natural increase in the expenditures of the Government. Yet with all of these great pressing needs of the country for money on every hand, the Senator from New Jersey is here with a joint resolution to investigate as to how we can spend a billion dollars in order to build a canal across a foreign country, when we shall not need such a canal for two generations, when he and I shall be gone and our children probably will be old men and women.

Then, farm-relief legislation will soon be upon us. We are told that it will require a revolving fund of from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year. The President elect has said that he is not particular about the expense to the Treasury if such legislation will really help the farmers. So whatever surplus there may be in the Treasury will be more than taken for that purpose. Yet with that situation facing us, with the needs of our farmers so urgent as they are we are told that we should start an investigation in Nicaragua looking to the building of a canal down there some day.

I have received a great many letters about this canal question, because I have opposed the building of a canal. I have had people in the Northwest part of the country where I live telling me that they thought the canal ought to be built because it would help to carry commerce between the two coasts. They get that impression from statements such as the Senator from New Jersey is in the habit of making here that we shall need the canal in from 15 or 20 years. They get it from statements in the newspapers that the Nicaraguan canal will shorten the route a little bit. Then they wonder why any of us will stand here and fight proposed legislation that will lead to the expenditure of such an enormous sum of money that the taxes must be increased upon the people of the country.

Mr. EDGE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Washington yield to me?

Mr. DILL. I yield.

Mr. EDGE. I do not want to take time, but the Senator does not deny for one moment, does he, the statement made by the Senator from New Jersey and in the newspapers, or whatever the source may be, that it is cheaper to-day to carry products through the Panama Canal, which is 400 or 500 miles farther south than the proposed Nicaraguan canal, than it is to transport them by rail?

Mr. DILL. Absolutely; and because it is cheaper, and because that can be done, I do not see any sense in burdening the Treasury of the United States, increasing the taxes of the people to save a couple of days on the water. The fact of the matter is that the trade that goes via the Panama Canal can just as well require a day or two extra, and it will not be nearly the burden upon the people who ship the products as will the failure to provide for the needed projects in this country, and as will be the burden of increased taxation.

I want to remind the Senate of the fact that, while one may read in the newspapers of the great prosperity of this country, if he will go among the common people he will find that they are complaining bitterly about high taxes and are strongly opposed to any legislation that is going to increase their taxes. An administration that adds to the taxation burden of the common people will hear from them at the polls in no uncertain terms. Least of all can such increase be defended on a proposal such as this joint resolution makes to go down into Nicaragua and start investigating the route for a canal that will not need to be built for two or three generations from now.

So I say I do not understand, and never have been able to understand, why the Senator from New Jersey should be so persistent in his effort to secure the passage of the pending joint resolution. I do not know whether or not it is because he wants his committee to make a record of having actually done something so that the committee will not be wiped off the list of Senate committees. I would rather think it were that than to think it was being done for the purpose of giving the administration an excuse to keep the marines in Nicaragua.

Mr. President, I was very much interested in the votes the other day in the Senate on the amendment calling for the withdrawal of the marines in Nicaragua. The first vote was a natural expression of the Senate; Senators voted the way they thought and felt before anybody had really talked to them or had threatened them with loss of naval improvements in their States, or before they had been told they were not standing by the administration, or something of that kind. I hold in my hand an editorial printed in the New York World of February 25, to-day, entitled "A Warning Upon Nicaragua." The editorial reads:

It was something closely resembling a rebuke which the Senate gave the administration in its vote on the question of forcing the marines out of Nicaragua. A year ago the Senators were overwhelmingly behind the President in his wish to keep a large force of marines there until after the elections. But on Friday they voted 38 to 30 to refuse any money for the maintenance of a Nicaraguan force after next June. Senators BORAH and CAPPER were among those who wished to compel a withdrawal. Although this action was reversed on Saturday by 48 to 32, the moral effect of the original gesture remains. It required heavy pressure from Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Kellogg, together with the fear of various Senators that persistence in their stand would defeat the entire naval bill, to bring about this reversal. Mr. BORAH, head of the Foreign Relations Committee, stood his ground to the last.

I was very much interested in the vote of the Senator from Idaho [Mr. BORAH], and also the vote of the Senator from Virginia [Mr. SWANSON], because a year ago when a similar resolution was before this body they stated that when the election had been held and peace had been established in Nicaragua they would be in favor of withdrawing American marines from that country. I say to their credit that they stood true to their promise of a year ago and did not waver in their action here on Saturday.

The episode is a pointed warning that American public sentiment is eager to bring our Nicaraguan adventure to an end and will show increasing restiveness if a large body of marines is retained there longer. The Nicaraguan elections are over. We have been told again and again that the country is pacified. Yet there are still approximately 3,500 marines on Nicaraguan soil, with supporting naval forces. Secretary Kellogg points to our agreements to train the Nicaraguan National Guard, and says that as soon as this task is finished our force will be withdrawn. But to train an adequate constabulary requires nothing like 3,500 men; a skeleton force of officers ought under ordinary conditions to suffice for the job. So long as we maintain this army in Nicaragua the suspicion will persist that the country is by no means completely and permanently pacified, and that we are afraid to withdraw, or that our Government has some covert purpose in the matter. To satisfy home opinion and to reassure Latin America the evacuation should be completed with all possible speed.

So I say that if engineers are sent down and maintained on the Isthmus of Nicaragua there will be another excuse afforded the administration for keeping marines in that country.

I have digressed from the subject about which I was talking, namely, the need of money for projects in our own country. I hold in my hand a copy of the Waterways Bulletin published in St. Louis in February, 1929, and I hold in my hand also an article entitled "53,000 Farmers Speak—The Illinois Agricultural Association Urges a Great Waterway Program." Then the article goes on to describe the need of spending money to provide a Gulf-to-the-Lakes waterway. Such a waterway will cost hundreds of millions of dollars. It is not included in the list of projects which I read, the estimates for which amount to two and a half billion dollars. The lake to the waterway project is additional to that program. The farmers are asking, before we build another isthmian canal for the purpose of serving the two coasts in carrying commerce, that they be given a little money out of the Treasury in order to develop the inland waterways so that their goods may also be transported by water. But, in the face of these demands and these needs, the Senator from New Jersey is here with his joint resolution providing that we shall send engineers into Nicaragua and start another investigation of a canal route—a route which was abandoned years ago—merely in order that, having secured an agreement with Nicaragua in 1913, we may have some data as to a route on which a canal may be built some day if we shall so desire.

There are a great many other waterway developments discussed in this document, but I shall not now take the time to read them. I recognize that Senators generally look upon the pending joint resolution as not having much effect. The Senator from New Jersey says, "It only means spending $150,000, and we are just going to go down there in order to secure some reports so that 50 or 60 years from now when we get ready to build a canal the Government of that time may go back into history and find that once the great Senator from New Jersey was responsible for procuring information aid bringing it down to date."

I do not want to criticize the Senator's desire to bring about that result, and if that were the only purpose I would gladly vote for the passage of the joint resolution, but I know, as every other man knows who studies a subject of this kind, that this is but the first step, this is the opening wedge, looking to the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars for the purpose of building another waterway across the isthmus despite the fact that this country is in far greater need of expending that money for other purposes than for any international waterway.

Mr. President, I am not going to delay the Senate longer or take more time on the subject. I suppose that the Senate will vote to pass the joint resolution. I hope there will be enough opposition to it in the House to kill it there, and that by the time it comes up in another Congress Senators will be awake to what it means and that they will rise up in their might and destroy in the beginning a joint resolution that was conceived in the interest not of the American people but of a few who desire to exploit Nicaragua and who desire to keep American troops there in order that they may have protection while they exploit that land.

Mr. EDGE. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senator from Utah [Mr. KING], I desire to offer two amendments. The Senator from Utah is detained at a committee meeting and has authorized me to present the amendments as representing his viewpoint. I will say, before they are read, that I will accept both amendments to the joint resolution and thus perfect it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendments offered by the Senator from New Jersey on behalf of the Senator from Utah will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to amend the committee amendment on page 5, line 21, by adding, after the word "shipping," a comma and the words:

and to investigate any other practicable route between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The CHIEF CLERK. Also, on page 6, line 15, after an amendment already agreed to, after the name "Nicaraguan canal," it is proposed to insert:

or to authorize the President of the United States to enter into any agreement with the Government of Nicaragua, or of any of the countries herein named, which would commit or in any way obligate the United States to build said canal, or to acquire lands, easements, or other property for such purpose.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on concurring in the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole, as amended.

The amendment made as in Committee of the Whole, as amended, was concurred in.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CALLING OF THE ROLL

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Ashurst	Fess	McMaster	Shortridge
Barkley	Frazier	McNary	Simmons
Bayard	George	Mayfield	Smith
Bingham	Gerry	Metcalf	Smoot
Black	Glass	Moses	Steck
Blaine	Glenn	Neely	Steiwer
Blease	Goff	Norbeck	Stephens
Borah	Gould	Norris	Swanson
Bratton	Greene	Nye	Thomas, Idaho
Brookhart	Hale	Oddie	Thomas, Okla.
Broussard	Harris	Overman	Trammell
Bruce	Harrison	Phipps	Tyson
Burton	Hastings	Pine	Vandenberg
Capper	Hawes	Pittman	Walsh, Mass.
Caraway	Hayden	Ransdell	Walsh, Mont.
Copeland	Heflin	Reed, Mo.	Warren
Couzens	Johnson	Reed, Pa.	Waterman
Curtis	Jones	Robinson, Ark.	Watson
Deneen	Kendrick	Robinson, Ind.	Wheeler
Dill	Keyes	Sackett
Edge	King	Schall
Edwards	McKellar	Sheppard

Mr. BLAINE. I desire to announce that my colleague [Mr. LA FOLLETTE] is unavoidably absent. I ask to have this announcement stand for the day.

Mr. BRATTON. My colleague [Mr. LARRAZOLO] is absent on account of illness. This announcement may stand throughout the day.

Mr. COPELAND. I desire to announce that my colleague [Mr. WAGNER] is detained by important business. I ask that this announcement may stand for the day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Eighty-five Senators having answered to their names, a quorum is present.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Haltigan, one of its clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 15) authorizing expenditures in connection with the consideration of the purchase by the Government of the rights to the use of the Harriman Geographic Code System.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 710) conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to hear, adjudicate, and render judgment in claims which the northwestern bands of Shoshone Indians may have against the United States.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate to each of the following bills:

H. R. 8295. An act for the appointment of an additional circuit judge for the ninth judicial circuit; and

H. R. 16658. An act to amend sections 116, 118, and 126 of the Judicial Code, as amended, to divide the eighth judicial circuit of the United States, and to create a tenth judicial circuit.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the following bills:

H. R. 4266. An act for the relief of certain officers and former officers of the Army of the United States, and for the settlement of individual claims approved by the War Department; and

H. R. 11360. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey or transfer certain water rights in connection with the Boise reclamation project.

The message further announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14659) to provide for the appointment of two additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York; requested a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. LAGUARDIA, and Mr. SUMNERS of Texas were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 16714) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, and for other purposes; requested a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. FRENCH, Mr. HARDY, Mr. TABER, Mr. AYRES, and Mr. OLIVER of Alabama were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message further announced that the House had adopted the following concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 59), in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That during the remainder of the present session of Congress the engrossment and enrolling of bills and joint resolutions by printing, as provided by an act of Congress approved March 2, 1895, may be suspended, and said bills and joint resolution may be engrossed and enrolled by the most expeditious methods consistent with accuracy.

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

The message also announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills and joint resolution, and they were signed by the Vice President:

H. R. 8551. An act to create an additional judge in the district of South Dakota;

H. R. 9200. An act to provide for the appointment of three additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York;

H. R. 12811. An act to provide for the appointment of one additional district judge for the eastern and western districts of South Carolina; and

H. J. Res. 425. Joint resolution providing for an investigation of Francis A. Winslow, United States district judge for the southern district of New York.

ENGROSSMENT AND ENROLLMENT OF BILLS

Mr. JONES. Mr. President, usually near the close of the session we pass a concurrent resolution like the one we have just received from the House of Representatives. I ask for its present consideration.

The Presiding Officer laid before the Senate House Concurrent Resolution 59, which was read, as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That during the remainder of the present session of Congress the engrossment and enrolling of bills and joint resolutions by printing, as provided by an act of Congress, approved March 2, 1895, may be suspended, and said bills and joint resolutions may be engrossed and enrolled by the most expeditious methods consistent with accuracy.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. This is the usual resolution?

Mr. JONES. I understand that it is the usual resolution submitted at the close of a session of Congress.

The concurrent resolution was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to.

NAVAL APPROPRIATIONS

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FESS in the chair) laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 16714) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, and for other purposes, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. HALE. I move that the Senate insist on its amendments, agree to the conference asked by the House and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. HALE, Mr. PHIPPS, and Mr. SWANSON conferees on the part of the Senate.

ADDITIONAL JUDGES, EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FESS in the chair) laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14659) to provide for the appointment of two additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. NORRIS. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments, agree to the conference asked by the House, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. BORAH, Mr. WATERMAN, and Mr. WALSH of Montana.

FARMERS' PRODUCE MARKET

Mr. GLASS. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate take up and make the unfinished business House bill 8298, being Order of Business No. 689, authorizing acquisition of a site for the farmers' produce market, and for other purposes.

Mr. BRUCE. Mr. President, my colleague [Mr TYDINGS] is not in the Chamber at this moment. So far as I am concerned, I have no objection to taking up the bill; but I should like the Senator from Virginia to wait until my colleague comes in. I have sent for him.

Mr. GLASS. I do not propose to wait on the absence of Senators. I put the Senator from Maryland upon notice that this is the next bill in order.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, may we have order in the Chamber?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senators will please take their seats.

Mr. GLASS. Then, Mr. President, if there is to be objection to the request for unanimous consent, as seems to be the case, I move that the bill to which I have referred be taken up and made the unfinished business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of House bill 8298.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 8298) authorizing acquisition of a site for the farmers' produce market, and for other purposes.

WILLIAM H. CHAMBLISS

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, a few days ago I had printed in the RECORD an affidavit on behalf of Captain Chambliss, a retired naval officer. He has given me some additional data which I wish to have printed in the RECORD in support of a measure that is pending here, Senate bill 2274.

There being no objection, the matter referred to was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

IN SUPPORT OF BILL S. 2274

CONGRESS HALL,
Washington, D. C., February 25, 1929.

MY DEAR SENATOR HEFLIN: Continuing and extending the line of facts that I gave you in my sworn affidavit in support of Senate bill 2274, which, at my request, you printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of February 21, I reaffirm that Mr. Beck and Mr. Flanoy, or Flanory, and Mr. Kerr, or Carr, of the Secretary of State's office are aware of the identity of the writer, or writers, of those false reports and malicious letters that have been sent to Senator KING and others about the holdup and robbery of the steamship Lake Elkwood at Rio de Janeiro.

The whole correspondence sent out from the offices of the Secretary of State, during the past nine years, on the subject of the above robbery, has been diplomatically—that is, deceitfully—dictated and worded with intent to shield or cover up the identity of the ring leader of the Rio ship robbers who was Arminius T. Haeberle, acting United States consul at Rio at that time, and he was feathering his nest by delaying Shipping Board ships and manipulating their cargoes and "repair bills" and "provision bills" for imaginary repairs and provisions that were never furnished except on paper.

Mr. Haeberle, acting United States consul, worked hand in hand with the notorious Enrique, or Henrique, Lage, of the make-believe firm of Lage Bros., a Portuguese band that grabbed the interned German ships and the German repair shops known as the "Isle de Vienna" in Rio de Janeiro Harbor, near to the piratical dens with which the great Brazilian port was infested during the World War.

Here it was easy to get away with a ship's cargo and stick the ship up in some cove "for repairs" and hold her indefinitely.

In that way Henrique Lage grew fabulously rich in a short time. And Acting Vice Consul de Momsen, Haeberle's predecessor in the Rio consulate of the United States during the war, grew rich covering up Lage's dark deeds. M. de Momsen resigned from the United States consular service and naturalized himself as a Brazilian citizen and set up in the practice of law in Rio, and thus immuned himself from American criminal prosecution.

Haeberle succeeded M. de Momsen as acting vice consul in 1919, and he straightway retained de Momsen as legal advisor to the United States consulate. M. de Momsen knew the ropes; he knew Henrique Lage, and stood in with the Portuguese band of ship pillagers.

That was the crowd the steamer Lake Elkwood fell into the hands of on October 8, 1919.

The Lake Elkwood, en route from Norfolk to Buenos Aires, had merely put in at Rio, under her own steam, to shift a damaged propeller and install a spare one that she had on board, a job that could have been done in one day for less than $1,000.

I was in command of the ship, and I had radioed ahead to the American consul to have a dry dock ready for me to expedite the job and enable me to shift propellers and proceed quickly. That was all I needed in Rio—the use of a dry dock one day.

But Mr. Haeberle, acting consul, got in touch with Henrique Lage and arranged with him to grab my ship and unload my cargo and sell it at one-half of its value.

They carried out the holdup as soon as I dropped anchor and went ashore to enter and clear my ship at the customhouse.

Haeberle and Lage had three foreigners to act as surveyors to pass upon the damaged propeller and make recommendations. These recommendations were, of course, prearranged, and the surveyors merely signed them and took their fees. They visited the ship 30 minutes, looked at her, and went ashore.

Here it will be interesting to hear how much the "surveyors'" fees for their 30-minute job came to. Here are the figures copied direct from the Shipping Board's books. I also borrowed the original bills, and I will exhibit them to Senators:

1. For survey work on steamship Lake Elkwood:

	Milreis
Dr. Alvaro Gomez de Mattos—
Attending survey Oct. 8, 1919	1,990$000
Attending survey Nov. 24, 1919	200$000
Total	2,190$000

The above, reduced from milreis to United States dollars, at the average exchange rate of 3 milreis to the dollar, comes to $730—pretty good fee for a Spaniard helping a crooked consul hold up a ship.

2. Capt. C. W. Gilbert:

	Milreis
For survey work on steamship Lake Elkwood—
Attending survey Oct. 8 and Nov. 24, 1919	2,180$000

Reduced to dollars, Gilbert's survey bill was $726.66 for his 30 minutes' work.

3. Mr. H. E. Inman, "surveyor":

	Milreis
For attending on steamship Lake Elkwood, Oct. 8 and Nov. 24, 1919	2,170$000

Reduced to dollars, Mr. Inman got $723.33 for his 30 minutes.

The above bills in their original form, O. K'd by A. T. Haeberle, are in my possession, having been loaned to me by an upright officer of the United States Government for me to exhibit as proof of Haeberle's guilt and statecraft at Washington.

These "survey" bills, which would have been about $10 each at New York, were over $700 each at Rio, and Haeberle paid them to cover his crimes, and he charged it all up to the expense account for repairing the ship, and the United States Government, through the State Department, paid it, and the State Department whitewashed Haeberle and sent him to Germany.

It will interest everybody in the United States to hear that each of Mr. Haeberle's "surveyors" actually received more for "surveying" my damaged propeller 30 minutes than my pay as captain was for 60 days. I was on Government duty under contract as captain at $330 a month, and two full months would not be as much as each "surveyor" got for 30 minutes. And the rich part of it is that Haeberle was required by law to put Americans—officers of American ships in port—on all survey jobs, but he ignored the Americans in port, and hired the three foreigners above named—Dè Mattos, Spaniard; Inman and Gilbert, Britishers.

Here I will sum up a few of the bills that Acting Consul Haeberle paid to his associates for helping him hold up the Lake Elkwood and get away with her cargo and stores worth $200,000:

1. For "survey" work, 3 surveyors—De Mattos, Celbert, and Inman	$2,179.99
2. For special subagent, A. H. Price, a clerk in an English ship agency	2,300.00
For "special services":
Frank J. Green, a deserter from the ship	1,600.00
Lage Bros., for "repairs"	15,000.00
Lage Bros., other items	5,000.00
W. H. Taylor, "supplies"	1,666.00
C. W. Celbert, supplies	1,000.00
Total	28,745.99

The above $28,745.99, paid out by Mr. Haeberle to his aides in the Rio holdup, represents but a small part of the long list of graft bills in my possession.

I am here at the Senate now to lay bare the whole plot and to show how Haeberle's friends in the offices with Mr. Beck, Mr. Carr, and Mr. Flanory have diplomatically protected Haeberle and kept him out of prison and on the pay rolls of the State Department all of these years for "expediency," and how they black-listed me and prevented me from getting a job and held up my wages due to me for that voyage to South America, and slandered me in their letters to Senator KING to induce him to oppose Senate bill 2274 for my back pay.

The vindictive men in the State Department have done those things to me for punishment because I opposed Arminius T. Haeberle, a crook in the Consular Service, who whacked up the graft money so liberally among his protectors, as shown by the bills listed above.

Please add this letter to my affidavit and print it in the RECORD as a part thereof in support of bills S. 2274 and H. R. 14139.

WILLIAM H. CHAMBLISS.

ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Virginia yield to me for just one moment?

Mr. GLASS. If it does not lead to debate.

Mr. HARRIS. Under Rule XL, I send to the desk a notice of a motion to suspend the rules. I do not think my amendment is subject to a point of order, but I want to take no chances. Therefore I send this notice to the desk and ask to have it read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The notice will be read.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

NOTICE OF MOTION TO SUSPEND RULES

Pursuant to the provisions of Rule XL of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby give notice in writing that I shall hereafter move to suspend paragraph 1 of Rule XVI, for the purpose of proposing to the bill (H. R. 17223) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, and prior fiscal years, to provide supplemental appropriations for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1929, and June 30, 1930, and for other purposes, the following amendment, viz: On page 64, strike out lines 3 to 11, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"For increasing the enforcement force, $24,000,000, or such part thereof as the President may deem useful, to be allocated by the President, as he may see fit, to the departments or bureaus charged with the enforcement of the national prohibition act, and to remain available until June 30, 1930."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The notice will lie over for one day.

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Virginia yield to the Senator from Mississippi?

Mr. GLASS. For what purpose?

Mr. HARRISON. I wanted to inquire of the Senator from Georgia something about this proposed suspension of the rules, unless we are in a very great deal of a hurry about this other matter.

Mr. GLASS. I did not yield for any controversy over the proposition of the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. HARRIS. I had told the Senator there would be discussion of it. I hope the Senator will not pursue the matter at this time.

Mr. HARRISON. Does the Senator from Virginia intend to proceed this afternoon with his remarks?

Mr. GLASS. Momentarily, I do.

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Virginia yield to the Senator from Utah?

Mr. GLASS. In just a minute, if the Senator from Utah will wait until I can make a brief statement about this bill.

Mr. RANSDELL. Mr. President, will the Senator please yield to me to present a report from the Committee on Commerce?

Mr. GLASS. Yes.

CARVILLE MARINE HOSPITAL RESERVATION, LOUISIANA

Mr. RANSDELL. From the Committee on Commerce, I report back, favorably, without amendment, Senate bill 5656, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to grant a right of way for a levee through the Carville Marine Hospital reservation, Louisiana, and I submit a report (No. 1918) thereon.

This is an important public matter. There is no opposition at all to it. I ask unanimous consent that the bill may be considered at this time. If it leads to any discussion whatever, I will drop it.

Mr. GLASS. Very well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to grant the board of commissioners for the Pontchartrain levee district, an authorized agency of the State of Louisiana, or the State of Louisiana, a right of way through the Carville Marine Hospital reservation, parish of Iberville, State of Louisiana, in such location as may be designated by him, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a new levee to replace the existing main-line levee in front of said reservation along the Mississippi River.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. RANSDELL. I thank the Senator.

FARMERS' PRODUCE MARKET

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8298) authorizing the acquisition of a site for the farmers' produce market, and for other purposes.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. President, this bill, which has been made the unfinished business, is a House bill which has been on the Senate Calendar since the 3d of last April with a favorable report from the Committee on the District of Columbia. It is a bill that has had the indorsement of the District Commissioners and of the business community, and, in the only popular demonstration we have had, of the people of the District of Columbia.

So far as I am concerned, I am willing to vote on the bill now without further discussion; but the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS] has notified me that he wishes to speak on the bill, and I have agreed that he shall be given an opportunity to speak on it.

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. GLASS. I yield to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. SMOOT. I should like at this time to ask that the action of the House of Representatives on the Interior Department appropriation bill be laid before the Senate, not with any idea of displacing the unfinished business.

Mr. GLASS. I am willing. The Senator desires to have the unfinished business temporarily laid aside?

Mr. SMOOT. Temporarily laid aside for that purpose.

Mr. GLASS. I have no objection to that, Mr. President.

Mr. WALSH of Montana. I object, of course.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah asks unanimous consent that the unfinished business be laid aside, and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the action of the House on the Interior Department appropriation bill. Is there objection?

Mr. WALSH of Montana. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana objects.

Mr. SMOOT. I do not want at this time to have the unfinished business laid aside, and I will not ask that the action of the House on the Interior Department appropriation bill be laid before the Senate now.

Mr. GLASS. If I can successfully resist, I am not going to permit the unfinished business to be laid aside.

Mr. SMOOT. I am not asking that at this time.

Mr. GLASS. I find myself subjected to some embarrassment. I do not care to discuss this bill; it is more or less familiar to all the Senate, and I am perfectly willing to have a vote on the bill now, and shall insist on having a vote if some Senator does not want to discuss it.

Mr. BRUCE. My colleague is deeply interested in this bill, as the Senator from Virginia knows, and he happens to be out of the Chamber at the present moment. I have sent for him, and he will be here, I am sure, within the next 10 or 15 minutes. I think it would be a bitter disappointment to him and to those he represents if he should have no opportunity to discuss the measure. I discussed it last spring, and do not care to say anything more about it.

Mr. GLASS. I understand that the senior Senator from Maryland has no desire to discuss the bill further, nor have I; but I can not permit the unfinished business to be laid aside simply because the Senator's colleague is not here.

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. GLASS. I yield.

Mr. HARRISON. I am sure that the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS] is not here because of the arrangement he thought we had made respecting the other legislation which was pending, namely, that there was to be general debate until 4 o'clock, and that we were then to take up the Nicaraguan survey resolution under the 10-minute rule. I am quite sure that is the reason why he is not here.

Mr. GLASS. But I do not intend to lose my status before the Senate because of that fact. I have insistently notified the Senator from Maryland that this bill was the next on the program of business, and that I should call it up and pursue the matter to a conclusion.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Why not proceed with it now?

Mr. GLASS. I am ready for a vote. I do not care to talk on the bill.

Mr. BRUCE. I suggest that the unfinished business be laid aside for half an hour, and by that time my colleague will probably be here, and if he is not I shall make no further objection to proceeding with the bill.

Mr. GLASS. Objection has been made to laying the bill aside at all.

Mr. BRUCE. Nothing can be gained by taking it up and pursuing the matter now, for if necessary I will take up an hour or so myself. I hope the suggestion I have made will be acceded to, that is to say, that the unfinished business be laid aside for half an hour.

Mr. WATSON. How long will it be before the Senator's colleague will be here?

Mr. BRUCE. He sent me word 10 minutes ago that he would be here in half an hour. If he is not here within that time, I shall have nothing more to say.

Mr. WATSON. Why does not the Senator from Virginia make a statement respecting his bill, placing it before the Senate, and by that time the probabilities are that the other Senator will have arrived?

Mr. HEFLIN. I do not see why the Senator from Virginia should wait until somebody comes.

Mr. GLASS. I have already stated in detail the provisions of the bill. I discussed it for 40 minutes.

Mr. WATSON. But that was some time ago.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Virginia yield to the Senator from Idaho?

Mr. GLASS. Yes; I yield.

Mr. BORAH. There is one feature of the bill which I would like to have the Senator discuss for a few moments. Two different committees of farmers have waited upon me within the last few days, stating that the farmers who desire to bring their stuff to the market are practically all opposed to this bill. I would like to have the Senator state the disadvantage, if any, which would accrue to the farmers who desire to market their stuff directly, by reason of the location which the Senator is advocating in this bill. I know nothing about it except what has been stated to me, and I would like to have the Senator's views in regard to that matter.

Mr. GLASS. When the Senator speaks of farmers, I would like to know what farmers. I would like to know if the farmers of Idaho are objecting to the bill. I venture to say that the farmers of Idaho send about as much produce to the farmers' market in the District of Columbia as do the farmers in the immediate vicinity who have waited on the Senator from Idaho. I will say to the Senator from Idaho further that 85 per cent of the farm produce consumed here in the District of Columbia comes to the District over railroads and on the steamers which ply the Potomac River, and less than 12 per cent of it is supplied by the farmers who are adjacent to the District of Columbia.

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. GLASS. I yield.

Mr. SMOOT. I have received a great many letters in relation to the bill, the writers claiming that it is only a railroad fight, a contest between two railroads.

Mr. GLASS. It could not be between two railroads. It is a fight of four railroads on one side, and the steamboat companies and one railroad on the other, if it be a railroad fight; but it has never occurred to me that it is a railroad fight. No railroad representative has approached me on the subject.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, the question is, What effect will it have on the local producers? It has been stated that this was a wholesale market and not a retail market, and that the local producers would have no retail market. Does the Senator know anything about that?

Mr. GLASS. The retailers of farm produce will have better facilities for the conduct of their business at the southwest site than they have had for years at the Center Market site, and infinitely better facilities than may be provided at any of the other sites mentioned, not one of which has been definitely suggested by any association or any number of producers in the District of Columbia, except one little coterie of produce merchants who have gotten an option on a site here which they want to utilize for real-estate speculation purposes.

Mr. SACKETT. Mr. President, I have heard it said in the last day or two that if we changed to the southwest site the farmers could not sell their produce at retail. This bill, which came before the committee, does not change the practice which has been in vogue at the Center Market?

Mr. GLASS. Not in the slightest degree.

Mr. SACKETT. If they can sell at retail at the Center Market location they would have exactly the same privileges at any other location?

Mr. GLASS. Precisely.

Mr. SACKETT. It would not make any difference whether it went to the southwest site or to some other site?

Mr. GLASS. Not one particle of difference would it make. There would be no change in that respect whatsoever. On the contrary, the facilities afforded by the southwest site for retail purposes will be greater than those at the existing Center Market site.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. President, will the Senator tell me just where he proposes that this new market shall be located?

Mr. GLASS. It is to be located in the southwest, on the water front.

Mr. WHEELER. On the Potomac River?

Mr. GLASS. Yes; on the water front.

Mr. WHEELER. Will that not be so far away from the center of population, when the city is growing northwest, that it will be extremely unhandy for the people of the District?

Mr. GLASS. No; it is not far away. It is just a few blocks removed from the existing site, which must be abandoned, and it is in closer proximity to the people who patronize the market than any other site which has been mentioned.

Mr. DILL. Will it not be necessary in the future for all the population lying north of Pennsylvania Avenue to cross the Mall district to get to the proposed site, after the Mall shall have been completed?

Mr. GLASS. They have to cross Pennsylvania Avenue to get to the site where the market has always been.

Mr. DILL. But the Mall district will be 1,600 feet wide, and, as I understand it, it is proposed that the market shall be on the south side of the Mall, and all the people living on the north side of the city will be compelled to pass across the Mall to get to the market.

Mr. GLASS. Yes; and to indicate how much objection the people who have to go to this market entertain for that sort of thing, every hotel located in Washington is north of Pennsylvania Avenue, and yet every hotel has advocated this southwest site.

Mr. DILL. The hotels do not contain the people who live here.

Mr. GLASS. But they furnish the "feed" to a great many people who "feed" here.

Mr. DILL. Not the people who live here.

Mr. GLASS. I do not like to fire all my ammunition in the absence of a Senator who ought to be here to discuss this bill, but, as a matter of fact, when the matter was submitted to the people of the District, 10 to 1 voted for the southwest site as against any other site that has been mentioned.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. How was it submitted?

Mr. GLASS. It was submitted through a referendum in the Washington Post. There were 30,000 responses to the poll taken. Nineteen thousand three hundred and seven voted for the southwest site, 9,434 voted for the mid-city site, 59 voted for the Eckington site, which is the site that has caused all the row. It got 59 votes out of 30,000 votes cast, and there were 82 votes cast for other sites.

Senators who are familiar with the situation know that it is literally impossible to go to the Eckington site, where these real-estate speculators want to take us, and where there are no railroad facilities whatsoever, where there is no water frontage and no water transportation facility whatsoever.

Mr. President, as there seems to be a pretty general desire to have me exhibit myself in the rare rôle of talking against time, which I have never done before in my life, I will discuss this market bill, provided somebody will go down into the Committee on Appropriations room and tell them not to report the appropriation bill now before them until I can get there and have an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. McKELLAR. I will say to the Senator that the Subcommittee on the Committee on Appropriations has adjourned, and the matter in which the Senator from Virginia is concerned has gone over until to-morrow.

Mr. GLASS. Very well; then I will give the Senate some exceedingly dull history. [Laughter.]

Mr. President, the so-called farmers' market was created by the act of May 20, 1870. I think that is going back far enough. [Laughter.] The act provided:

> That the city government of Washington shall have the right to hold and use, under such rules and regulations as the said corporation may prescribe, the open space at the intersection of Ohio and Louisiana Avenues with Tenth and Twelfth Streets as a market for the purchase and sale of the following articles, to wit: Hay, straw, oats, corn, cornmeal, seed of all kinds, wood for sale from the wagon, cattle on the hoof, swine on the hoof, country produce sold in quantities from the wagon, and such other bulky and coarse articles as the said corporation may designate. And from and after the passage of this act marketing of the products named herein shall be excluded from Pennsylvania and Louisiana Avenues and the sidewalks and pavements thereon.

It was a wholesale market in its original design and purpose. That it was so considered is shown by a resolution of the board of public works of April 26, 1874, as follows:

> Voted: To approve the arrangement with the Washington Market Co., proposed in the company's letter of April 8, 1872, relative to the open space at the intersection of Ohio and Lousiana Avenues and Tenth and Twelfth Streets, used as a wholesale market, this arrangement not to prejudice any lawful future action of the board of the legislative assembly or of Congress. (S. Rept. 449, 43d Cong., 1st sess., p. 50.)

This was confirmed in report to the Senate of June 13, 1874, by Senator Morrill, of Vermont, chairman of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, as follows:

> The open space between Tenth and Twelfth Streets at the intersection of Ohio and Louisiana Avenues designed as a free wholesale market for cattle, swine, corn, flour, wood, hay, and other country products and surrendered by Congress to the city of Washington for the purpose, has been assigned by the board of public works to the market company, which has made some improvements thereon, and charges a moderate fee for any use of the same. (S. Rept. 449, 43d Cong., 1st sess., p. 7.)

Senators who are so intensely interested in this recital which I am making will observe that these quotations address themselves exclusively to the question of whether the market was in its original form a wholesale market. The more interesting phases of the problem I shall undertake to discuss, perhaps after the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS] has made his speech.

This farmers' market so provided by Congress has been essentially a wholesale market for over 50 years of operation, although a small percentage of the gross business has been conducted at retail. It appears from the best evidence obtainable that in recent years approximately 92 per cent of the gross business of this market is wholesale and the remaining 8 per cent retail. (See Senate hearing, 1927, pp. 143–148.)

This plan of operation is characteristic of the municipal farmers' markets provided and maintained by most of the large cities of the United States. (See report of Federal Trade Commission on Wholesale Marketing of Food, 1920, p. 59.) According to a survey made in 1918 by the Census Bureau there were 237 municipal markets in 128 of the 227 large cities, and in 63 of the cities the farmers' markets were exactly of the type of the Washington farmers' market as conducted for the past 50 years and as proposed under the Stalker bill.

While there is nothing in the Stalker bill to prevent retail sales—and retail sales will continue just as they have in the past—it is well to consider that the purpose of this bill is primarily to provide the farmers with the opportunity to dispose of their produce in quantity lots, inasmuch as they already have the opportunity for retail sales at all the rest of the municipal and private markets in the city.

People talk as though, if this market were established, it would be the end of the retail business in the District of Columbia; whereas we have numerous retail markets conveniently located throughout the city of Washington and whereas, as every Senator must know, the retail business of this as of any other large city is to a tremendous extent conducted in the corner groceries and not at the market house.

This opportunity for retail sales already is afforded at the Western Market, the Eastern Market, the P Street Market, the Seventh Street Market, the Fifth and K Streets Market, and many others, but now that the farmers have been driven from the space originally allotted them primarily for wholesale transactions, there is no place, unless Congress provides it by the Stalker bill, for them to sell wholesale.

Only one of two measures can be applied in dealing with this situation. A market site must be provided on which to continue these marketing operations as they have been conducted for the past 50 years; or the farmers must be prohibited from selling their produce in quantity which would cause a discontinuance of such marketing operations.

If no market space is provided for such farmers and they are prohibited from selling on the streets, the only other method of disposing of their produce in bulk would be to sell it to the commission merchants, which would inevitably result in an increase of at least 10 per cent in the cost of farm produce. This commission would be added by commission merchants in their sales to market storekeepers, hotels, restaurants, and boarding houses and would be passed along to the ultimate consumers.

Mr. President, I do not care to pursue the discussion, aside from that phase of it which I have presented, until the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. TYDINGS] has made his argument against the bill, which I was told he would be enabled to make in about 15 minutes.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. GLASS. Certainly.

Mr. TYDINGS. I would appreciate it, though I do not want to delay the Senate from consideration of the matter, if I might be enabled to proceed in the morning. I would appreciate it if the Senator would work with me to that end. I will assure him that so far as I am individually concerned I shall not be an obstructionist in any way in the world.

Mr. GLASS. That is what I would prefer if it suits the convenience of the Senate to do it.

Mr. TYDINGS. We can take up the calendar perhaps at this time.

Mr. GLASS. I would not permit my bill to lose its status as the unfinished business, much as I would like to meet the convenience of my friend from Maryland. However, if he can prevail upon the Senate, I shall be glad.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WATSON in the chair). Does the Senator from Virginia yield to the Senator from Kansas?

Mr. GLASS. I yield.

Mr. CURTIS. I was about to ask for an executive session, but I understand the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. FRAZIER] has a resolution which he would like to call up at this time if the Senator from Virginia will yield for that purpose.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. What is the resolution?

Mr. WHEELER. To enable the Committee on Indian Affairs to continue its hearings.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. GLASS. I yield to the Senator from Michigan.

Mr. VANDENBERG. If the unfinished business is to be postponed to suit the convenience of the Senator from Maryland, I wonder if the postponement can not carry with it an agreement to vote at a certain time to-morrow?

Mr. GLASS. I am prepared to vote right now.

Mr. BRUCE. I am prepared to say something about the matter.

Mr. TYDINGS. So far as I am concerned personally, I shall not delay the vote, but I do know there are four or five Senators who want to speak against the bill and some amendments will be offered to it which will change its character. I think, as it is late this evening, we could dispose of it to-morrow and not have to carry it over two days.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Are those Senators Members who take an interest in this particular bill?

Mr. TYDINGS. They are interested in the subject matter, and most of them are against the bill.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. President, I may say that I had not been informed that any Senator wanted to speak on the bill except the junior Senator from Maryland, but I am unwilling to have myself maneuvered out of the position which I want to occupy with reference to the bill.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, if the Senator from Virginia will yield——

Mr. GLASS. Certainly.

Mr. CURTIS. I suggest that we go into executive session. The resolution of the Senator from North Dakota can not be taken up until the Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN] is present. We can then come back into legislative session and remain in legislative session until 6 o'clock. That would not displace the measure of the Senator from Virginia. At 6 o'clock we must take a recess until 8 o'clock under the unanimous-consent agreement. If the Senator from Virginia will yield for that purpose, I will move an executive session.

Mr. GLASS. I yield for that purpose.

Mr. CURTIS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. BRUCE. Mr. President, I hope the Senator will not do that now. I am prepared now to say what I have to say on the marketing bill.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Then why not let the senior Senator from Maryland make his speech?

Mr. CURTIS. Very well. I withdraw my motion if the Senator is ready to speak.

Mr. GLASS. I understood that the senior Senator from Maryland did not want to speak on the bill.

Mr. BRUCE. Naturally the Senator might have drawn that inference. I do not find fault with that at all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland will proceed.

Mr. BRUCE. Mr. President, I really have very little to say on this subject; but now that some statements have been made by the Senator from Virginia [Mr. GLASS] with reference to it, I feel that it is incumbent upon me to express my views briefly about it.

In the first place, I wish to declare that if the bill is passed here the Senate should forever seal its lips with respect to the welfare of the farmer. This market is a farmers' market. No matter what its origin was, it has come to be known as a farmers' market. The fact was brought out last spring when farmers bring in farm produce to Washington each day to the number of 465 from Maryland, 81 from Virginia, and 55 from the District of Columbia. They come to Washington every day and supply it with fresh asparagus, fresh celery, and other fresh vegetable produce of every sort. They are earnestly interested in having this bill defeated. Last spring the fact was brought out that the Maryland farmers who use the farmers' market in Washington were unanimously opposed to it; that the same thing was true of the District of Columbia farmers who use that market; and that if my memory does not fail me 45 out of the sixty-odd Virginia farmers who use it were opposed to it. I understand that since that time by assiduous drumming some of the Virginia farmers were brought over to the side of the Senator from Virginia [Mr. GLASS]. How true that allegation is I do not know.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. President, of course, in the first instance it was just by that sort of drumming that any of them were gotten on the side of the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. BRUCE. Of course, I am not prepared to admit that, because certainly there is not an iota of evidence to show that the Maryland and District of Columbia farmers were subjected to anything in the nature of urgent solicitation. These are real farmers—bear that in mind; they are dirt farmers; they are honest-to-goodness farmers; they are farmers whose vital force is ever renewed from day to day by actual contact with the earth.

The whole question in this case, with due respect to the Senator from Virginia, is whether the little finger of the Pennsylvania Railroad is to be thicker than the loins of the Maryland, District of Columbia, and Virginia farmers.

The Senator says that nobody connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. has had anything to say to him with respect to this bill. Of course, I accept that statement, as I would any statement made by the Senator from Virginia, as true, but, all the same, if there were no Pennsylvania Railroad, there would be no Stalker bill.

Mr. GLASS. I might retort that if there had been no Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, there would be no opposition to the Stalker bill.

Mr. BRUCE. All I have to say in reference to that suggestion is that I have never received one single, solitary communication of any kind, oral or written, from anybody connected with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad touching this bill.

Mr. GLASS. I have not suggested that the Senator had; nor have I received any suggestions, either in writing or by word of mouth, from anybody connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. BRUCE. I am not appearing here for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, although if the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad had any interest in this bill and came forward and gave me good reasons from their viewpoint why I should oppose it, I should have no objection whatever to their presenting those reasons to me.

Mr. GLASS. The Senator should accord me the same right in the event the Pennsylvania Railroad should want to talk to me on the subject.

Mr. BRUCE. I never attempt to withhold any right from the Senator, because I know that if I should try to do so, he would take it, anyway.

Mr. GLASS. Yes.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. President, do I understand this is just a fight between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad?

Mr. GLASS. No; but, as has already been indicated, if it is desired to put it on a railroad plane, there are four railroads and two or three steamboat companies arrayed against one railroad.

Mr. BRUCE. Those railroads, however, are all affiliated with the Pennsylvania Railroad; they all use the Potomac Yards; and they all want the Southwest market site on the water front instead of north of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Mr. GLASS. Yes; but the farmers who send 85 per cent of the produce consumed in the District of Columbia use the Potomac yards.

Mr. BRUCE. The Senator knows, however, that a very large part of the vegetable produce that is brought into Washington from any considerable distance is brought in by trucks.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRUCE. Yes.

Mr. NEELY. I hope that there is a better reason for choosing a certain market site for the District of Columbia than that which lies in the fact that it is situated on or near a certain railroad. But if the determination of the question before the Senate depends upon a choice between the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads, I shall unhesitatingly and enthusiastically vote for the Baltimore & Ohio every time.

Mr. BRUCE. I think that is a very discreet and natural choice to be made by the Senator from West Virginia, because, as he knows, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is the child of the State of Maryland and the State of West Virginia.

Mr. NEELY. The Senator from West Virginia also believes that it is the world's best railroad. It has for its president Mr. Daniel Willard, one of the ablest and most humanitarian of railroad executives, and for its chief counsel Hon. John J. Cornwell, the brilliancy of whose record as Governor of West Virginia from 1917 to 1921 has never been surpassed.

Mr. GLASS. Of course, on account of those circumstances the market ought to be located north of Pennsylvania Avenue in the District of Columbia.

Mr. BRUCE. Mr. President, I am not in the slightest degree influenced by such considerations. I stand here in my representative capacity as the mouthpiece of the farmers of Maryland, the District of Columbia, and Virginia, who last spring by an overwhelming majority favored a market location other than the southwest site. I have never seen any group of individuals since I have been a Member of the Senate as zealously and eagerly interested in defeating a measure as are the farmers of those different communities in defeating this bill.

The Senator from Virginia speaks exactly as if there was nobody concerned about its defeat but the farmers. Of course, I consider the farmer an individual of sufficient importance to render his class view about any matter of public policy a thing of no little significance, but it so happens that the practically unanimous opposition of the farmers who supply Washington with fresh vegetable produce every day has been fortified to begin with by the expert conclusion arrived at by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Mind you, that commission thinks that this market site ought to be located somewhere north of Pennsylvania Avenue, and not down on the water front, which is the location of the southwest site.

Then the United States Bureau of Efficiency too has made a special study of the whole situation and has brought in a report in which it reaches the conclusion that the farmers' produce market for the city of Washington should not be located south of Pennsylvania Avenue for the reasons that it gives. I ask Members of the Senate to listen to those reasons because it seems to me almost inconceivable that the Senate, in the face of such an accumulation of good reasons as they are, would support this bill. The United States Bureau of Efficiency says that the farmers' market should not be located south of Pennsylvania Avenue—

Because every farmer coming into the city from the north and west would have to go through the down-town congested zone of the city.

Because the Federal development of the Mall triangle will further add to the congestion of the so-called down-town congested zone.

Because there are only four north-and-south highways running through the Mall that would be convenient to southwest sites Nos. 1 and 2, viz, Sixth, Seventh, Twelfth, and Fourteenth Streets.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. President, we have heard from the friends of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in this controversy. I should like to hear some Senator say something about why the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. should be favored in this matter.

Mr. BRUCE. In due time, I suppose, the Senator will hear that from the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. GLASS. Why does the Senator suppose that? Why should he suppose that?

Mr. BRUCE. Why should I suppose that?

Mr. GLASS. Yes.

Mr. BRUCE. Because——

Mr. GLASS. I have said to the Senator that I have had no communication direct or indirect from the officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.; in fact, I learned from the two Senators from Maryland that railroad interests were involved in this discussion.

Mr. BRUCE. But there are all sorts of oblique ways in which information can get to a Senator without his having any direct or indirect contact with a railroad.

Mr. GLASS. The Senator thinks, then, I am too simple to know when I am being approached and when I am not? Is that the idea?

Mr. BRUCE. Oh, no; I do not think anybody would ever accuse the Senator of simple-mindedness. His enemies might accuse him of almost anything else except simple-mindedness.

The United States Bureau of Efficiency goes on to say that another reason why the farmers' market should not be located south of Pennsylvania Avenue is—

5. Because it is impossible to extend either Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, or Thirteenth Streets through the Mall on account of existing public buildings or projected ones.

Again:

6. Because the Federal building program for the Mall triangle will undoubtedly necessitate the changing of existing car tracks and the rerouting of all street-car lines traversing this area.

I ask Senators to listen to these reasons. It seems to me that every one of them has a world of force in it.

7. Because four-fifths of the entire population of the District of Columbia live north of Pennsylvania Avenue.

8. Because more than nine-tenths of the hotels and boarding houses, more than four-fifths of the restaurants and lunch rooms, and more than three-fourths of the retail grocery stores are located north of Pennsylvania Avenue.

9. Because the future expansion of the city—in population and in the number of hotels and boarding houses, restaurants and lunch rooms, and retail grocery stores—will in a large measure be north of Pennsylvania Avenue.

10. Because at least 20 per cent of the business of the farmers' produce market is a retail business, which in a large measure would be lost to the farmers if the market is located in southwest Washington. This retail business amounts to more than $600,000 per year.

11. Because it would send through the Mall triangle and the Mall a lot of the objectionable traffic.

12. Because the southwest area lacks in street-car facilities as compared with other sections of the city.

I call the attention of the Senator from Montana to the fact that those reasons are not reasons urged by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad or any interested agency; they are reasons given by no less an authority than the United States Bureau of Efficiency, after a sedulous comparison of different suggested market sites.

The fact is also brought out in the testimony that, in addition to the preference of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the United States Bureau of Efficiency for a site for the farmers' market north of Pennsylvania Avenue, not less than 55 of the civic organizations of the city of Washington have expressed the same preference, and the testimony also shows that not less than 85 per cent of all the commission merchants in the city of Washington entertain that preference. In other words, reversely speaking, 55 civic associations and 85 per cent of the commission merchants in Washington are opposed to the southwest site for the farmers' market.

At first blush, it would seem to be a matter of some importance for a farmers' market site to be located on the Potomac water front, but under existing trade and transportation conditions that is a totally negligible consideration. No produce worth talking about is brought up the Potomac River except by steamboats, and that is distributed directly from the wharves of the steamboat line or lines after it reaches the city of Washington to points in or outside of the city of Washington. Even fish are no longer brought to the southwest site by way of the Potomac River except to a small extent.

It is not at all an uncommon thing for a fish market in a great city at the present time to be wholly detached from any other markets in such a city. That is true in Baltimore. We have a fish market there, and it is totally disconnected from any of the other markets of that city.

Fish are now transported mainly in refrigerator cars. I had something to say on this subject last spring, and in the course of my remarks I used these words:

> Besides, some of the Members of the Senate are doubtlessly aware of the fact that, after all, only a small percentage of the fish that are consumed in the city of Washington are brought up the Potomac River. Fish are mainly brought to Washington in refrigerator cars, some from the Chesapeake Bay and its tributary streams, some from points still farther south, some from the West, some from the Great Lakes, and some from waters as far north as Maine. So, as far as I can see, there are no countervailing considerations to offset the considerations that so definitely, so persuasively, so conclusively point to some location north of Pennsylvania Avenue as the proper location for the new farmers' produce market. There it should be—there, where the geographical center of Washington is; there, where the center of population of Washington is; there, where the great mass of the population of Washington is; there, where a still greater mass of population will be as the future of the city unfolds; there, where the commission merchants are ready to go; there, where the farmers are ready to go; there, where the hotels and the boarding houses, the restaurants and lunch rooms, the retail grocery stores, and the individual patrons of markets already are in great numbers; and there, where in process of time they will be in still greater numbers.

So no importance really attaches to this southwest site because of the fact that it is on the Potomac River, whereas by virtue of its remoteness it is subject to drawbacks to which a market site north of Pennsylvania Avenue would not be subject.

It seems to me that the Senator from Virginia was just a little too—I will not use the word "dogmatic"—just a little too positive in his statement that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia have given their approval to this bill. At one time, before there had been, as I understand the case, any exhaustive discussion——

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, will my colleague yield for a moment?

Mr. BRUCE. Yes.

Mr. TYDINGS. I have on my desk a letter from the District Commissioners saying that they are not in favor of the bill, which I will put in the RECORD to-morrow morning.

Mr. GLASS. I have on my desk a letter from the District Commissioners saying that they are in favor of this site, which I will put in the RECORD to-morrow morning.

Mr. TYDINGS. What is the date of the Senator's letter?

Mr. GLASS. It does not make any difference what the date of it is. If the Senator has prevailed upon the District Commissioners to change their minds about this matter, that does not interest me the least bit in the world.

Mr. TYDINGS. If I had not been able to prevail upon them, I suppose it would interest the Senator.

Mr. BRUCE. The date of the letter to the Senator from Virginia must be quite stale, I should say from my information on the subject. The only way in which I can reconcile those conflicting conclusions of the commissioners is by recalling a story that I used to hear when I was a boy.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. President, does the letter received by the junior Senator from Maryland from the District Commissioners state what site they are in favor of?

Mr. TYDINGS. The letter I have received from the District Commissioners says they are not in favor of any site because proper study has not been made. Therefore, they are not for the Senator's site, and recommend that proper study be made before any appropriation is made.

Mr. GLASS. We have been studying it for only two years.

Mr. TYDINGS. The Senator has; but all the departments of the Government have considered it previously, and not one connected with the Federal Government is in favor of it.

Mr. GLASS. I deny that proposition. It is not a fact.

Mr. BRUCE. Mr. President, all we want is a careful survey of the whole situation by the District Commissioners, and we are perfectly willing, I think I can say for my colleague, as well as myself, to abide by whatever conclusion they may reach; but I am bound to say that after the National Park and Planning Commission and the United States Bureau of Efficiency have reached a conclusion unfriendly to the selection of the southwest site, I harbor no doubt that when a close comparison is made of the different sites brought to their attention the District Commissioners will recommend some site north of Pennsylvania Avenue.

I could go much more fully into this subject than I have, but I do not deem it necessary to do so. There is no substantial reason that I can see why this market site should be placed away down there on the Potomac River in the southwest part of the city, a mile or a mile and a half, I believe, south of Pennsylvania Avenue, instead of being located in the heart of the city. I might say, if my colleague is not in a position to correct me, that these produce farmers have shown how perfectly natural their inclination is to have this market site located north of Pennsylvania Avenue by recently assembling each day for the purpose of marketing their produce up at Convention Hall, north of Pennsylvania Avenue. Of their own volition, finding that they were ousted from the old site where they had carried on their business, they have selected Convention Hall, north of Pennsylvania Avenue, as a market site.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I hope the Senator will finish developing what he was just bringing out; but I rose to make this statement: As I see it, the only constitutional ground upon which an appropriation of this kind could be made, if at all, would be for a market that served the people; and therefore, if it were a wholesale market, I question whether or not within the limits of the Constitution we would be justified in making an appropriation practically for private purposes.

I hope the Senator before he takes his seat, if he sees fit, will develop that idea somewhat.

Mr. BRUCE. Mr. President, I feel that our footing as respects public expediency is so solid that it is unnecessary for me to resort to any constitutional arguments.

So, Senators, you see what this question comes around to. So far as my knowledge of the situation goes, here on the one hand you have the desire of a great railroad company, which uses the Potomac yards over at Alexandria, and has terminals in the city of Washington, to have this market site down on the Potomac River, at a point that is doubtless convenient to it; and that desire of the Pennsylvania Railroad is, naturally enough, shared by the different southern roads which are affiliated in one way or another with it, such as the Southern Railway, the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, the Seaboard Air Line, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Chesapeake & Ohio, and so on. On the other hand you have these farmers, about whom I have heard so much since I have been a Member of this body—these farmers as to whom there has been so much professed eagerness on the part of the Senate to promote their peculiar interests. They come here in a solid phalanx, with almost complete unanimity, and say that any site south of Pennsylvania Avenue would be in the highest degree inconvenient to them. Most of them come from the north or the northeast; and they would have to traverse practically the whole city of Washington before they could get down to the southwest site that the Senator from Virginia, for some reason or other—I do not know what—is so very warmly and effectively advocating.

Mr. GLASS. Because the Pennsylvania Railroad wants it?

Mr. BRUCE. Well, I do not like to say that after the Senator says that he has had no communication with the Pennsylvania Railroad. I always accept his statements on any subject as true.

It is practically the unanimous desire of these farmers that the site should be located north of Pennsylvania Avenue; and this predelection harmonizes completely not only with the views of 85 per cent of all the commission merchants, and of 55 civic organizations in Washington, but with the views of the hotel, boarding house, and lodging house, club, restaurant, and lunchroom proprietors in Washington, and likewise, I venture to say, with the views of every resident of Washington who lives anywhere near the center of the city. As I recollect, practically the only other interest besides the railroad interest that brought pressure to bear in behalf of this bill was a trust company near the southwest site, which, of course, is desirous of adding, as far as possible, to the number of its safe-deposit box leasers, and so forth.

That is the case as I see it. I know I have presented it in but a desultory and feeble manner; but I believe that I have at least covered all the salient considerations that are involved in the issue between ourselves and the Senator from Virginia.

BATTLE FIELDS NEAR RICHMOND, VA.

Mr. BINGHAM. Out of order, I ask unanimous consent to report back favorably, from the Committee on Military Affairs, Senate bill 5864, to provide for the study, investigation, and survey, for commemorative purposes of battle fields in the vicinity of Richmond, Va.; and I submit a report (No. 1921) thereon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the report will be received.

Mr. SWANSON. Mr. President, this is a bill authorizing an appropriation of $6,800 to make a survey of the battle fields around Richmond. A similar bill is on the calendar in the House; and I want to have this bill passed so that it can pass the House at this session. It does not contemplate the establishment of a park by the Government. All the land is to be given by an association that is anxious to give it to the Government. All that is desired is to have the Government make a survey of the important battle fields where the various generals and soldiers fought.

I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill.

Mr. GLASS. I shall not object if it does not lead to debate.

Mr. SWANSON. If it leads to any debate I shall withdraw it at once.

Mr. CURTIS. I will ask the Senator if the bill is recommended by the department?

Mr. SWANSON. It is recommended by the department. It has been amended as the department recommended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill? The Chair hears none.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (S. 5864) to provide for the study, investigation, and survey, for commemorative purposes, of battle fields in the vicinity of Richmond, Va., which was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to have made studies, investigations, and surveys of the battle fields in the vicinity of Richmond, in the Commonwealth of Virginia, including the battle field of Cold Harbor, Va., for the purpose of preparing and submitting to Congress a general plan and such detailed project as may be required for properly commemorating such battle fields and other adjacent points of historical and military interest, in accordance with the classification set forth in House Report No. 1071, Sixty-ninth Congress, first session.

SEC. 2. To enable the Secretary of War to carry out the provisions of this act, including the payment of mileage of officers of the Army and actual expenses of civilian employees traveling on duty in connection with the studies, investigations, and surveys, there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $6,800, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended for the purposes of this act.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, does the Senator from Virginia desire to proceed further with the market bill this evening?

Mr. GLASS. No, Mr. President.

Mr. CURTIS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After 25 minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened.

SLAVERY CONVENTION SIGNED AT GENEVA ON SEPTEMBER 25, 1926

In executive session this day, the following convention was ratified and, on motion of Mr. BORAH, the injunction of secrecy was removed therefrom and from the resolution agreed to in connection therewith:

To the Senate:

To the end that I may receive the advice and consent of the Senate to accession by this Government, I transmit herewith a certified copy of the slavery convention signed at Geneva on September 25, 1926.

I further transmit for the information of the Senate a report from the Secretary of State recommending that the slavery convention be acceded to by this Government.

I concur in the recommendation made by the Secretary of State.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

THE WHITE HOUSE, May 22, 1928.

The PRESIDENT:

The undersigned, the Secretary of State, has the honor to lay before the President, with a view to its transmission to the Senate to receive the advice and consent of that body to accession by this Government, if his judgment approve thereof, a certified copy of the slavery convention signed at Geneva on September 25, 1926.

There are 36 signatories to the slavery convention which has been ratified or acceded to by Australia, Austria, Belgium, the British Empire, Bulgaria, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, Haiti, Hungary, India, Latvia, Monaco, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Portugal, Spain, South Africa, Sweden, and the Sudan.

The convention was not signed on behalf of the United States. On May 19, 1927, however, the secretary general of the League of Nations addressed a note to the Government of the United States in accordance with article 11 of the convention which provides that the secretary general shall bring the convention to the notice of States which have not signed it, including States which are not members of the League of Nations, and invite them to accede thereto.

In article 11 of the convention signed at St. Germain en Laye on September 10, 1919, revising the general act of Berlin of February 26, 1885, and the general act and declaration of Brussels of July 2, 1890, the contracting parties agreed that they would endeavor to secure the complete suppression of slavery in all its forms and of the slave trade by land and sea. The United States is a party to the general act of Brussels of July 2, 1890, for the repression of the African slave trade and is a signatory of but has not ratified the revising convention of September 10, 1919.

The purpose of the convention herewith submitted is to find a means for giving practical effect throughout the world to the intention of the contracting parties to suppress the slave trade and slavery as expressed in respect of certain territories in Africa in the international acts of earlier date. It embraces an undertaking on their part to take appropriate measures in their respective territories to carry out this intention and likewise to take all necessary measures to prevent compulsory or enforced labor from developing into conditions analogous to slavery.

By a provision in article 3 the high contracting parties undertake to negotiate as soon as possible a general convention with regard to the slave trade, which will give them rights and impose upon them duties of the same nature as those provided for in certain articles of the convention for the supervision of the international trade in arms and ammunition and in implements of war, signed at Geneva on June 17, 1925. The latter convention was submitted to the Senate by the President on January 12, 1926, with a view to receiving the advice and consent of that body to ratification, but has not yet been acted upon by the Senate.

Articles 7, 10, 11, and 12 of the slavery convention contain certain references to the League of Nations. Under article 7, the parties to the convention undertake to communicate to the secretary general of the League of Nations any laws and regulations which they may enact with a view to the application of the provisions of the convention. Article 10 provides that notices of denunciation of the convention shall be given in writing to the secretary general of the League of Nations, who will communicate certified copies to other parties. Article 11 provides that States desiring to accede to the convention shall transmit their instruments of accession to the secretary general, that they shall be deposited in the archives of the league, and that the secretary general shall transmit certified copies to the other parties to the convention. Article 12 provides that instruments of ratification of the convention shall be deposited in the office of the secretary general. As the functions exercised by the secretary general of the League of Nations under these articles are merely those of a depository and of a transmitting agency, it is not considered that it would be necessary that accession to the convention by the United States be made subject to a reservation indicating the position of this Government with respect to the league. If, however, the Senate should consider that a reservation on this point is desirable one might be made.

Considering that the purposes sought to be attained by the slavery convention are in accord with modern thought and humane measures taken by civilized peoples with a view to the suppression of slavery and conditions analogous to slavery, it is believed that the United States should cooperate with other powers in the effort to eradicate these evils throughout the world, and that its cooperation might well be expressed through accession to the convention. Accordingly, it is recommended that, if this course meets with approval, the Senate be requested to take suitable action advising and consenting to accession on the part of the United States to the slavery convention of September 25, 1926.

Respectfully submitted.

FRANK B. KELLOGG.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, May 22, 1928.

SLAVERY CONVENTION

Albania, Germany, Austria, Belgium, the British Empire, Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Union of South Africa, the Dominion of New Zealand, and India, Bulgaria, China, Colombia, Cuba, Denmark, Spain, Estonia, Abyssinia, Finland, France, Greece, Italy, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, Norway, Panama, the Netherlands, Persia, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Uruguay,

Whereas the signatories of the General Act of the Brussels Conference of 1889–90 declared that they were equally animated by the firm intention of putting an end to the traffic in African slaves;

Whereas the signatories of the Convention of Saint-Germain-en-Laye of 1919 to revise the General Act of Berlin of 1885 and the General Act and Declaration of Brussels of 1890 affirmed their intention of securing the complete suppression of slavery in all its forms and of the slave trade by land and sea;

Taking into consideration the report of the Temporary Slavery Commission appointed by the Council of the League of Nations on June 12th, 1924;

Desiring to complete and extend the work accomplished under the Brussels Act and to find a means of giving practical effect throughout the world to such intentions as were expressed in regard to slave trade and slavery by the signatories of the Convention of Saint-Germain-en-Laye, and recognising that it is necessary to conclude to that end more detailed arrangements than are contained in that Convention;

Considering, moreover, that it is necessary to prevent forced labor from developing into conditions analogous to slavery,

Have decided to conclude a Convention and have accordingly appointed as their Plenipotentiaries:

THE PRESIDENT OF THE SUPREME COUNCIL OF ALBANIA:
Dr. D. Dino, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to his Majesty the King of Italy.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE GERMAN REICH:
Dr. Carl von Schubert, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE FEDERAL AUSTRIAN REPUBLIC:
M. Emerich von Pflügl, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, Representative of the Federal Government accredited to the League of Nations.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF THE BELGIANS:
M. L. de Brouckère, Member of the Senate, First Delegate of Belgium to the Seventh Ordinary Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND AND OF THE BRITISH DOMINIONS BEYOND THE SEAS, EMPEROR OF INDIA:
The Right Honorable Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, K. C., Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

FOR THE DOMINION OF CANADA:
The Right Honorable Sir George E. Foster, G. C. M. G., P. C., L. L. D., Senator, Member of the King's Privy Council for Canada.

FOR THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA:
The Honorable J. G. Latham, C. M. G., K. C., M. P., Attorney-General of the Commonwealth.

FOR THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA:
Mr. Jacobus Stephanus Smit, High Commissioner of the Union in London.

FOR THE DOMINION OF NEW ZEALAND:
The Honorable Sir James Parr, K. C. M. G., High Commissioner in London.

AND FOR INDIA:
Sir William Henry Hoare Vincent, G. C. I. E., K. C. S. I., Member of the Council of the Secretary of State for India, former Member of the Executive Council of the Governor-General of India.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF THE BULGARIANS:
M. D. Mikoff, Chargé d'Affaires at Berne, Permanent representative of the Bulgarian Government accredited to the League of Nations.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF THE CHINESE REPUBLIC:
M. Chao-Hsin Chu, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Rome.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF COLOMBIA:
Dr. Francisco José Urrutia, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Swiss Federal Council, Representative of Colombia on the Council of the League of Nations.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF CUBA:
M. A. de Agüero y Bethancourt, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the President of the German Reich and to the President of the Austrian Federal Republic.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF DENMARK AND ICELAND:
M. Herluf Zahle, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the President of the German Reich.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF SPAIN:
M. M. Lopez Roberts, Marquis de la Torrehermosa, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Swiss Federal Council.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE ESTONIAN REPUBLIC:
General Johan Laidoner, Member of Parliament, President of the Committee for Foreign Affairs and National Defense.

HER MAJESTY THE EMPRESS AND QUEEN OF THE KINGS OF ABYSSINIA AND HIS IMPERIAL AND ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE REGENT AND HEIR TO THE THRONE:
Dedjazmatch Guetatchou, Minister of the Interior;
Lidj Makonnen Endelkatchou;
Kentiba Gebrou;
Ato Tasfae, Secretary of the Imperial League of Nations Department at Addis-Abeba.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF FINLAND:
M. Rafael W. Erich, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Swiss Federal Council, Permanent Delegate of Finland accredited to the League of Nations.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH REPUBLIC:
Count B. Clauzel, Minister Plenipotentiary, Head of the French League of Nations Department.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE HELLENIC REPUBLIC:
M. D. Caclamanos, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to His Britannic Majesty.
M. V. Dendramis, Chargé d'Affaires at Berne, Permanent Delegate accredited to the League of Nations.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF ITALY:
Professor Vittorio Scialoja, Minister of State, Senator, Representative of Italy on the Council of the League of Nations.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF LATVIA:
M. Charles Duzmans, Permanent Representative accredited to the League of Nations.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF LIBERIA:
Baron Rodolphe A. Lehmann, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the President of the French Republic, Permanent Delegate accredited to the League of Nations.

PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF LITHUANIA:
M. V. Sidzikauskas, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the President of the German Reich.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF NORWAY:
Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, Professor at the University of Oslo.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF PANAMA:
Dr. Eusebio A. Morales, Professor of Law at the Panama National Faculty, Finance Minister.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN OF THE NETHERLANDS:
Jonkheer W. F. van Lennep, Chargé d'Affaires a. i. of the Netherlands at Berne.

HIS MAJESTY THE EMPEROR OF PERSIA:
His Highness Prince Arfa, Ambassador, Delegate of Persia accredited to the League of Nations.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE POLISH REPUBLIC:
M. Auguste Zaleski, Minister for Foreign Affairs.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF PORTUGAL:
Dr. A. de Vasconcellos, Minister Plenipotentiary, in charge of the League of Nations Department at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF RUMANIA:
M. N. Titulesco, Professor at the University of Bucharest, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to His Britannic Majesty, Representative of Rumania on the Council of the League of Nations.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF THE SERBS, CROATS AND SLOVENES:
Dr. M. Jovanovitch, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Swiss Federal Council, Permanent Delegate accredited to the League of Nations.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING OF SWEDEN:
M. Einar Hennings, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Swiss Federal Council.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE CZECHOSLOVAK REPUBLIC:

M. Ferdinand Veverka, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Swiss Federal Council.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF URUGUAY:

M. B. Fernandez y Medina, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to His Majesty the King of Spain.

Who, having communicated their full powers, have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE 1

For the purpose of the present Convention, the following definitions are agreed upon:

(1) Slavery is the status or condition of a person over whom any or all of the powers attaching to the right of ownership are exercised.

(2) The slave trade includes all acts involved in the capture, acquisition or disposal of a person with intent to reduce him to slavery; all acts involved in the acquisition of a slave with a view to selling or exchanging him; all acts of disposal by sale or exchange of a slave acquired with a view to being sold or exchanged, and, in general, every act of trade or transport in slaves.

ARTICLE 2

The High Contracting Parties undertake, each in respect of the territories placed under its sovereignty, jurisdiction, protection, suzerainty or tutelage, so far as they have not already taken the necessary steps:

(a) To prevent and suppress the slave trade;

(b) To bring about, progressively and as soon as possible, the complete abolition of slavery in all its forms.

ARTICLE 3

The High Contracting Parties undertake to adopt all appropriate measures with a view to preventing and suppressing the embarkation, disembarkation and transport of slaves in their territorial waters and upon all vessels flying their respective flags.

The High Contracting Parties undertake to negotiate as soon as possible a general Convention with regard to the slave trade which will give them rights and impose upon them duties of the same nature as those provided for in the Convention of June 17th, 1925, relative to the International Trade in Arms (Articles 12, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, and paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of Section II of Annex II), with the necessary adaptations, it being understood that this general Convention will not place the ships (even of small tonnage) of any High Contracting Parties in a position different from that of the other High Contracting Parties.

It is also understood that, before or after the coming into force of this general Convention, the High Contracting Parties are entirely free to conclude between themselves, without, however, derogating from the principles laid down in the preceding paragraph, such special agreements as, by reason of their peculiar situation, might appear to be suitable in order to bring about as soon as possible the complete disappearance of the slave trade.

ARTICLE 4

The High Contracting Parties shall give to one another every assistance with the object of securing the abolition of slavery and the slave trade.

ARTICLE 5

The High Contracting Parties recognise that recourse to compulsory or forced labor may have grave consequences and undertake, each in respect of the territories placed under its sovereignty, jurisdiction, protection, suzerainty or tutelage, to take all necessary measures to prevent compulsory or forced labor from developing into conditions analogous to slavery.

It is agreed that:

(1) Subject to the transitional provisions laid down in paragraph (2) below, compulsory or forced labor may only be exacted for public purposes.

(2) In territories in which compulsory or forced labor for other than public purposes still survives, the High Contracting Parties shall endeavor progressively and as soon as possible to put an end to the practice. So long as such forced or compulsory labor exists, this labor shall invariably be of an exceptional character, shall always receive adequate remuneration, and shall not involve the removal of the laborers from their usual place of residence.

(3) In all cases, the responsibility for any recourse to compulsory or forced labor shall rest with the competent central authorities of the territory concerned.

ARTICLE 6

Those of the High Contracting Parties whose laws do not at present make adequate provision for the punishment of infractions of laws and regulations enacted with a view to giving effect to the purposes of the present Convention undertake to adopt the necessary measures in order that severe penalties may be imposed in respect of such infractions.

ARTICLE 7

The High Contracting Parties undertake to communicate to each other and to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations any laws and regulations which they may enact with a view to the application of the provisions of the present Convention.

ARTICLE 8

The High Contracting Parties agree that disputes arising between them relating to the interpretation or application of this Convention shall, if they can not be settled by direct negotiation, be referred for decision to the Permanent Court of International Justice. In case either or both of the States Parties to such a dispute should not be parties to the Protocol of December 16th, 1920, relating to the Permanent Court of International Justice, the dispute shall be referred, at the choice of the Parties and in accordance with the constitutional procedure of each State, either to the Permanent Court of International Justice or to a court of arbitration constituted in accordance with the Convention of October 18th, 1907, for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, or to some other court of arbitration.

ARTICLE 9

At the time of signature or of ratification or of accession, any High Contracting Party may declare that its acceptance of the present Convention does not bind some or all of the territories placed under its sovereignty, jurisdiction, protection, suzerainty or tutelage in respect of all or any provisions of the Convention; it may subsequently accede separately on behalf of any one of them or in respect of any provision to which any one of them is not a party.

ARTICLE 10

In the event of a High Contracting Party wishing to denounce the present Convention, the denunciation shall be notified in writing to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, who will at once communicate a certified true copy of the notification to all the other High Contracting Parties, informing them of the date on which it was received.

The denunciation shall only have effect in regard to the notifying State, and one year after the notification has reached the Secretary-General of the League of Nations.

Denunciation may also be made separately in respect of any territory placed under its sovereignty, jurisdiction, protection, suzerainty or tutelage.

ARTICLE 11

The present Convention, which will bear this day's date and of which the French and English texts are both authentic, will remain open for signature by the States Members of the League of Nations until April 1st, 1927.

The Secretary-General of the League of Nations will subsequently bring the present Convention to the notice of States which have not signed it, including States which are not Members of the League of Nations, and invite them to accede thereto.

A State desiring to accede to the Convention shall notify its intention in writing to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations and transmit to him the instrument of accession, which shall be deposited in the archives of the League.

The Secretary-General shall immediately transmit to all the other High Contracting Parties a certified true copy of the notification and of the instrument of accession, informing them of the date on which he received them.

ARTICLE 12

The present Convention will be ratified and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited in the office of the Secretary-General of the League of Nations. The Secretary-General will inform all the High Contracting Parties of such deposit.

The Convention will come into operation for each State on the date of the deposit of its ratification or of its accession.

In faith whereof the Plenipotentiaries have signed the present Convention.

DONE at Geneva the twenty-fifth day of September, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, in one copy, which will be deposited in the archives of the League of Nations. A certified copy shall be forwarded to each signatory State.

ALBANIA	D. DINO
GERMANY	DR. CARL VON SCHUBERT
AUSTRIA	EMERICH PFLÜGL
BELGIUM	L. DE BROUCKERE

BRITISH EMPIRE	I declare that my signature does not bind India or any British Dominion which is a separate member of the League of Nations and does not separately sign or accede to the Convention. CECIL
CANADA	GEORGE EULAS FOSTER
AUSTRALIA	J. G. LATHAM
UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA	J. S. SMIT
NEW ZEALAND	J. C. PARR
INDIA	Under the terms of Article 9 of this Convention I declare that my signature is not binding as regards the enforcement of the provisions of Article 2, sub-section (b), Articles 5, 6 and 7 of this Convention upon the following territories; namely, in Burma: the Naga tracts lying West and South of the Hukawng Valley, bounded on the North and West by the Assam Boundary, on the East by the Nanphuk River and on the South by the Singaling Hkamti and the Somra Tracts; in Assam, the Sadiya and Balipara Frontier Tracts, the tribal area to the East of the Naga Hills District, up to the Burma boundary, and a small tract in the South of the Lushai Hills District; nor on the territories in India of any Prince or Chief under the suzerainty of His Majesty. I also declare that my signature to the Convention is not binding in respect of Article 3 in so far as that Article may require India to enter into any Convention whereby vessels, by reason of the fact that they are owned, fitted out or commanded by Indians, or of the fact that one-half of the crew is Indian, are classified as native vessels, or are denied any privilege, right or immunity enjoyed by similar vessels of other States Signatories of the Covenant or are made subject to any liability or disability to which similar ships of such other States are not subject. W. H. VINCENT
BULGARIA	D. MIKOFF
CHINA	CHAO-HSIN CHU
COLOMBIA	FRANCISCO JOSÉ URRUTIA
CUBA	ARISTIDES DE AGÜERO BETHANCOURT
DENMARK	HERLUF ZAHLE
SPAIN	For Spain and the Spanish Colonies, with the exception of the Spanish Protectorate of Morocco. MAURICIO LOPEZ ROBERTS MARQUIS DE LA TORREHERMOSA
ESTONIA	J. LAIDONER
ABYSSINIA	GUETATCHOU MAKONNEN KENTIBA GERBROU ATO TASFAE
FINLAND	RAFAEL ERICH
FRANCE	B. CLAUZEL
GREECE	D. CACLAMANOS V. DENDRAMIS
ITALY	VITTORIO SCIALOJA
LATVIA	CHARLES DUZMANS
LIBERIA	Subject to ratification by the Liberian Senate. BARON R. LEHMANN
LITHUANIA	VENCESLAS SIDZIKAUSKAS
NORWAY	FRIDTJOF NANSEN
PANAMA	EUSEBIO A. MORALES
NETHERLANDS	W. F. VAN LENNEP
PERSIA	Ad referendum and interpreting Article 3 as without power to compel Persia to bind herself by any arrangement or convention which would place her ships of whatever tonnage in the category of native vessels provided for by the Convention on the Trade in Arms. PRINCE ARFA
POLAND	AUGUSTE ZALESKI
PORTUGAL	AUGUSTO DE VASCONCELLO
RUMANIA	N. TITULESCO
KINGDOM OF THE SERBS, CROATS AND SLOVENES	M. JOVANOVITCH
SWEDEN	EINAR HENNINGS
CZECHOSLOVAKIA	FERDINAND VEVERKA
URUGUAY	B. FERNANDEZ Y MEDINA

Resolved (two-thirds of the Senators present concurring therein), That the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of Executive O, Seventieth Congress, first session, a convention to suppress the slave trade and slavery, signed at Geneva on September 25, 1926, subject to the following reservation:

That the Government of the United States, adhering to its policy of opposition to forced or compulsory labor except as a punishment for crime, of which the person concerned has been duly convicted, adheres to the convention except as to the first subdivision of the second paragraph of Article V, which reads as follows:

(1) Subject to the transitional provisions laid down in paragraph (2) below compulsory or forced labor may only be exacted for public purposes.

RECESS

Mr. CURTIS. In accordance with the order heretofore entered, I move that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock p. m.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 5 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess, the recess being, under the order previously entered, until 8 o'clock p. m.

EVENING SESSION

The Senate reassembled at 8 o'clock p. m., on the expiration of a recess.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FESS in the chair). The Senate will receive a message from the House of Representatives.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Farrell, its enrolling clerk, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 15655) to provide for the study, investigation, and survey, for commemorative purposes, of battle fields in the vicinity of Richmond, Va., in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolutions of the Senate:

S. 2068. An act for the relief of certain officers of the Dental Corps of the United States Navy;

S. 2206. An act to amend section 260 of the Judicial Code, as amended;

S. 3198. An act to amend the act of March 3, 1915, granting double pension for disability from aviation duty, Navy or Marine Corps, by inserting the word "Army," so as to read: "Army, Navy, and Marine Corps";

S. 3590. An act to amend section 110 of the Judicial Code;

S. 3770. An act authorizing the Federal Power Commission to issue permits and licenses on Fort Apache and White Mountain Indian Reservations, Ariz.;

S. 4063. An act to amend certain sections of the teachers' salary act, approved June 4, 1924, and for other purposes;

S. 4087. An act authorizing the use of certain land owned by the United States in the District of Columbia for street purposes;

S. 4125. An act to amend chapter 15 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, and for other purposes;

S. 4451. An act to amend the act entitled "An act authorizing Roy Clippinger, Ulys Pyle, Edgar Leathers, Groves K. Flescher, Carmen Flescher, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Wabash River at or near McGregors Ferry in White County, Ill," approved May 1, 1928;

S. 4691. An act to extend the provisions of section 18a of an act approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), to certain lands in Utah, and for other purposes;

S. 4981. An act to include in the credit for time served allowed substitute clerks in first and second class post offices and letter carriers in the City Delivery Service time served as special-delivery messengers;

S. 5014. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue to the city of Bozeman, Mont., a patent to certain public lands;

S. 5073. An act to amend the act of Congress of June 26, 1906, entitled "An act for the protection of the fisheries of Alaska, and for other purposes";

S. 5181. An act to amend section 4 of the act of June 15, 1917 (40 Stat. 224; sec. 241, title 22, U. S. C.);

S. 5193. An act to authorize the President of the United States to appoint an additional judge of the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of the State of Pennsylvania;

S. 5621. An act to repeal paragraphs 127 and 128 of the act entitled "An act to discontinue certain reports now required by law to be made to Congress," approved May 29, 1928;

S. J. Res. 111. Joint resolution authorizing the acceptance of title to certain lands in the counties of Benton and Walla Walla, Wash., adjacent to the Columbia River bird refuge in said State established in accordance with the authority contained in Executive Order No. 4501, dated August 28, 1926; and

S. J. Res. 206. Joint resolution to authorize the President of the United States to appoint a Yellowstone National Park Boundary Commission to inspect the areas involved in the proposed adjustment of the southeast, south, and southwest boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park.

APPORTIONMENT OF REPRESENTATIVES

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In accordance with the unanimous-consent agreement previously entered into, the Chair lays before the Senate House bill 11725, the business of the evening session.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 11725) for the apportionment of Representatives in Congress.

Mr. STEPHENS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll and the following Senators answered to their names:

Barkley	Dale	Johnson	Stephens
Bayard	Dill	Jones	Thomas, Idaho
Bingham	Edwards	Norris	Trammell
Black	Fess	Phipps	Vandenberg
Blaine	Frazier	Pine	Wagner
Blease	George	Robinson, Ind.	Walsh, Mass.
Bratton	Glass	Schall	Warren
Caraway	Goff	Sheppard	Waterman
Copeland	Hayden	Smith	Watson
Curtis	Heflin	Steck

Mr. SCHALL. I wish to announce that my colleague [Mr. SHIPSTEAD] is very ill with the flu and is detained from the Senate for that reason.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Thirty-nine Senators having answered to their names, a quorum is not present. The clerk will call the names of the absentees.

The legislative clerk called the names of the absent Senators.

Mr. BROUSSARD, Mr. COUZENS, Mr. GOULD, Mr. HASTINGS, Mr. MCMASTER, Mr. NEELY, and Mr. STEIWER entered the Chamber and answered to their names.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, under subdivision 3 of Rule V, I move that the Senate direct the Sergeant at Arms to request the attendance of absent Senators.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, that order will be made.

Mr. BLACK. I move, as a substitute, that the Senate take a recess until to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will declare the motion of the Senator from Alabama out of order, because no motion other than a motion to adjourn is in order until a quorum shall have appeared.

Mr. BLACK. Then, I move, as a substitute, that the Senate adjourn until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, there is already a unanimous-consent agreement that when the Senate concludes its work to-day it shall recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A motion to adjourn is always in order.

Mr. CURTIS. Not in the face of a unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. If the Senate should adjourn and the unanimous-consent order already having been registered when there was a quorum present that we would take a recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow, I rather think that the motion to adjourn would have the effect of winding up the business of the night and we would meet under the agreement to take a recess in the morning. That would be the effect of it.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, in view of the unanimous-consent agreement, a motion to take a recess is in order.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, we have already adopted an order that, beginning to-morrow, the Senate will meet at the hour of 11 o'clock.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate has agreed to recess until to-morrow at 11 o'clock at the conclusion of its business to-day.

Mr. HEFLIN. But prior to that agreement I understand that we had agreed that, beginning to-morrow, the Senate would meet at 11 o'clock, and the order to-day was that when the Senate recessed it would recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow; so that there are two orders to that effect.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, the unanimous-consent agreement, as I recall it, provides that when the Senate concludes its business to-night it shall recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California is correct.

Mr. JOHNSON. Very well. Now a motion to adjourn can not abrogate in that fashion the unanimous-consent agreement. I submit, therefore, that the motion to adjourn is not in order.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will rule that a motion to adjourn, or under the unanimous-consent agreement, a motion to take a recess is in order. Without objection, the order will be made directing the Sergeant at Arms to request the presence of absent Senators.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All debate is out of order until a quorum shall have been developed.

Mr. CARAWAY. What if we shall never develop a quorum?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. At 11 o'clock p. m. then, the Senate will take a recess.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, I move that the Senate take a recess until 11 o'clock p. m.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair declares that motion to be out of order.

Mr. NORRIS. Then will the Chair tell us how we can quit? [Laughter.]

Mr. BLACK. Does that mean we shall have to remain here until 11 o'clock?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order and will let the Chair read the rule, which is as follows:

2. If, at any time during the daily sessions of the Senate, a question shall be raised by any Senator as to the presence of a quorum, the Presiding Officer shall forthwith direct the Secretary to call the roll and shall announce the result, and these proceedings shall be without debate.

3. Whenever upon such roll call it shall be ascertained that a quorum is not present, a majority of the Senators present may direct the Sergeant-at-Arms to request, and, when necessary, to compel the attendance of the absent Senators, which order shall be determined without debate; and pending its execution, and until a quorum shall be present, no debate nor motion, except to adjourn, shall be in order.

Mr. NORRIS. Then, I move that the Senate adjourn, if that will suit the Chair any better. That is in order according to the Chair's own ruling.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, I do not think so. The Senate by unanimous consent agreed to remain in session from 8 o'clock to 11 o'clock.

Mr. NORRIS. But we did not agree to stay here without a quorum.

Mr. DILL. The Senate agreed to stay here until 11 o'clock.

Mr. HEFLIN. To stay here not later than 11 o'clock.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All debate is out of order.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. President, under similar circumstances, a good many years ago, when the question arose whether less than a quorum could take a recess, the then Presiding Officer, Mr. Hamlin, held that a motion to recess was in order though a quorum was not present. Senators will find that decision on page 503 of Gilfry's Precedents.

Mr. HEFLIN. I make the point of order that since the Chair has ruled that a motion to adjourn is not in order, there is only one other motion in order, and that is the motion to recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow, and such a motion is in keeping with the order already entered by the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will ask the Senator from Kansas again to give the page of the citation which he has made.

Mr. CURTIS. It will be found on page 503 of Gilfry's Precedents, as follows:

APRIL 18, 1864.

On the question of a recess, Vice President Hamlin said: The impression of the Chair is that a less number than a quorum can take a recess.

It has been ordered by unanimous consent that at the conclusion of the business of the Senate to-day a recess shall be taken until 11 o'clock a. m. to-morrow. By reason of this fact, it seems to me that a motion to take a recess is in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has the precedent before him, and upon that basis will hold that a motion to recess is in order.

Mr. SMITH. I move that the Senate take a recess.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, a motion to recess has been made. Does the Chair hold now that it is in order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair holds that a motion to take a recess is in order.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry, Am I entitled to ask for a roll call upon that motion?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair so holds.

Mr. VANDENBERG. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HEFLIN. That motion is that of my colleague [Mr. BLACK] that the Senate take a recess until 11 o'clock.

Mr. BLACK. I made a motion to adjourn before the motion to take a recess was made.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will hold under the rules of the Senate that a motion to take a recess is in order because of the precedent back in 1864. The clerk will call the roll on the motion to take a recess.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BLEASE (when Mr. TYSON's name was called). I wish to announce that the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. TYSON] is absent on account of illness.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BAYARD (after having voted in the affirmative). I have a general pair with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. REED]. In his absence I transfer that pair to the senior Senator from Mississippi [Mr. HARRISON] and allow my vote to stand.

Mr. CURTIS (after having voted in the negative). I have a general pair with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. ROBINSON]. I transfer that pair to the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. GILLETT], and let my vote stand.

The result was announced—yeas 11, nays 31, as follows:

YEAS—11

Barkley	Blaine	Dale	Smith
Bayard	Blease	Glass	Stephens
Black	Bratton	Heflin

NAYS—31

Bingham	George	Phipps	Trammell
Copeland	Goff	Pine	Vandenberg
Couzens	Hastings	Robinson, Ind.	Wagner
Curtis	Hayden	Schall	Walsh, Mass.
Dill	Johnson	Sheppard	Warren
Edwards	Jones	Steck	Waterman
Fess	McMaster	Steiwer	Watson
Frazier	Neely	Thomas, Idaho

NOT VOTING—53

Ashurst	Gould	McNary	Sackett
Borah	Greene	Mayfield	Shipstead
Brookhart	Hale	Metcalf	Shortridge
Broussard	Harris	Moses	Simmons
Bruce	Harrison	Norbeck	Smoot
Burton	Hawes	Norris	Swanson
Capper	Howell	Nye	Thomas, Okla.
Caraway	Kendrick	Oddie	Tydings
Deneen	Keyes	Overman	Tyson
Edge	King	Pittman	Walsh, Mont.
Fletcher	La Follette	Ransdell	Wheeler
Gerry	Larrazolo	Reed, Mo.
Gillett	McKellar	Reed, Pa.
Glenn	McLean	Robinson, Ark.

So the Senate refused to take a recess.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG].

Mr. BLACK. I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. COUZENS. What is the motion, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That the Sergeant at Arms be directed to request the presence of absent Members.

Mr. HEFLIN. Let us have the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. NEELY. What is the question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion to authorize the Sergeant at Arms to request the presence of the absent Members. On that question the yeas and nays have been demanded and ordered. The Secretary will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARREN (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from North Carolina [Mr. OVERMAN]. I transfer that pair to the senior Senator from Vermont [Mr. GREENE], and will vote. I vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BAYARD (after having voted in the affirmative). I have a general pair with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. REED]. He is absent, but I am informed that if he were present he would vote as I have voted. I shall, therefore, let my vote stand.

Mr. CURTIS (after having voted in the affirmative). Making the same announcement as on the previous roll call, I will permit my vote to stand.

Mr. JONES. I desire to announce the following general pairs:

The Senator from Ohio [Mr. BURTON] with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. SIMMONS];

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. MOSES] with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BROUSSARD]; and

The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. LA FOLLETTE] with the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. MCKELLAR].

The result was announced—yeas 44, nays 2, as follows:

YEAS—44

Barkley	Dill	Johnson	Steck
Bayard	Edwards	Jones	Steiwer
Bingham	Fess	McMaster	Stephens
Black	Frazier	Neely	Thomas, Idaho
Blaine	George	Norris	Trammell
Bratton	Glass	Phipps	Vandenberg
Broussard	Goff	Pine	Wagner
Caraway	Gould	Robinson, Ind.	Walsh, Mass.
Copeland	Hastings	Schall	Warren
Couzens	Hayden	Sheppard	Waterman
Curtis	Heflin	Smith	Watson

NAYS—2

Blease	Dale

NOT VOTING—49

Ashurst	Hale	Mayfield	Shipstead
Borah	Harris	Metcalf	Shortridge
Brookhart	Harrison	Moses	Simmons
Bruce	Hawes	Norbeck	Smoot
Burton	Howell	Nye	Swanson
Capper	Kendrick	Oddie	Thomas, Okla.
Deneen	Keyes	Overman	Tydings
Edge	King	Pittman	Tyson
Fletcher	La Follette	Ransdell	Walsh, Mont.
Gerry	Larrazolo	Reed, Mo.	Wheeler
Gillett	McKellar	Reed, Pa.
Glenn	McLean	Robinson, Ark.
Greene	McNary	Sackett

So Mr. VANDENBERG's motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sergeant at Arms is directed to request the presence of the absent Senators.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. NEELY. Did the Chair's instructions to the Sergeant at Arms include a direction that he shall, if necessary, compel as well as request the presence of the absent Senators?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No; he was only directed to request their attendance.

Mr. BLEASE. You can not arrest a Senator, under the Constitution——

Mr. NEELY. The rule provides that the Sergeant at Arms shall request, and if necessary compel, the attendance of the absent Senators.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That comes in the form of a second motion, later on.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, will the Chair pardon me for a disagreement in that regard? The rule, if the Chair will observe, is that—

A majority of the Senators present may direct the Sergeant at Arms to request, and, when necessary, to compel the attendance of the absent Senators, which order shall be determined without debate.

"Which order": The order is that the Sergeant at Arms may be directed to request, and, when necessary, to compel; and it seems to me from the context that it all ought to be in one order. I understood that the Chair had ruled that the matter should be divided, but I do not think the rule so provides. Let me repeat it:

A majority of the Senators present may direct the Sergeant at Arms to request, and, when necessary, to compel the attendance of the absent Senators, which order shall be determined without debate.

And the order, I take it, should be that the Sergeant at Arms be directed to request, and, if necessary, to compel the attendance of the absent Senators.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state to the Senator from California and also to the Members of the Senate generally that the practice of the body is to make the suggestion first in the form of a request; then, when the Sergeant at Arms reports that he has not succeeded, a second motion is made to compel the attendance of Senators. That is the practice under the precedents.

Mr. JOHNSON. I realize, sir, that in two previous filibusters of which I was the victim, that was the order that the Chair directed to be made—that is, that they be segregated into two different motions, and with those motions on the occasions referred to I complied; but I submit to the Chair that the rule itself apparently provides that one order shall be all that is essential. The request is made by the Sergeant at Arms, apparently. If that request is not complied with instanter, then the Sergeant at Arms invokes the authority that he has to compel the attendance of the recalcitrant Members.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If any Senator should make a motion now to proceed to compel the attendance of absent Senators, the Chair would have to regard it in order.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, in order to save time, I supplement the previous motion by moving that the Sergeant at Arms be directed to compel the attendance of absent Senators if they fail to respond to the request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Michigan.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sergeant at Arms is directed to compel the presence of the absent Senators.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, for the benefit of the Sergeant at Arms——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Nothing is in order until a quorum is developed.

Mr. NEELY. Nothing except something that pertains to the absence of it; and that is the point to which I wish to speak.

For the benefit of the Sergeant at Arms, who may not remember the experience we had in obtaining a quorum when the Boulder Dam question was up two years ago, I call his attention to the fact that there is an appropriate form of warrant for the arrest of the absent Senators on page 4456 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of the Sixty-ninth Congress, volume 4.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia is out of order.

Mr. NEELY. We shall have to have that warrant sooner or later, Mr. President.

At 8 o'clock and 57 minutes p. m. Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma entered the Chamber and answered to his name.

At 9 o'clock and 3 minutes p. m. Mr. GREENE entered the Chamber and answered to his name, and a minute later Mr. ODDIE, Mr. HARRISON, and Mr. NYE entered the Chamber and answered to their names.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Fifty-one Senators having answered to their names, there is a quorum present. The bill is as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, I am perfectly willing to have a vote taken on the bill.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, I desire to submit a few remarks upon the bill. The bill under consideration is entitled "An act for the apportionment of the Representatives in Congress." This is a misnomer. It is not an act for the apportionment of Representatives in Congress. It does not even resemble an act for the apportionment of Representatives in Congress. It has been heralded by the great metropolitan press as a bill for the apportionment of Representatives.

Congress has been chastised by reason of the alleged charge that Congress has not done its duty and that the bill now under consideration will perform a function required by the Constitution which has long been neglected. If this were a fair bill designed to apportion equitably the membership in the House of Congress I would gladly support it. It is not, however, such a bill. On the contrary, it is a bill which does not make an apportionment of Representatives in Congress, but it attempts by a very inequitable and unjust method to provide a rule by which Congress can pass on more of its powers to another bureau and whittle away the constitutional privileges and prerogatives which have been vested in the legislative body of the Nation.

I desire first to refer to the method by which it is proposed that our bureaus, already rich with power, shall have some more congressional prerogatives in order that another bureau make laws for the people of the Nation—no, not make laws, but perform a more sacred function in a democracy, and that is to determine the representation which shall come from the various States of the Republic. The method which is proposed, by which the Secretary of Commerce shall be guided in this legislative function which is about to be bestowed upon him, is one which is designated as the method of major fractions.

It was a little strange to me to see the activity on the part of certain members of the great metropolitan press, which had never before evidenced any anxiety for an obedience to constitutional principles, in their intense desire to coerce the Congress into the passage of this measure, and so I concluded that it might be wise to investigate. I found the reply to the query which naturally arose in my mind in the statement of a Representative from the State of New York, in which he said:

The larger States gain more under major fractions than under equal proportions, and the smaller States get less.

When I read that statement it brought about some reflection with reference to some great controversies which have occurred in this Nation heretofore. I remembered one of the chief bones of contention in the great Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia was with reference to the Representatives of the great States and the small States. I recalled that this great controversy became so keen that on practically the last day of the session of that great convention General Washington for the first time stepped down from his position as the presiding officer of the convention and requested that more consideration be given to the rights of the people in the proportion of their legislative representatives. I recalled also that day after day and week after week there was developed in that great convention debate hinging around the proposition as to whether one State should be given an unjust privilege over and above another. Then I read again the statement of the Representative from the great State of New York, in which he said:

The larger States gain more under major fractions than under equal proportions, and the smaller States get less.

Then I looked at the bill again, and I saw a bill destined for the first time to attempt to engraft on the statute laws of America an unchanging and inflexible system if we adopted the method of major fractions. I then recalled the fact that the great President of this Republic, who first served and who has been designated as the Father of his Country, vetoed the first apportionment bill by reason of his disapproval of the method of the selection of the Representatives.

Then I concluded to look at the evidence which was before the House committee, wondering why there had been rushed over to this body, with such great momentum that it seemed impossible to stop it, this unique method not only abdicating on the part of Congress its constitutional prerogative but laying down a rule by which it was hoped the membership could be shifted from one State to another. An investigation of the record disclosed the fact, which can not be resisted, that that shifting is from the small and rural States of this great country of ours into the great States in which the metropolitan press daily sends forth its anathemas against Congress by reason of its alleged failure to perform its constitutional duty.

I found that there was a committee appointed, an advisory committee to the Census Department, in 1921, composed of some of the ablest statisticians, mathematicians, and political economists in the Nation. I found that that committee had unanimously reported to the Congress against the system of major fractions and in favor of the system known as that of equal proportions which would more nearly equalize the rights of the various States of the Union. They did it in this language:

The method of equal proportions is somewhat more favorable to the small States than is the method of major fractions. By the method of minimum range—

Another method which, it seems to me, is still fairer and more equitable to all the States in the Union—

By the method of minimum range the small States as a group get 11 more Representatives and the large States 12 fewer.

That was the statement of Doctor Wilcox. Doctor Willcox is the gentleman who recommended to the Congress the adoption of the system of major fractions.

Of course, as we go along with the exposition of the evidence which has been introduced before the House committee we shall find still more reasons for the activities of the great newspapers and the metropolitan press and for their suddenly developed yearning to impress upon Congress a duty in reference to obedience to the Constitution of the United States. Prof. Charles E. Hill, of the department of constitutional law of the George Washington University, said this to the committee:

While the method of major fractions of equal proportions would carry out the intent of the framers of the Constitution with greater exactness, that solution is, in my opinion, less easily comprehended.

In other words, Doctor Hill in his testimony stated that, in his judgment, the method of equal proportions would more nearly carry out the intent of the framers of the Constitution; but this bill which has been sent into this Chamber has not adopted the system which would more nearly carry out the intentions of the framers of the Constitution. It has abdicated the privileges and prerogatives which were granted to Congress, and, in addition to that, it has adopted a method designed and intended unduly to prejudice the rights of the small rural States of this Nation to the advantage and the benefit of the great States with teeming millions of people from all sections of the world.

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator a question, if it will not interrupt him?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. HARRISON. How long was this bill before the Senate Committee on Commerce, and does the Senator know whether the experts there had a different opinion from that of advisory committee as to the course which should be pursued?

Mr. BLACK. My understanding is that there were no experts before the Senate Commerce Committee.

Mr. DALE. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Vermont?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. DALE. I can answer that question. I have the honor to be a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce. There was not one minute of time given to any hearing or consideration whatever of this bill. I was present when the matter came up. I had men with me, and had hoped there would be a hearing, but there was no attention whatever given to this bill by the Commerce Committee.

Mr. HARRISON. In the time of the Senator from Alabama, may I ask the Senator from Vermont, as a member of the Commerce Committee, if the Committee on Commerce on the part of the Senate on an important bill like this had no one before it and reported the bill out in such fashion as that?

Mr. DALE. That is absolutely correct.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield to me?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. VANDENBERG. The solicitude of my genial friend from Mississippi for the Commerce Committee and its activities is very impressive. The fact is, however, the Commerce Committee had before it all the hearings that had been had in the House of Representatives; they were available for any consultation that might be desired. So far as the iniquity of the terrible imposition called "major fractions" is concerned, the fact is that the advisory committee to the Director of the Census recommends that the system of major fractions be employed.

Mr. HARRISON. May I ask the Senator from Michigan a question before he takes his seat?

Mr. BLACK. I read what the advisory committee said.

Mr. VANDENBERG. What is the question of the Senator from Mississippi?

Mr. HARRISON. I merely wanted to inquire—I do not want to see any contention between Senators on the other side of the aisle—is the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] in accord with what the Senator from Vermont [Mr. DALE] has stated with reference to there having been no hearings before the Commerce Committee on this bill?

Mr. VANDENBERG. There were no hearings before the Commerce Committee.

Mr. HARRISON. How long had the bill been before the Committee on Commerce before it was reported to the Senate?

Mr. VANDENBERG. It was reported to the Senate in 48 hours, and that is the only thoroughly honorable thing I know of in the history of the Senate for the last 10 years in connection with reapportionment.

Mr. HARRISON. This is the first time the Senator ever got on a committee, and perhaps that is the reason why he thinks the action was honorable.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, perhaps it was not necessary to have a hearing before the Senate committee——

Mr. DALE. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield to me?

Mr. BLACK. Let me make this suggestion. Perhaps it was not necessary to have hearings before the Senate committee, because there was on that committee my genial, affable, intellectual, and able friend from Michigan, but it so happened that there were two Members on the House committee from the city of Detroit. So far as I have been able to ascertain, there is no other committee of the House of Representatives on which there are two members from the same city. It was not necessary to have hearings; of course, my friend could have gotten his information from the two Representatives from Michigan who pressed this bill in the House, but since the statement has been made that the advisory committee recommended the system of major fractions, I shall read from the report in the House, which, as my friend from Michigan has stated, was available to the Committee on Commerce of the Senate, and see what they said about it or what was printed in the report.

VII. SUMMARY

1. It is clear that the Constitution requires that the allocation of Representatives among the several States shall be proportionate to the distribution of population. It is not equally clear that there is anything in the constitutional requirement which suggests that one of the forms in which such apportionment ratios or proportions may be expressed should be preferred to another.

2. The "method of major fractions" utilizes only one of several ways of expressing apportionment ratios. The "method of equal proportions" utilizes all of these ways without inconsistency. The latter method, therefore, has a broader basis.

3. There is no mathematical or logical ground for preferring the one form of expression of the apportionment ratio used in the method of major fractions to other forms of expression. These other forms lead, when similar processes of computation are employed, to different and therefore inconsistent results.

4. The method of major fractions logically implies preference for a special meaning which may be attached to one of the forms in which apportionment ratios may be expressed. To attach to ratios meanings which vary with the forms in which the ratios are expressed is to interpret them as something else than ratios.

5. In the "method of major fractions" the "nearness" of the ratios of Representatives and population for the several States is measured by absolute differences. The "method of equal proportions" utilizes relative differences. The relative scale is to be preferred.

That is the summary of the report of the advisory committee which was printed in the House hearings and which was available to the Senate Committee on Commerce.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, if it will not interrupt the Senator inopportunely, I should like to ask him a question.

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Has the system of equal proportions ever been used in any reapportionment?

Mr. BLACK. Yes.

Mr. VANDENBERG. When?

Mr. BLACK. The Senator from Michigan knows, does he not?

Mr. VANDENBERG. I am asking the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. BLACK. If the Senator from Michigan knows and wants to place the information before the Senate, he can state it.

Mr. VANDENBERG. I judge the Senator does not care to testify on the subject.

Mr. BLACK. No; I am not a witness. I am taking the evidence before the House committee.

Mr. VANDENBERG. The Senator certainly is not a witness.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a question?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. COPELAND. The Senator made reference to the metropolitan newspapers and the anxiety of certain great dailies. Surely the Senator did not refer to the newspapers of New York City when he said that?

Mr. BLACK. I referred to all the newspapers in the great city districts which have been lambasting Congress for a failure to perform its constitutional functions, but which have not been so anxious about the performance of other constitutional functions.

Mr. COPELAND. I take it the Senator does not mean the newspapers of the city of New York, because the Senator will recall that in all probability the State of New York will lose one Representative under this bill.

Mr. BLACK. Yes, sir; and the State of New York will lose two Representatives if the proper method shall be adopted. It has been so testified by a Representative in Congress who spoke in behalf of this bill.

Mr. COPELAND. The Senator does not encourage me, then, to vote his way.

Mr. BLACK. I do not know. I do not think the Senator would vote against a bill simply because it would lose for his State a Representative in Congress. With my knowledge of the Senator from New York, I can not believe that he would permit the mere losing of a Representative in Congress to turn his mind from the straight and narrow path of rectitude and duty.

Mr. COPELAND. I am very much obliged to the Senator, but I wish he would answer my question. Does he mean that the New York newspapers have advocated this measure and does he refer to them as being in this thickly populated and wicked part of the United States?

Mr. BLACK. I did not say "wicked."

Mr. COPELAND. No?

Mr. BLACK. No. The Senator has interpreted and interpolated that for me in the statement which he has made. If the Senator thinks they are wicked, the Senator lives there and he knows better than I do. I do not say it.

Mr. COPELAND. I just came from Chicago and was not "bumped off" while I was there.

Mr. BLACK. The Senator was fortunate.

Mr. COPELAND. Yes; and a man there lives within gunshot of his neighbor. I should like to ask the Senator does he refer to the New York newspapers?

Mr. BLACK. I refer to those newspapers—I do not care to make a list of them now, but if the Senator wants me to, I will try to prepare a list and put it in the RECORD—which have been attacking Congress with reference to this particular bill and insisting and urging that this was a reapportionment bill when it is not a reapportionment bill.

Mr. COPELAND. Perhaps, when those newspapers are as well enlightened as is the Senator from Alabama they will not be so insistent.

Mr. BLACK. That is possible.

Mr. COPELAND. But is it not perfectly natural that newspapers, if they represent the public thought, should desire that Congress should act in a constitutional way and proceed to make a reapportionment? The Senator certainly is not opposing a reapportionment.

Mr. BLACK. I should think it would be very natural for those newspapers not only to want that constitutional provision obeyed, but the eighteenth amendment. Some of them, however, are using their columns daily to attack and break down the enforcement of that provision of the Constitution, while they set themselves up as the great arbiters to determine for us when we shall vote, how we shall vote, and in what way we shall vote.

Mr. COPELAND. If the Senator will permit me, let me say that I think it is unfair to speak in that way in the absence of the Senator from Maryland (Mr. BRUCE). He is not here tonight. [Laughter.]

Mr. BLACK. I should like to say for the benefit of the Senator that I voted for the motion to invite all Senators to come in, and thought the Senator from Maryland would be here.

Mr. DALE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Vermont?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. DALE. Will the Senator tell us whether it is possible for this Congress to pass any reapportionment bill that will take effect?

Mr. BLACK. That will take effect?

Mr. DALE. Yes, sir.

Mr. BLACK. I very seriously doubt it at this time. It would certainly be necessary to amend the pending bill. If they could take the title, which is now a misnomer, and write a bill after it, and then if they could get the House to accept it, it would be possible to pass a reapportionment bill based on the 1920 census, but not one based on the 1930 census.

Mr. DALE. But before such a bill could take effect the 1930 census will have been taken.

Mr. BLACK. That is correct.

Mr. DALE. And we can not pass a bill based on the 1930 census.

Mr. BLACK. We can not pass a bill based on the 1930 census; that is correct.

Mr. DALE. We are undertaking now to do what is absolutely impossible for us to do and have any effect.

Mr. BLACK. We are attempting, if I understand this bill correctly, to leave the world under the impression that this particular Congress has a monopoly on virtue and right.

Mr. DALE. Yes, sir.

Mr. BLACK. And that we can not trust the Congress in 1930 or the ones in 1931 or 1932 or 1933 or 1934.

Mr. DALE. Precisely.

Mr. BLACK. That this is the only good Congress which has ever been in existence.

Mr. VANDENBERG. The Senator will concede, I think, that no Congress has been trustworthy since 1921 on the subject of reapportionment.

Mr. BLACK. I do not.

Mr. VANDENBERG. What has happened to make the Senator think it has been trustworthy?

Mr. BLACK. One thing is that a reapportionment bill was passed by the House, but two Representatives from the State of Michigan were active and instrumental in having that bill recommitted to the committee, where it was killed. Major fractions were not even in that bill.

Mr. VANDENBERG. What happened in 1921?

Mr. BLACK. In 1921, according to my information, a bill came into the Senate.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Yes; and what happened to it?

Mr. BLACK. My understanding is that it was passed by the House, but this body had the privilege and the right to decline to pass a bill which, in their judgment, was not right. Has the time come when, because the Senator thinks the Constitution requires reapportionment, the Members of this body are compelled to subordinate their personal belief as to what is right, and swallow the bill hook, line, and sinker, and say, "We take it; we know it is wrong, but in the end it may bring about reapportionment."

Mr. VANDENBERG. The Senate did not even pass on the bill of 1921. It throttled it in the dark in a committee. There have been three Congresses since, and the Senator from Alabama has sat in one or two of them; and I have not heard his voice raised in any great anxiety that the constitutional mandate should be constitutionally liquidated.

Mr. BLACK. In the first place, there has been no reapportionment bill in this body.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Why has there not been?

Mr. BLACK. I have not been here. Perhaps it is because the Congressmen from Michigan and the Senators from that State have not offered one. I do not know. I can not be responsible for the consciences of the Congressmen from Michigan and the Senators from Michigan. I have all I can do to attend to my own.

Mr. VANDENBERG. The Senator apparently is responsible only for a negative interest in this particular constitutional problem.

Mr. BLACK. It is the Senator's privilege to make that statement. At the same time, I stated in the beginning and I state now that while I do not agree with the Senator that there is an express and explicit mandate in the Constitution for reapportionment every 10 years, it is my judgment that it should be made, and I shall vote for any bill that comes to this House which fairly and equitably apportions the Representatives among the States of this Union at any time it comes; but I will not, by reason of the fact that Congress has not heretofore passed a good act, stand up and support a bill which is unjust and unrighteous and is written and designed for the benefit of the big States of this Union and against the small and rural States.

Mr. VANDENBERG. May I ask the Senator just one more question?

Mr. BLACK. Yes; I yield.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Then I will desist from contributing to the filibuster against myself.

Mr. BLACK. This is not a filibuster. The bill is bad.

Mr. VANDENBERG. I beg the Senator's pardon. I understand that.

The Senator, as I understand his position, would be glad, on the basis of the 1930 census, to vote immediately for such a reapportionment measure as would appeal to him as being fair and equitable. Is that correct?

Mr. BLACK. It is correct that I would vote immediately for any fair and equitable reapportionment.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Will the Senator now kindly point out what there is in the pending measure which would prevent precisely that thing happening in 1931?

Mr. BLACK. That is exactly what I expect to do if I am permitted to reach it. I am on my way. I can not say it all at once. I am just beginning to show the Senator a part of it, and I am going to show him some more before I finish if he will stay with me.

Mr. VANDENBERG. The only thing there is in this bill is a warrant that the Senator would have to participate in that sort of a reapportionment in 1931 or else face an automatic rule which 11 years later would validate this particular constitutional mandate.

Mr. BLACK. Yes, sir; and I desire to state that if the time has come when one Congress feels itself so bloated with virtue and righteousness and having so much of a monopoly upon goodness and truth and obedience to the Constitution that that Congress is the only one that considers itself capable of obeying the Constitution of the United States, it should have itself erected upon a pedestal, and should be held up to the world as the model of virtue and beauty and justice.

My opinion is that the right to reapportionment ought to remain where the fathers who wrote the Constitution put it, in the hands of the Congress of the United States, and that any effort to remove it from the hands of the Congress of the United States is an assault upon the wisdom, upon the statesmanship, and upon the political ideals of the framers of the Constitution, which has been designated as the greatest instrument that ever came from the hearts or the minds of men.

Mr. VANDENBERG. At last the Senator and I can agree upon one thing. I agree that it ought to remain in the hands of the Congress, and not in its pockets.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, the Senator desired to know why I thought this bill was unjust, and I am just beginning to tell him.

Prof. J. W. Young, professor of mathematics at Dartmouth College, said this:

> It is true, after all, that the members of a congressional committee, and the Members of Congress as a whole, will not readily understand any one of the three methods, and whatever method is adopted the States unfavorably affected will protest. If the method of major fractions continues to be used—

I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Michigan to this. He wished to know why I thought this bill might be bad, and I am attempting to read to him the evidence which was before his committee, and which the committee evidently did not read, from the statement of Prof. J. W. Young, professor of mathematics at Dartmouth College—

> if the method of major fractions continues to be used, the protesting States will, it seems to me, have the best authority on their side, and in any case it would seem to me unwise to adopt a poorer method merely because a better method is more difficult to explain.

An example of the difference under the different methods, shown on page 53 of the House hearings, which I assume the Senators on the committee have read, shows, for instance, that New York under the plan of major fractions would receive 43, under the plan of equal proportions would receive 42, and under the plan of minimum range would receive 41.

The State of Pennsylvania under the major fractions would receive 36, under the equal proportions 37, and under the minimum range 36.

This is according to the census of 1920.

Mr. HARRISON. Has the Senator the figures for Michigan?

Mr. BLACK. No; I have not the figures for Michigan, but I am informed from the statement made on the floor of the House that Michigan will gain two or three or four Representatives under the system of major fractions—I do not recall the exact number—and that it will gain fewer Representatives under the system of equal proportions, or minimum range.

In other words, the undisputed evidence before the Congressional committee, which was brought over to the Senate and which the Senate committee did not have time to read, shows beyond the shadow of a doubt that the method of major fractions was designed for the purpose of extending the Representatives in the large States to the detriment of the small States and the rural communities.

The same thing is true with reference to California.

Now, I desire to show to the committee what was stated with reference to the system known as the minimum range.

There are three, or really four, systems. There is one system which was first adopted, and which was used until 1840, known as the system of rejected fractions. All these systems with reference to fractions come about for this reason:

We will take, for instance, a State which would have conceded to it eight Representatives. If you divide the total population of that State by eight, or if we say that you are going to give 200,000 constituents to each Congressman, that will not give you an even number, but will give you eight and a fraction; so the question comes up, How will you apportion the fractions?

That has never been of any importance until the time has come when it seems that the policy will be established of not increasing the membership in the House. That is the reason why heretofore there has been no controversy over the question. That is the reason why my friend asked me a moment ago if they had used the system of major fractions before. They have; but when they used the system of major fractions they did not take away from one State to give to another. When they used that system before, they increased the size of the House so that no State lost a Congressman, but other States gained. Now we have reached the time when we are adopting the policy that the membership remains unchanged. When you take a Congressman away from one State you give him to another, and when you give a Congressman to one State he comes from another. The result is that the system of determining the method is of vital importance. Not only is it of vital importance to-day, but if this monstrous legislation goes through it will be important in all the years to come. There will be some, if this legislation goes through, who vote for it to-day who will live to regret the time that they ever cast their ballots for this legislation.

What does that mean?

The other system is the system of minimum range. Here is what Doctor Willcox said about it; and Doctor Willcox is the gentleman who recommends major fractions. Here is his language:

> If the main purpose is to give the congressional districts as nearly as possible the same population, making the smallest possible difference between the State with the largest average congressional districts and the State with the smallest, so far as Congress by apportionment can bring about that result, the method of minimum range is to be preferred.

Of course, if we are to depart from the system of attempting to give to each congressional district as nearly as possible the same number of constituents, and if, instead of that, we believe in the method which is proposed here of giving Representatives to the large States and taking them away from the small States, then we should prefer the system of major fractions over and above the system of minimum range.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Just for my information, I should like to ask the Senator whether the State of Alabama gains or loses in its representation under the system proposed in the bill?

Mr. BLACK. Under the system proposed by this bill it is absolutely and completely impossible to determine whether Alabama will gain or lose. Under the conjectural method of computation, Alabama is listed as one of the States that would lose a Representative. Perhaps it might under the system of major fractions. Personally, I very seriously doubt it. But whether it would or not is immaterial. I will vote in 1931 or in 1930, whenever it comes up, for a just and fair reapportionment bill if it takes 1 or 2 or 3 Representatives away from the State of Alabama; but I will not vote for a measure which is destined in the long run to change prematurely the great balance of legislative power in this Nation from the rural districts into the great metropolitan areas.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for another question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama further yield to the Senator from Florida?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. TRAMMELL. In the study of this question by the Senator, does he not realize that there are a number of States which, under the present system, have not anything like the proportionate representation in the House of Representatives that they should have according to the number of Representatives in other States?

Mr. BLACK. That is absolutely correct; yes, sir.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Among those Sates is the State of Florida.

Mr. BLACK. That is correct.

Mr. TRAMMELL. We have only four Congressmen, and there are many States of no larger population that have from 7 to 10 Congressmen.

Mr. BLACK. That is correct.

Mr. TRAMMELL. We should like the Senator to assist us in some plan to correct that discrimination against the State of Florida and other States in a similar position.

Mr. BLACK. That is correct, and I will show the Senator in a few moments that under the system proposed here it was figured out—this was called the Alabama paradox—in such a way that if the number of Representatives was increased, Alabama received 9; if the number was decreased, Alabama received 10. That is the method which is proposed in this bill; and I will read the Senator in a few moments just exactly what that means.

I agree with the Senator that the State of Florida is underrepresented. As I stated in the beginning, I believe in a fair and just and equitable reapportionment; but I do not believe, because a State may get something from this bill, that it ought to be willing to sell its birthright for a mess of pottage and tie itself down for generations to a method which is unfair and unjust, and which, sooner or later, will take away from it that which it has.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President——

Mr. TRAMMELL. I do not think a State ought to do that.

Mr. BLACK. I know that.

Mr. TRAMMELL. On the other hand, I do not think some State that might perchance lose should take any such attitude, either.

Mr. BLACK. There is no difference between the Senator and me on that. I state again, as I stated in the beginning, that there should be a fair reapportionment after the census is taken. If this bill had been brought in here during my term in the Senate on a basis of reapportionment on the census, even though I think the census of 1920 was incomplete, I should have voted for it.

Mr. DILL. I wanted to ask the Senator what would be the effect on the State representation under this other method, known as the minimum range, about which he has spoken.

Mr. BLACK. I have not looked at that. I do not think they would lose any.

Mr. DILL. What is the great difference? I have not heard it clarified by the Senator.

Mr. BLACK. I have not attempted to explain it, except as to results. A little later I will explain it, as far as a layman can. I do not claim that I can explain it so accurately that it will be understood, but I will read the Senator what has been said about it. Doctor Willcox said again, and this is his explanation of the minimum range:

> I do not know whether I make my explanation clear, but I should say that the principle of minimum range is that we invariably give each additional Representative to the State, which at that point, has the largest average population per Representative.

In other words, if they are attempting to apportion the Representatives, and they find that one State has a larger proportionate representation to the State than another, then that State would first get an additional Representative. That is the method of minimum range.

Mr. DILL. Then the State with the next highest average per Congressman——

Mr. BLACK. Would get the next.

Mr. DILL. Where there was a case over and above the figure fixed by the law.

Mr. BLACK. That is correct.

Again Doctor Willcox said, and I would like to have the Senator listen to this:

> If the committee desires to cut loose entirely from controversy between the large and the small States—

This is Doctor Willcox, who recommended the system of major fractions.

> If the committee desires to cut loose entirely from controversy between the large and small States, and adopt a principle of apportionment which secures the least possible difference between the States with largest population for Representatives, and the States with the smallest population for Representatives, I think that end can be secured by the method of minimum range.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. BLACK. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Will the Senator permit me to quote from his favorite author for just a moment.

Mr. BLACK. I will when the Senator's time comes to speak.

Mr. VANDENBERG. I will be glad to wait.

Mr. BLACK. Doctor Willcox is not my favorite author. I have stated from the beginning that he is the gentleman who is recommending the system of major fractions, but on questions being propounded by members of the committee, he was compelled to admit the statements which I have just read.

With reference to the method of equal proportions, here, as I understand it, is the difference between equal proportions and major fractions, that is, so far as it can be understood at the present time, but I shall show in a few minutes, by the statement of the Assistant Director of the Census, that the Census Bureau could not act under this bill if it so desired. It leaves it entirely to their discretion.

The difference is this: We will assume, now, that a division has been made, and certain fractions are left over. Under the original system of major fractions, the idea was that if any State had a fraction of more than 50 per cent of the total amount needed for a Representative, that would entitle them to an additional Representative. That has been modified now, as I shall show in a few moments.

Under the system of equal proportions, the statisticians and scientists have agreed that the proper method is not the absolute difference in figures, that that does not comply with the spirit or the letter of the Constitution, but we should take the relative proportion of the fraction to the population of the State. In other words, the Senate can readily see that under that system the State with a small population would have an advantage over the State with the largest population, but the State with the medium population would always get that to which it was justly entitled.

Doctor Hill said with reference to the method of equal proportions:

> The method of equal proportions is the method by which the relative or percentage differences in either the number of inhabitants per Representatives or the number of Representatives per inhabitants are as small as possible.

Doctor Hill, the Assistant Director of the Census said:

> The method of equal proportions is more favorable to the large States than the method of minimum range, and less favorable than the method of major fractions.

In other words, the system of equal proportions stands on middle ground between that of the minimum range and that of major fractions.

This committee has presented to the Senate a bill which is in the interest and to the benefit, according to the statements of every statistician and mathematician in the United States, of the large States and against the States of medium size and the States of smaller size.

Doctor Hill said further:

> If it be desired to have a method which shall be as favorable to the large States as possible, then the method of major fractions should be used.

Remember, that is the method which is offered here, and Doctor Hill says, and I call it to the attention of Senators. If it be desired to adopt a method which is as favorable as possible to the large States, then adopt the method of major fractions.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. DILL. Have the statisticians worked out the number of Representatives that each State would have under these three systems?

Mr. BLACK. They have; according to the 1920 census but not according to the 1930 census. They may have worked it out according to their conjecture of the 1930 census.

Mr. DILL. Do their figures appear in the hearings?

Mr. BLACK. They are in the hearings. These statements are made largely from the figures given in the hearings, and the statements were made by the experts who testified before the committee.

Going further, Doctor Hill said:

> If it be desired to have a method to favor the small States as much as possible, then the method of minimum range should be used. If it be desired to adopt a method intermediate between these two not as favorable to the large State as major fractions nor as favorable to the small States as the method of minimum range, then the right method is the method of equal proportions.

I call attention to that statement from the man who knows. He is the Assistant Director of the Census. He says that if it is the desire to adopt a method which will be as favorable as possible to the large State and as unfavorable as possible to the small States, then the system of major fractions should be adopted, which my friend says we must vote for or be disloyal to the Constitution of the United States.

Doctor Hill said further that if we want to get the intermediate method, which will be fair to both, we should adopt the system of equal proportions.

Doctor Hill said further:

> I would agree, and everybody understands, that the method of equal proportions is more advantageous to the smaller States than major fractions, and vice versa.
>
> The method of equal proportions is the method by which the relative or percentage differences in either the number of inhabitants per Representative or the number of Representatives per inhabitants are as small as possible.

I read a few moments ago from what the advisory committee unanimously stated with reference to this method.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, will my colleague yield to me?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. HEFLIN. My colleague is making a very able speech against this monstrosity that has been offered here, and I think the Senators who have to pass on this question ought to be here; so I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, a point of order. No business having intervened, I make the point of order that the suggestion of a lack of a quorum is out of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair sustains the point of order.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I suggest that business has intervened. Discussion of a very important question has been going on, and several Senators have participated in the debate, including the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG]. I would like to know, if we are not transacting any business, why we should stay here.

Mr. BLACK. Do we have to wait until we have a vote on something?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state that under the rule the roll can not be called for a quorum unless business has intervened, and discussion is not business. There has been no business transacted since the last quorum call.

Mr. HARRISON. I move that the Senate take a recess for 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair holds that the motion is out of order.

Mr. HARRISON. I appeal from the decision of the Chair, and on that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the appeal from the decision of the Chair. The Chair ruled that the motion to take a recess for 10 minutes was out of order, on the ground that no motion is in order except a motion to adjourn, or a motion to take a recess, which would have to be a motion to take a recess until to-morrow, and not a recess for 10 minutes. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate? On this question the Senator from Mississippi demands the yeas and nays.

Mr. HARRISON. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No business having intervened——

Mr. HARRISON. I submit that business has intervened, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There has been no decision made yet.

Mr. HARRISON. Very well. I ask for the yeas and nays on my appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate? The clerk will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CURTIS (when his name was called). I have a pair with the senior Senator from Arkansas [Mr. ROBINSON]. Not knowing how he would vote on this question if present, I withhold my vote. I desire to be marked present for a quorum.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GEORGE. I inquire if the senior Senator from Colorado [Mr. PHIPPS] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WATSON in the chair). That Senator has not voted.

Mr. GEORGE. Having a pair with that Senator, I withhold my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 32, nays 6, as follows:

YEAS—32

Ashurst	Frazier	Nye	Thomas, Idaho
Bingham	Goff	Oddie	Thomas, Okla.
Bratton	Hastings	Pine	Trammell
Copeland	Hayden	Robinson, Ind.	Vandenberg
Couzens	Johnson	Schall	Wagner
Dale	Jones	Sheppard	Walsh, Mass.
Dill	McMaster	Smith	Waterman
Edwards	Neely	Steiwer	Watson

NAYS—6

Barkley	Blaine	Heflin	Stephens
Black	Blease

NOT VOTING—57

Bayard	Gillett	McKellar	Sackett
Borah	Glass	McLean	Shipstead
Brookhart	Glenn	McNary	Shortridge
Broussard	Gould	Mayfield	Simmons
Bruce	Greene	Metcalf	Smoot
Burton	Hale	Moses	Steck
Capper	Harris	Norbeck	Swanson
Caraway	Harrison	Norris	Tydings
Curtis	Hawes	Overman	Tyson
Deneen	Howell	Phipps	Walsh, Mont.
Edge	Kendrick	Pittman	Warren
Fess	Keyes	Ransdell	Wheeler
Fletcher	King	Reed, Mo.
George	La Follette	Reed, Pa.
Gerry	Larrazolo	Robinson, Ark.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The roll call having disclosed the absence fo a quorum, the clerk will call the roll.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum, and make the point that the vote just taken discloses the fact that there is no quorum present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama demands the presence of a quorum. The clerk will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Ashurst	Fess	McMaster	Stephens
Barkley	Frazier	Neely	Thomas, Idaho
Bingham	George	Oddie	Thomas, Okla.
Blaine	Goff	Pine	Trammell
Blease	Harrison	Robinson, Ind.	Vandenberg
Bratton	Hastings	Schall	Wagner
Copeland	Hayden	Sheppard	Walsh, Mass.
Couzens	Heflin	Shortridge	Waterman
Curtis	Johnson	Smith	Watson
Dill	Jones	Steiwer

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 39 Senators present who have answered to their names, which discloses the fact that there is not a quorum present.

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, I now propose the following order and ask for its immediate consideration:

Whereas under the rules of the Senate a call of the Senate has been ordered; and

Whereas the following-named Senators are absent without leave of the Senate, to wit (names to be filled in);

Whereas it is necessary to compel the attendance of said absent Senators in order that the Senate may proceed to the transaction of its business: Therefore it is Ordered, That the Sergeant at Arms, be, and he is hereby, directed to compel the attendance on the Senate of said-named absent Senators, unless they be ill; and it is further Ordered, That warrants for the arrest of said Senators be forthwith issued under the signature of the Presiding Officer, attested by the Secretary, and that the Sergeant at Arms be, and he is hereby, directed to execute such warrants forthwith by arresting each of said-named absent Senators and bringing them, and each of them, before the bar of the Senate; and that he make due return to the Senate of the execution of said warrants; and that this order shall be continuing until fully executed unless otherwise ordered by the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator make that as a motion?

Mr. NEELY. I do.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. NEELY].

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sergeant at Arms will execute the order of the Senate.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President——

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For what purpose does the Senator rise?

Mr. BLACK. I desire to move a reconsideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The decision of the Chair is that under the unanimous-consent agreement heretofore entered into and the fact that a quorum is not present, as having been disclosed by the roll call, there are but two courses open to the Senate at this time and only two matters of business are in order. One is a motion to take a recess and the other is a motion to instruct the Sergeant at Arms to secure the presence of a quorum. The latter course has been adopted, and therefore the Chair holds that everything else is out of order except the motion to take a recess.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. HEFLIN. The rule declares that a motion to adjourn is always in order. If a motion to adjourn should prevail, the Senate having previously, when it had a quorum, entered into a unanimous-consent agreement to take a recess upon the conclusion of business to-day and to meet at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning, would a motion to adjourn, if carried, affect that order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It would not, because a motion to adjourn is not in order at this time.

Mr. HEFLIN. Would a motion to take a recess be in order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A motion to take a recess is in order under the unanimous-consent agreement hitherto adopted.

Mr. HEFLIN. I believe it will take longer than 45 minutes to bring absent Members to the Chamber. Therefore, I move that the Senate take a recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That motion is in order.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Upon that motion I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered and the Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CURTIS (when his name was called). Making the same announcement as to my pair and its transfer as on the previous vote, I vote "nay."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GEORGE. Making the same announcement in reference to my pair as previously, I withhold my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 7, nays 34, as follows:

YEAS—7

Barkley	Broussard	Harrison	Nye
Blaine	Frazier	Heflin

NAYS—34

Ashurst	Fess	Robinson, Ind.	Thomas, Okla.
Bingham	Goff	Schall	Trammell
Black	Hastings	Sheppard	Vandenberg
Blease	Johnson	Shortridge	Wagner
Bratton	Jones	Smith	Walsh, Mass.
Copeland	McMaster	Steck	Waterman
Couzens	Neely	Steiwer	Watson
Curtis	Oddie	Stephens
Dill	Pine	Thomas, Idaho

NOT VOTING—54

Bayard	Gillett	Larrazolo	Reed, Pa.
Borah	Glass	McKellar	Robinson, Ark.
Brookhart	Glenn	McLean	Sackett
Bruce	Gould	McNary	Shipstead
Burton	Greene	Mayfield	Simmons
Capper	Hale	Metcalf	Smoot
Caraway	Harris	Moses	Swanson
Dale	Hawes	Norbeck	Tydings
Deneen	Hayden	Norris	Tyson
Edge	Howell	Overman	Walsh, Mont.
Edwards	Kendrick	Phipps	Warren
Fletcher	Keyes	Pittman	Wheeler
George	King	Ransdell
Gerry	La Follette	Reed, Mo.

So the Senate refused to take a recess.

RECESS

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, in view of the repeated and decisive demonstrations that the friends of the Constitution are willing to stand by it in this fight, but equally in view of the fact that we have but 40 minutes remaining for the session to-night—and obviously no decision can be reached in that time—in deference to the wishes of several Senators present, I move that the Senate take a recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 10 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m.), pursuant to its previous order, the Senate took a recess until to-morrow, Tuesday, February 26, 1929, at 11 o'clock a. m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate February 25, 1929

UNITED STATES COAST GUARD

Lieut. (Temporary) Niels S. Haugen to be a lieutenant in the Coast Guard of the United States, to rank as such from date of oath.

The above-named officer has met the requirements for appointment in the regular Coast Guard, as set forth in section 5 of the act of July 3, 1926.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY

Lieut. Commander Charles M. Elder to be a commander in the Navy from the 25th day of December, 1928.

Lieut. Commander Rush S. Fay to be a commander in the Navy from the 15th day of February, 1929.

Lieut. Commander Charles M. Cooke, jr., to be a commander in the Navy from the 18th day of February, 1929.

Lieut. Robert L. Porter, jr., to be a lieutenant commander in the Navy from the 15th day of February, 1929.

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Roy R. Darron to be a lieutenant in the Navy from the 3d day of September, 1928.

Ensign Isaac S. K. Reeves, jr., to be a lieutenant (junior grade) in the Navy from the 4th day of June, 1928.

POSTMASTERS

ALABAMA

Phala B. Atkins to be postmaster at Crichton, Ala., in place of J. A. Stallworth, deceased.

ARKANSAS

Carrick W. White to be postmaster at Walnut Ridge, Ark., in place of C. W. White. Incumbent's commission expired January 3, 1928.

DELAWARE

Jay C. Davis to be postmaster at Middletown, Del., in place of J. J. Jolls, removed.

GEORGIA

Nellie B. Brimberry to be postmaster at Albany, Ga., in place of N. B. Brimberry. Incumbent's commission expired January 28, 1929.

Lonnie E. Sweat to be postmaster at Blackshear, Ga., in place of L. E. Sweat. Incumbent's commission expires March 3, 1929.

John L. Dorris to be postmaster at Douglasville, Ga., in place of J. L. Dorris. Incumbent's commission expired February 21, 1929.

IDAHO

Haly C. Kunter to be postmaster at Ririe, Idaho, in place of H. C. Kunter. Incumbent's commission expired February 21, 1929.

IOWA

Clarence B. Moser to be postmaster at Strawberry Point, Iowa, in place of G. F. Scofield. Incumbent's commission expired August 29, 1923.

KENTUCKY

Hallie M. Duncan to be postmaster at Horse Branch, Ky., in place of Stanley Byers. Appointee declined.

Rex P. Cornelison to be postmaster at Paducah, Ky., in place of I. C. Byerley. Incumbent's commission expired February 1, 1928.

Rachel F. Adams to be postmaster at Whitesburg, Ky., in place of F. G. Fields, resigned.

MASSACHUSETTS

William H. Whitham to be postmaster at Clinton, Mass., in place of P. H. McIntyre. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1928.

MINNESOTA

Wilbert D. Hanson to be postmaster at Grove City, Minn., in place of W. D. Hanson. Incumbent's commission expires March 3, 1929.

MISSISSIPPI

Will N. Guyton to be postmaster at Blue Mountain, Miss., in place of W. N. Guyton. Incumbent's commission expires February 27, 1929.

NEVADA

Robert B. Griffith to be postmaster at Las Vegas, Nev., in place of R. B. Griffith. Incumbent's commission expires March 3, 1929.

NEW JERSEY

William B. Brown to be postmaster at Beachwood, N. J., in place of W. B. Brown. Incumbent's commission expires February 27, 1929.

William J. Hart to be postmaster at Fort Lee, N. J., in place of W. J. Hart. Incumbent's commission expires March 3, 1929.

Gustav L. Meyn to be postmaster at Palisade, N. J., in place of G. L. Meyn. Incumbent's commission expired December 13, 1928.

NORTH CAROLINA

Robert K. Hallifield to be postmaster at Forest City, N. C., in place of M. M. McCurry. Incumbent's commission expired January 26, 1929.

OHIO

Hattie L. Davison to be postmaster at Magnolia, Ohio, in place of H. L. Davison. Incumbent's commission expires March 2, 1929.

PENNSYLVANIA

Horace G. Likeley to be postmaster at Carbondale, Pa., in place of J. N. Gelder, deceased.

TENNESSEE

Minna M. Carson to be postmaster at Old Hickory, Tenn., in place of M. M. Carson. Incumbent's commission expires February 26, 1929.

TEXAS

Lawrence D. Karger to be postmaster at Cat Spring, Tex., in place of G. H. Fricke. Incumbent's commission expired May 14, 1928.

John A. Noland to be postmaster at Crawford, Tex., in place of J. A. Noland. Incumbent's commission expired February 7, 1929.

Tenos W. Elkins to be postmaster at Freeport, Tex., in place of T. W. Elkins. Incumbent's commission expires March 3, 1929.

Joseph R. Gilliland to be postmaster at Paradise, Tex., in place of J. R. Gilliland. Incumbent's commission expires March 3, 1929.

Fannie Fuqua to be postmaster at Shiro, Tex., in place of G. W. Leonard, resigned.

Robert W. Scurlock to be postmaster at Tenaha, Tex., in place of R. W. Scurlock. Incumbent's commission expires February 28, 1929.

VERMONT

John Noble to be postmaster at Bethel, Vt., in place of J. S. Kimball. Incumbent's commission expired June 6, 1928.

Dennis A. Brahana to be postmaster at Irasburg, Vt., in place of O. N. Washer. Incumbent's commission expired January 8, 1929.

Grace B. Adams to be postmaster at Wells River, Vt., in place of G. E. Moore, resigned.

WEST VIRGINIA

Etta Halstead to be postmaster at Dorothy, W. Va.. Office became presidential July 1, 1928.

WISCONSIN

Francis Stone to be postmaster at Park Falls, Wis., in place of Paul Herbst. Incumbent's commission expired January 10, 1929.

Ralph H. Tolford to be postmaster at Thorp, Wis., in place of R. H. Tolford. Incumbent's commission expired February 21, 1929.

August J. Christianson to be postmaster at Webster, Wis., in place of A. J. Christianson. Incumbent's commission expired February 20, 1929.

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate February 25, 1929

POSTMASTERS

ALASKA

William Arthur, Nome.

ARKANSAS

Carrick W. White, Walnut Ridge.

COLORADO

Martha E. Williams, Bonanza.
William B. Edwards, Erie.
Cornelia Coleman, La Veta.

CONNECTICUT

Philip K. Dewire, New London.

ILLINOIS

Alfred P. Goodman, Verona.

KANSAS

Alice B. Stark, Bonner Springs.
Edna Gordon, Dwight.

KENTUCKY

Vera Baird, Crab Orchard.
John E. Skaggs, Neon.
John H. Meyer, Newport.

MASSACHUSETTS

Charles W. Cole, Dighton.
Richard B. Eisold, Ludlow.
Edmund V. O'Brien, North Brookfield.
Clarence J. Conyers, Seekonk.

MICHIGAN

Charles C. Kellogg, Detroit.
James F. Jackson, Mohawk.

MINNESOTA

Lesley S. Whitcomb, Albert Lea.
George H. Hopkins, Battle Lake.
E. Arthur Hanson, Benson.
Thomas Clarkson, Bethel.
Elias A. Quale, Clarkfield.
Nels E. Berg, Cokato.
John R. Norgren, Foreston.
Floyd C. Fuller, Grey Eagle.
Bernard O. Stime, Jasper.
Mary Zakula, Kinney.
Alvin E. Comstock, Lakefield.
Edith Steinbring, Markville.
Frank L. Hoagland, Marshall.
Albert Groenke, New Germany.
Bennie H. Holte, Starbuck.

MISSOURI

Bertha D. Marling, Elsberry.
Charles C. Stobaugh, Triplett.

MONTANA

Ernest M. Hutchinson, Whitefish.

NEBRASKA

Edward G. Hall, David City.
Ernest J. Kaltenborn, Waco.

NEVADA

James W. Johnson, Fallon.

NEW JERSEY

Harvey E. Harris, Bloomfield.

NORTH CAROLINA

Cephus Futrell, Murfreesboro.

NORTH DAKOTA

Henry D. Mack, Dickey.
Harry A. Hart, Ray.
Carrie E. Kempshall, Taylor.
Katherine Ritchie, Valley City.

OHIO

Ferdinand H. Schuster, Bellevue.
Katharine M. Crafts, Mantua.
Ethel Brown, Mount Blanchard.
Earl T. Ewing, Wellsville.

PENNSYLVANIA

Charles J. Williamson, Greensboro.
James B. Maugle, New Ringgold.
Arthur J. Davis, Noxen.
Charles W. High, Quincy.
Daniel F. Pomeroy, Troy.

PORTO RICO

Pablo Vilella, jr., Lares.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Raymond S. Younginer, Irmo.
Ellen M. Williamson, Norway.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Thomas A. Krikac, Dupree.
Emmett O. Frescoln, Winner.

TEXAS

Kathryne Witty, Hamilton.
Leslie W. Garrett, Quitman.
Paul A. Taylor, Winfield.

VIRGINIA

Robert N. Goodloe, Afton.
Margaret H. Hardy, McKenney.
John H. Tyler, Upperville.
Mary O. Pumphrey, West Point.

WEST VIRGINIA

Levi Gay, Eccles.
Millard M. Mason, Seth.
Fred E. Cowl, Wheeling.

WISCONSIN

Earle R. Adamson, Belleville.
Arthur G. Besse, Butternut.
Leroy G. Waite, Dousman.
Hjalmar M. Johnson, Eau Claire.
Leo E. Butenhoff, Markesan.
John A. Dysland, Mount Horeb.
Carl C. Martin, New Lisbon.
Libbie M. Bennett, Pewaukee.
Grace R. Morgan, Spring Green.
Jessie M. McGeorge, Stone Lake.
James E. Robar, Walworth.
Albert J. Topp, Waterford.
Louis A. Meininger, Waukesha.
Robert R. Porter, Wheeler.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, February 25, 1929

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Thou God of the Universe, whose infinite spirit moves along the paths of space and from whom the earth and the seas flee away. In the volume of the Book it is written, "I delight to do Thy will"; write Thy law in all our hearts and build in each one a definite altar dedicated to a definite God. O may our zeal in well-doing begin with this new week day, thinking true thoughts and speaking true words. O to be alive dear Father; alive, taking a living world to our breasts; walking in its brotherly ways, feeling that we are moving on and on to a wonderful great forever. Yes, with Thee all along the way, with sweet fidelity, holy trust, and with deep humility. Take us, mold us into the sons of the morning, walking in the light as Thou art in the light, and when the shadows flee and the night is gone our souls shall break into full-throated praise forever. Through Jesus Christ our Savior. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of Saturday, February 23, 1929, was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills and a joint resolution of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 8551. An act to create an additional judge in the District of South Dakota;

H. R. 9200. An act to provide for the appointment of three additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York;

H. R. 12811. An act to provide for the appointment of one additional district judge for the eastern and western districts of South Carolina; and

H. J. Res. 425. Joint resolution providing for an investigation of Francis A. Winslow, United States district judge for the southern district of New York.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, bills of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 8295. An act for the appointment of an additional circuit judge for the ninth judicial circuit;

H. R. 13931. An act to authorize an appropriation for the construction of a building for a radio and communication center at Bolling Field, D. C.;

H. R. 14659. An act to provide for the appointment of two additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York;

H. R. 16658. An act to amend sections 116, 118, and 126 of the Judicial Code, as amended, to divide the eighth judicial circuit of the United States, and to create a tenth judicial circuit; and

H. R. 16714. An act making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed bills and a joint resolution of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 5193. An act to authorize the President of the United States to appoint an additional judge of the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of the State of Pennsylvania; and

S. J. Res. 209. Joint resolution to create a congressional committee to be known as the committee on narcotic traffic.

HARRIMAN GEOGRAPHIC CODE SYSTEM

Mr. TEMPLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 15.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 15. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives hereby are authorized and directed to pay, out of the contingent funds of the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, the sum of $2,000, or so much thereof as may be required, one half of said sum to be paid by the said Secretary of the Senate, the remaining half by the said Clerk of the House upon vouchers duly approved by the chairman of the of the joint committee of both Houses authorized by S. J. Res. 110 (Public Resolution No. 70, 69th Cong.), to consider the purchase of the right to an unrestricted use of the Harriman Geographic Code System under patents issued, or that may be issued, and also the unrestricted use of the copyrights issued, or that may be issued, in connection with the products of the Harriman Geographic Code System, for all governmental, administrative, or publication purposes for which the same may be desirable.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Senate concurrent resolution was agreed to.

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN

Mr. WINTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my own remarks on the subject of Washington, Lincoln, and our national life.

The SPEAKER. Without objection it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

Mr. WINTER. Mr. Speaker, it is well, 'mid the constant and engrossing activities of life, to occasionally pause and turn our thoughts upon the times, the measures, and the men who molded and founded our national existence and institutions. When we do homage to a great man, a great principle, a great cause and its defenders, we open our minds and hearts not only to give forth our meed of devotion to them, but there flows in a new measure of appreciation and gratitude. We realize in a larger degree the price of our inheritance. We are infused with new impulses. We are filled with higher purposes and nobler motives. It is most fitting and necessary that we occasionally remind ourselves of our debt to the forefathers, of the heroism of the creators of the Republic, of the high character of our leaders, of our duties as citizens, and of the destiny of this Republic.

What makes men great? Wherein are they great? What is true greatness? In the galaxy of those whom the world immortalizes are men of varied stamp and kind:

Socrates, the Athenian, dissipated error and superstition. His intellect and philosophy led the world nearer to truth. They bestowed upon him the laurel wreath of greatness.

Hannibal, terror of Rome, renewed the lost fire and strength of the Carthaginian race. He led them to victory with an inexorable purpose. He battled with and for his people through life unto death. For this they called him great.

Cæsar, builder of empire, with superior mind and skill flung far the armies and the borders of Rome. Where he marched the eagles of Rome remained. He ruled in peace. When he spoke the Roman Senate listened. He was acclaimed great.

Napoleon, prodigy of ages, towered in his military genius to heights of loneliness and solitude, an object of wonder, amazement, and pity. Victorious over continents, they hailed him great.

A youth conquered the world and they called him Alexander the Great.

To-day we honor and revere the name and the memory of George Washington, and we proclaim him greatest among the great. Greatest because he extended ordered liberty instead of military power; greatest because he fathered a nation of freemen upon the everlasting basis of self-government; greatest because surrounded by the most remarkable group of statesmen ever gathered in the world's history to found a new government, he towered above all, chosen and acknowledged, in leadership, in judgment, in wisdom, and in patriotic, unselfish devotion to his country and humanity.

He was great as was Alfred the Great; as was Lincoln; great in undying and unending benefit to the race; great in goodness of heart, in simplicity of life, in steadfastness of purpose, in purity of character, in service to his fellow men.

And so we bow in obeisance this day at the shrine of him who was "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen," and seek to imbue ourselves anew with that mighty spirit which sustained him and a whole people at a time which "tried men's souls." When the cause of liberty and free self-government was hanging in fateful balance he prevailed and conquered, human though he was, over ambition and pride, over dissension and betrayal, over neglect and opposition, over apathy and treason, over humiliation and shame, and lifted himself and a people to the heights of sacrifice, victory, independence, and glory. We would catch this morning a message from that valiant soul.

The world acclaims to-day that tall, strong, serene, just, good, and grand character so perfectly represented by yonder monument which rises in beautifully severe lines to its majestic heights—Washington, of whom Lincoln said:

His is the mightiest name of earth. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name, and in its naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on.

Imbued with his spirit let us meet the problems of this day and age. They are great and they are many. In State and church and court and home and school and office, in commercial mart, and in legislative hall we have need of integrity, wisdom, and patriotism. We have need, in this day of marked lawlessness and crime, not only of enforcement of law, but above all obedience to law. The time has arrived when it must be on the conscience of men and women in these United States, of every true American, to decide whether or not he or she will support the Constitution or support the Constitution breakers. With prophetic soul, looking far into the future, Washington in his Farewell Address said:

The basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and alter their constitutions of government; but the constitution which at any time exists, till changed by an explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all. The very idea of the power and right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government.

All combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, counteract, or awe the regular deliberation and action of the constituted authorities are destructive to this fundamental principle and of fatal tendency.

It is time for and I anticipate in the near future a universal wave of loyalty to law. That is the genius of the American people. The United States of America is being challenged by the lawless, and I look to see the American citizenry accept that challenge and rise en masse in support of our officials in asserting the dignity, the power, and the might of this Nation.

We are a peace-loving and not a warlike Nation. We desire no conquests. We are all for peace. No one wants war. But no man can say that war will never come again. We are the richest nation on the face of the globe. Besides civilized nations whose politics and national philosophy is to impose their rule upon other peoples, there are semibarbarian hordes of hundreds of millions, who like the Goths, Vandals, and Tartars of old may seek to overrun the earth. We know not what the distant future may bring forth. I trust that never again will we find ourselves utterly unprepared for war, thereby immeasurably increasing its cost in treasure and lives. If we are attacked, though we do not want war, we are at war. So far as I am concerned, we have, in my judgment, reached the irreducible minimum of our Army and Navy forces. Should we ever fail to properly defend our country against attack, we would be faithless to the teachings and the admonitions of Washington and our Revolutionary forbears. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

A mighty responsibility rests upon this age. We must so live that posterity may inherit as we have inherited; that the blessings of freedom may be preserved to them; that the infinite suffering of the past shall not have been in vain. This is the charge that rests upon this age—that liberty, now robed in the starry garment of the American goddess, armed with the sword of speech, protected by the white shield of the ballot, crowned with the coronet of equality, shall never be overthrown but shall stand erect and secure. If we shall fail through negligence or passion, partisanship or ambition, greed or selfishness, and endanger the life of this Nation, the spirit of liberty may withdraw from us forever.

If we shall continue in virtue, sobriety, morality, and spiritual ideals, and in vital power, as I believe we will; if we also continue to worship that great earthly trinity—Washington the father, Lincoln the emancipator, and Patriotism the monitor—our flag will continue to wave over a free and invincible Nation. American institutions will endure, and "this Government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Some days ago I saw a picture of a spring of water on the old Lincoln farm, where Lincoln as a child played. Who may say what strength, hopes, ideals, and inspirations, what visions, may have come to him in his plastic youth, mentally, morally, and spiritually, by the constant contemplation of that everlasting wellspring of pure water, one of the beautiful and useful manifestations of nature?

A noted writer of France in a work of fiction describes a spring of water which possessed miraculous qualities. Its magic elements gave to whomsoever might bathe in its pure depths vigor and inspiration. Those who sought its healing influence plunged beneath its surface, rose with energy flowing into every limb, with clearness of vision restored, with new and glorious life throbbing in their veins and on their lips a song of victory.

The recurring anniversary of Lincoln's birth should be to all of us a spring of patriotism renewing inspiration. As we remember the glorious history of our Nation and realize the blessings of our citizenship, as we review the splendid record and speak of Lincoln our visions should become clearer, our hearts should throb with new life and enthusiasm, and our purposes be strengthened.

On the 12th day of February the world honors one of its supremely great characters. The American Nation remembers the name of a martyred President, the deeds of a true statesman, the virtues of an ideal citizen. The people love the memory of a loving man.

On that day—and it is a magnificent thought and fact—representatives of state, of church and fraternity, of education and business throughout the length and breadth of this Republic and across the seas pay homage to this character of plain grandeur and receive inspiration from the act. But the most significant tribute, doubtless, uttered by a million lips from the rising to the setting of the sun is the ordinary expression of the ordinary citizen amid the ordinary scenes of life: "Yes; Lincoln was a great man." How common the phrase, but, echoed from the hearts of millions, it rises to the grandest pean of praise ever given to mortal man. Behold the sublime spectacle of a Nation of free men who that day in spirit turn their faces to that simple monument at Springfield where rests their great captain!

THE MAN

With his wisdom, his sympathy, his care, Lincoln seemed the very parent of all the people. Thus it was the soldiers in the heat of battle, in the weariness of the march, in the pain of the hospital, spoke simply, naturally, and lovingly of "Father Abraham." What a world of meaning that simple appellation conveys!

Ah, it is because Lincoln was a man of the people, which I interpret to mean that though raised to the highest eminence this world can offer, his heart yet throbbed with sympathy for his kind; though he was the leader of a people, he yet remained humble in spirit; though he was the instrument of a mighty Providence to perform mighty things, yet he was ever intensely human; and though, in the words of an eloquent American—

He was the grandest figure of the fiercest Civil War, yet he is the gentlest memory of our world.

THE PRODUCT OF NATIONALITY

Composite of all their trials, virtues, and aspirations, Lincoln was the people's spirit incarnate. He was the product of nationality. He was the essence of Americanism. I once read a poem the words of which I can not recall or the name of the author, but the theme and ideal was that the forces and influences that produced Lincoln lie deep in the century-long background of a people's life. There was the Puritan, idealist, ribbed with fortitude and stern conviction; there was the Quaker, altruist, blessed with peace and brotherly love; there was the cavalier, enthusiast, graced with chivalry and splendid gallantry; there was the frontiersman, of primal vigor, raised through danger and toil to higher ways, and passing down through generations the elements of sturdy growth.

The log settlements, danger environed, contributed the ingredient of kinship; the wild border recreation gave the saving grace of humor: axe and plow lent strength and power; the long years of waiting and battling bred self-control and courage; the illimitable distances of the open were reflected in deep, far-seeing eyes; the mountains and plains infused independence; the freedom of the West ingrained love of liberty; the contemplation of nature wrought reverence. And behold! In the fullness of time came the resultant product of all—Lincoln, the American!

THE STATESMAN

The greatest qualities of Lincoln as a statesman I conceive to be his wonderful insight and marvelous poise. He stood between two factions in the North. There were those whose mission it was to agitate. They were the radicals, the firebrands. They flamed over the Nation and thundered into the ears of the people, "slavery is a crime." They roused the North from its lethargy. Then there were those who cared not for the slave or slavery, but all for the Union.

Abraham Lincoln came to supreme control amid threats of violence, amid discord, tumult, and frenzy. The very foundations of the Government seemed to be sinking away. But his convictions and resolutions remained unshaken, his judgment stood firm. He gave to all things their relative proportion, and to each its importance and its time. He steadily kept in view the two great objects: First, to save the Union; second, to free the slave. Through all the din and smoke and confusion of battle, amid the exhortations of the radicals and the warnings of the conservatives he kept balanced and poised; and, in the very vortex of clashing influences that raged and beat about him, unerringly foresaw the time for the final act in the stupendous drama of the Union, the awful tragedy of slavery.

The border States, the pro-slavery unionists, were threatening to throw down their arms did he free the slave. The anti-slavery men of the North were threatening to defeat him and his policies at the election did he not comply with their demand and issue the Emancipation Proclamation. England was threatening war. The Union armies had met with repeated defeat. The people were clamoring for something, they knew not what. But amid it all that great figure at Washington stood steadfast.

Lincoln refused all demands. Yet at that very time there reposed in his desk the order for emancipation, written by his hand, alone and unseen of men, waiting, waiting for the time to come, the hour to strike. The gaunt, awkward, lonely man in the White House was the one amid all the surging millions, the legions of soldiery, the scores of generals, the army of statesmen whose vision was true.

The Constitution made slavery lawful; he had taken solemn oath to uphold the Constitution. Only as a military necessity, as a measure of war, to save the very existence of the Nation created by the Constitution, could he free the slave. Moreover, when done it must be sustained by public sentiment. Lastly, there must come a Union victory at arms to give the North the spirit and courage to sustain the act and press the war to successful conclusion. All these vital events and conditions must first concur.

With marvelous tact he restrained the Union abolitionists and led forward the slave unionists. Oh, the wonderful patience of this man! His soul was as eager as any to see slavery abolished. That had been his hope from the beginning of his administration, aye, from the day when, as a boy, he witnessed the sale of slaves from the auction block at New Orleans and took a vow that if the opportunity ever was given him he would strike that institution and strike it hard. But with the wisdom of a seer, the vision of a prophet, he waited. He knew the agony of spirit that comes to those who must stand and wait.

No wonder that rugged face grew sad. Every line and wrinkle and furrow spoke pathetically of sorrow and suffering and patience. But at last, at last, the time came! The booming of the victorious cannon of the Union at Antietam struck the hour! Lincoln stretched forth his mighty arms, the chains clanked, and 4,000,000 slaves were lifted from the darkness of bondage into the light of liberty!

And then there came a man, a silent man, from out the West, who moved like a figure of destiny across the lines to the forefront of battle, and the armies of the Confederacy surrendered to General Grant. The Union, the Union, was preserved to give force and effect to every line of that decree; the Union remained, and self-government, Lincoln's government of the people, by the people, and for the people, ceased to be an experiment among men and became an everliving fact. The Government had proven that it could survive a civil war. God's will was done. The Republic lived! The slave was free! "Union and liberty" were "now" in reality, "and forever, one and inseparable!"

Behold him through the lens of passing time—
The furrowed face of deep and careworn line,
The dim, sad, vision-seeing eyes that peered
To read the future grim and black and feared;
That massive head with contour nobly strong,
That tall, bent form that bore a Nation's wrong.
What agony, which creased that rugged brow!
What grief, which caused that mighty frame to bow!
Upon his soul lay big his ancient pledge
To smite the curse of human vassalage;
Upon his conscience sat the weight of state,
To save his country from disunion's fate.
When voices urged and sharpened pens reviled,
When prayers arose and threats rang loud and wild,
And while the struggling forces surged and heaved
While wide the line of battle swung and weaved,
When shook the great Republic's pillared wall
And all seemed tott'ring to its awful fall,
With patience then—and poise sublime—he stood
And held, restrained and calmed, hot souls who would Have ruined all with blind, fanatic haste,
Wrecked freedom's cause, yet laid the Union waste.
With courage firm he roused the Union heart
To save the Nation though it took slave mart;
To keep the country as one, lasting whole
Yet answer true the promptings of its soul;
Foresaw the time, with prophet ken, to give
The slave his boon and bid him rise and live.
Oh, mighty patience that could firmly stand
While clamor raged throughout the flaming land!
Oh, mighty wisdom that could see the hour
To use the lever of that pen and power!
Oh, mighty purpose that could wake and raise
A people's heart and life to higher ways!
'Twixt Scylla and Charybdis held he firm
The Ship of State. Ours now to see and learn,
And ever know the greatness of the man
Who, in the wondrous scope of God's great plan,
From lowly station came and climbed and rose
To pinnacle of power; to break the woes
And right the wrong of unrequited toil;
Secession's armed force forever foil;
Preserve self-government unto mankind,
That all the earth that blessing yet may find—
And then was taken. To forever own
A name that finds in every heart a throne.

What is the message of the life of Lincoln to us?—

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on.

On in the spirit of brotherhood; on in the performance of duty; on in the attainment of wisdom; on to a patriotism as pure as the firmament and as deathless as the stars; on to a civilization and a grandeur higher and more exalted than has yet been conceived in the dreams and hopes of man.

THE PRESENT

There are those in these days who are sometimes discouraged and dismayed. They point to the agitation and unrest, the evils of corporate rapacity, the strife between capital and labor, the instances of official corruption. They tell us that we are growing worse. Friends, I am an optimist. I would believe that this Nation, by force of the nature of things, by force of the logic of history, by force of the virtue inherent in our institutions and our people, is not only to elevate itself but is to lead this world in every good thing that is to come to mankind. I would so believe if the evidences of evil were multiplied an hundredfold. For the eye of faith and reason can behold the rising of a still more glorious light upon this Nation than has ever yet illuminated its face. Beneath the discreditable things that have broken out upon the surface of our national life you can hear, if you will put your ear to its breast, the deep, rythmic beats of the great, strong, sound, honest American heart; that heart is still there as pure as ever, and more powerful than ever to distribute the lifeblood of purity and patriotism into every artery of the body politic. These dark things are but spots upon the sun! That they sometimes seem to increase and grow more malignant is but the result of a cleansing process that is driving them from our national system; the Nation is throwing off these evils, it is purging itself and will stand forth renewed and purified.

"Let not your heart be troubled." We are not retrograding; we are but in the turbulent center of another tremendous movement in advance. This whole Nation will rise, aye, has risen, and is rising to a higher, better, cleaner moral plane. And, after all is said and done, all this regeneration and cleansing is but the stirring inmpulse toward righteousness, always pulsating in the great, true heart of the American common people.

Our beloved country will go on in her great mission, cherishing her matchless history, cherishing her stainless honor, cherishing that spirit of fraternity, that spirit of equality, that spirit of unity, faith, and hope, the spirit of Washington and Lincoln, which alone can lift us to that high destiny that dwells for us in the coming years.

ADDRESS OF HON. NICHOLAS LONGWORTH

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, I have a series of unanimous-consent requests to make. I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD by printing the address delivered by the distinguished Speaker of this House at Philadelphia on February 22, 1929, on the occasion when the University of Pennsylvania conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws. [Applause.]

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, under the leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following address delivered by Hon. NICHOLAS LONGWORTH, Speaker of the House of Representatives, before the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa., on February 22, 1929:

GEORGE WASHINGTON AND THE EFFECT OF HIS EXAMPLE AND PRECEPTS UPON THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES TO-DAY

I need hardly say, I think, that I am profoundly appreciative of the honor you have done me in inviting me to speak to-day at this meeting held in commemoration of the birth of the Father of our Country.

No man could fail to be. These ceremonies held by this great and ancient university have become historic. They have endured, as I understand, for nearly a hundred years, and men of great distinction have accepted the invitation to address you upon these occasions. Certainly the roster of your orators in the past 30 years contains the names of men of peculiarly high standing in their day and generation—Presidents of the United States, ministers of foreign governments, American ambassadors, members of the Cabinet, governors of States, Senators, Members of the House of Representatives, presidents of universities, eminent divines, authors, men internationally known for their intellectual accomplishment—truly it is a roll of honor.

So far as I know this is the first time that anyone holding the office of the Speaker of the House of Representatives has appeared here. I rejoice to be here, because it confers honor upon me not only as an individual but added honor and dignity to the office I hold.

It is peculiarly fitting that these ceremonies should be held in the great city of Philadelphia, which has been truly called the cradle of American liberty, and under the auspices of the great university which conferred upon Washington the honorary degree of doctor of laws, and in which many of his family connections were students.

George Washington was one of the great Americans of all times, and if versatility is to be considered as the supreme test, certainly the greatest. Eminently successful in all his many sides, he was a farmer, a business man, an explorer, a founder of corporations, an engineer, a matchless military commander, a consummate statesman, and a great President. In fine, in their completeness, the mighty deeds of Washington are unsurpassed, unsurpassable, and beyond compare.

He was one of the first educators of his time in the sense that he continually advocated education and learning for the youth of the country. In his will he left a sum, very substantial in those days, for the endowment of a university to be established within the limits of the District of Columbia under the auspices of the General Government, and in that part of the will providing for the endowment he said:

"That as it has always been a source of serious regret with me to see the youth of these United States sent to foreign countries for the purpose of education, often before their minds were formed or they had imbibed any adequate ideas of the happiness of their own, contracting too frequently not only habits of dissipation and extravagance but principles unfriendly to republican government and to the true and genuine liberties of mankind, which thereafter are rarely overcome. For these reasons it has been my ardent wish to see a plan devised on a liberal scale which would have a tendency to spread systematic ideas through all parts of this rising empire, thereby to do away with local attachments and State prejudices as far as the nature of things would, or, indeed, ought to admit, from our national councils. Looking anxiously forward to the accomplishment of so desirable an object as this is (in my estimation), my mind has not been able to contemplate any plan more likely to effect the measure than the establishment of a university in a central part of the United States to which the youth of fortune and talents from all parts thereof might be sent for the completion of their education in all the branches of polite literature, in arts and sciences, in acquiring knowledge in the principles of politics and good government, and, as a matter of infinite importance, in my judgment, by associating with each other and forming friendships in juvenile years, be enabled to free themselves in a proper degree from those local prejudices and habitual jealousies which have just been mentioned and which, when carried to excess, are never failing sources of disquietude to the public mind and pregnant of mischievous consequences to this country."

It would be hard to conceive of a stronger and more illuminating argument as to the necessity for the youth of the country to steer clear of geographical, racial, and religious prejudices, and to acquire knowledge of and respect for the principles upon which the Government of this country is founded.

As an engineer, Washington was undoubtedly the leader in his time, and perhaps under all the conditions one of the greatest in history. Certainly no one has ever excelled him in clear vision and farsightedness. He was the father of our system of internal waterways, which has done so much to develop all sections of the country. In a few months the greatest canalization project that America has ever undertaken, with the sole exception of the Panama Canal, will be completed. By a system of locks and dams the Ohio River will be made navigable at all seasons of the year from Pittsburgh to the Mississippi River. It can not fail to be of immense benefit not only to the fertile and industrial sections through which the Ohio River flows but to the country as a whole.

Washington was an earnest advocate of the improvement of waterways through canalization and initiated and completed many such projects. From the fact that he surveyed great areas along the Ohio and purchased large tracts of land in these sections I have not the least doubt that he foresaw a day in which this great project would be completed.

As an example of Washington's marvelous foresight, due in large part to his engineering skill, I am about to quote a writing of his in 1793. At a meeting of the Washington Bicentennial Commission, of which I am a member, at the White House the other day, presided over by President Coolidge, the historian of the commission, Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, mentioned the fact that a document was in existence in which it was made plain that Washington foresaw the development of aviation.

Doctor Hart said, I think, that he had not seen the document. Through the courtesy of Mr. Henry Woodhouse, president of the Aerial League of America, I have obtained a copy of it. It is in the form of a passport, delivered by him to J. P. Blanchard as he was starting on the first ascension ever made by a human being on the Western Hemisphere, and runs as follows:

GEORGE WASHINGTON,
President of the United States of America.

To all to whom these presents shall come:

The bearer hereof, Mr. Blanchard, a citizen of France, proposing to ascend in a balloon from the city of Philadelphia at 10 o'clock a. m., this day, to pass in such direction and to descend in such place as circumstances may render most convenient. These are therefore to recommend to all citizens of the United States, and others, that in his passage, descent, return, or journeying elsewhere they oppose no hindrance or molestation to the said Mr. Blanchard; and, that on the contrary, they receive and aid him with that humanity and good will which may render honor to their country and justice to an individual so distinguished by his efforts to establish and advance an art, in order to make it useful to mankind in general.

Given under my hand and seal at the city of Philadelphia this 9th day of January, 1793, and of the independence of America the seventeenth.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Nearly 200 years after the birth of Washington there comes for the first time another engineer to succeed him in the Presidency, one whose professional career bears worthy comparison with that of Washington, and if I may be permitted a prediction it is that his administration of the greatest and most influential governmental position in the world, the Presidency of the United States, will bear worthy comparison with that of the father.

Time will not permit reference to the mighty accomplishments of Washington as a military commander, as a statesman, and as President of the United States. They are known of all men. No word of mine could add or detract one iota from their eternal glory.

It is of cretain characteristics of his mind and personality that I desire to make mention, which influenced his entire life both private and public, influenced the creation and establishment of our system of Government, influenced our growth and progress as a Nation, and profoundly influence us to-day. I refer to his rugged patriotism, his love of his fellowmen and his broad tolerance of their racial customs and their religious beliefs.

He was a stern opponent of sectionalism. He believed in the development of the country as a whole, and not of one section in preference to or at the expense of another. He cared nothing as to the race from which any man might have sprung, provided only he was a good citizen.

He was a religious man but was as far from being a bigot as it is possible for anyone to be. While he was an Episcopalian, he attended many different forms of religious worship. We find in his diary, in July, 1791, this paragraph:

"Sunday, 3rd: Received, and answered an address from the inhabitants of York town and there being no Episcopal minister present in the place, I went to hear morning service performed in the Dutch Reformed Church, which, being in that language not a word of which I understood, I was in no danger of becoming a proselyte to its religion by the eloquence of the preacher."

While not in nearly so great numbers as now, there were many different forms of religious worship practiced in Washington's time. Shortly after his inauguration as President he received, I believe, from every church in the Nation addresses assuring him of its respect, support, and cooperation in his administration of the office of the Presidency.

To express the sentiments of the Roman Catholics, John Carroll, Bishop elect of Baltimore, on behalf of the clergy, and Charles Carroll and others for the laity, presented to President Washington the following address, in part as follows:

"You encourage respect for religion and inculcate by words and actions that principle on which the welfare of nations so much depends that a superintending Providence governs the events of the world and watches over the conduct of men. Your exalted maxims and unwearied attention to the moral and physical improvement of our country have produced already the happiest effects. Under your administration America is animated with zeal for the attainment and encouragement of useful literature. She improves her agriculture, extends her commerce, and acquires with foreign nations dignity unknown to her before."

President Washington's reply was, in part, as follows:

"To the Roman Catholics in the United States of America.

"America, under the smiles of Divine Providence—the protection of a good government—and the cultivation of manners, morals, and piety, can not fail in attaining an uncommon degree of eminence in literature, commerce, agriculture, improvements at home, and respectability abroad. I hope ever to see America among the foremost nations in examples of justice and liberality. And I presume that your fellow citizens will not forget the patriotic part which you took in the accomplishment of this revolution, and the establishment of your Government, or the important assistance which they received from a nation in which the Roman Catholic faith is professed. May the members of your society in America, animated alone by the pure spirit of Christianity, and still conducting themselves as the faithful subjects of our free Government, enjoy every temporal and spiritual felicity."

The German Reformed Church dispatched an address to the same effect, to which Washington made appropriate reply, saying in one sentence,

"I am happy in believing that I shall always find in you and the German Reformed congregations in the United States a conduct corresponding to such worthy and pious expression."

In reply to an address presented by the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church, he said:

"I will observe that the general prevalence of piety, philanthropy, honesty, industry, and economy seems in the ordinary course of human affairs particularly necessary for advancing and confirming the happiness of our country. While all men within our territories are protected in worshipping the Deity according to the dictates of their consciences, it is rationally to be expected from them in return that they will all be emulous in evincing the sincerity of their professions by the innocence of their lives and the beneficence of their actions; for no man who is profligate in his morals, or a bad member of the civil community, can possibly be a true Christian, or a credit to his own religious society."

In reply to an address from the committee of the United Baptist Churches of Virginia, he said:

"If I could have entertained the slightest apprehension that the Constitution framed in the convention, where I had the honor to preside, might possibly endanger the religious rights of any ecclesiastical society, certainly I would never have placed my signature to it; and if I could now conceive that the General Government might ever be so administered as to render the liberty of conscience insecure, I beg you will be persuaded that no one would be more zealous than myself to establish effectual barriers against the horrors of spiritual tyranny and every species of religious persecution."

Among other religious bodies presenting addresses was the religious society called Quakers, the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the German Lutherans, the Reformed Dutch Church, the directors of the Society of the United Brethren for Propagating the Gospel Among the Heathen, the convention of the Universal Church, and the non-Christian Hebrews. In reply to this last address, Washington wrote:

"I thank you with great sincerity for your congratulations. I rejoice that a spirit of liberality and philanthropy is much more prevalent than it formerly was among the enlightened nations of the earth, and that your brethren will benefit thereby in proportion as it shall become still more extensive * * *. May the same wonder-working Deity, who long since delivered the Hebrews from their Egyptian oppressors and planted them in the promised land, whose providential agency has lately been conspicuous in establishing these United States as an independent nation, still continue to water them with the dews of Heaven, and to make the inhabitants of every denomination participate in the temporal and spiritual blessings of that people, whose God is Jehovah."

While there have been occasional outbursts of bigotry and intolerance in this country, we have in the main followed the precepts of Washington in this regard, and to my mind that is one of the fundamental reasons why we have grown to be so immensely great, prosperous, and influential a nation. It is impossible for me to conceive how we could have so progressed had the American people divided into groups inveighing against each other on questions of social or racial hatred.

It is for that reason that I am a firm believer in responsible party government in America, without which I do not believe that a representative democratic republic like ours can long endure.

I believe that the governmental affairs of the Nation must always in the long run be administered by a majority political party, commissioned by the people to act for them with the power to so act and the will to accept full responsibility for such action.

So far as the Congress of the United States is concerned, I believe in the two-party system of Government. I believe that there always should be in the Congress a party having sufficient votes to pass legislation as commissioned by the American people, and to accept praise or blame for what they may do, and, as a corollary, I believe that there should be a strong cohesive minority party prepared to criticize the action of the majority, that the people may fully understand wherein the majority party has lived or failed to live up to its trust. I insist, too, that these two great national parties should be united within each other on fundamentals of economic policy, and not on ephemeral questions due to temporary public hysteria, and, above all, not upon questions of geography, race, or religion. Such political divisions as these I believe to be the bane of Europe and of most of the world to-day, and the reason for the inefficiency and lack of stability of most of their governments.

You may ask why I have declared that the precepts of Washington are in the greatest degree influential on our mode of party government to-day. You may say that there were no great national political parties when he was President. That is true, in a sense, because the country had not yet become entirely adapted to its new form of government, and there had been no time for great parties to be organized on fundamentals of economic policy. But Washington and his supporters were firmly united on certain great fundamentals of policy. He frequently voiced his opposition to factionalism, and I have read enough to-day of his writings to show that he was a stern opponent of political divisions dependent upon sectionalism or racial or religious hatred.

Again, Washington was more responsible than anyone for the adoption of the Constitution, which contained at least two provisions entirely different from any constitution then in existence, written or otherwise, of any other nation. I allude to the sections providing for the election every two years of the entire House of Representatives and for the complete divorcement between the legislative and executive branches of the Government. These two provisions were unique at that time, and are practically unique to-day among the nations. To my mind they are among the most beneficent provisions of the Constitution, because they insure, on the one hand, against Executive usurpation of power, and, on the other, insure stability of government. There is no chance in America of governments falling overnight as they do in other nations. The Government of France has fallen a dozen times in the last two years and came within six votes of falling only a few days ago. There is no country to-day in Europe, except England at the moment, and few countries in the world, where there is in their legislative body any one party with power to legislate. There they have all sorts of blocs, based upon every degree of political hair splitting.

Imagine a House of Representatives of the United States made up of political parties calling themselves conservatives, laborites, liberals, independents, socialists, communists, constitutionalists, agrarians, liberal prohibitionists, lefts, Democrats, Republicans, antisemites, Catholics, radicals, peoples' party, orthodox Calvinists, coalitionists, progressives, unionists, standpatters, evolutionists, nationalists, social democrats, national socialists, Republican Democrats, and national conservatives—and yet these are only some of the parties which have elected representatives in the national legislatures in Europe.

Of course, in all of these legislatures the executive branch of the Government is represented by the responsible ministry and can exercise some control and can produce some results by trading and barter among various groups. They manage to wobble along somehow.

But such methods do not fit into our institutions. In Europe there may be politicians sufficiently adept in legerdemain to place in the silk hat the fragile eggs of coalition among a score of minority blocs and then triumphantly lift out the expected rabbit by the ears, but it simply can not be done in the House of Representatives. We have no direct connection with the executive whatever. We are responsible only to ourselves and to our constituents. To legislate for the benefit of the whole country we must have at all times a sufficient number of members united together on fundamental policies, a cohesive majority able to carry out those policies.

Let me speak for a moment of the body over which I have the honor to preside. It is composed of 435 Members. They come from every section of the country, from districts varying in climatic conditions almost from the Arctic to the Tropic. As a consequence the interests of their constituencies are not only diverse but often absolutely antagonistic one to the other. If they were to divide on sectional lines, what hope would there be for the prosperity and progress of the country as a whole? Among the citizens of the country there are 40 different races, either born abroad or of foreign racial origin. Forty different languages are daily spoken in America. Can you conceive of a House of Representatives composed of groups and blocs based on racial origin? Yet that is what might happen if we strayed away from our present system.

There are 60 different forms of religious practice and belief in America. Conceive of a House of Representatives divided into groups and blocs based upon religion! Yet these are the recognized bases of political divisions in most countries of Europe.

We must realize that there are only three alternatives for a representative democratic republic of which we are to-day the only pure example—a monarchy, a dictatorship, or some form of communism. The surest way to drift toward any one of these alternatives is to abandon our party system in favor of the foreign group or bloc system. I pray that the day may never come when great political parties in America shall divide on the basis of sectionalism, race prejudice, or religious bigotry.

Twelve times on the opening day of Congress I have taken the solemn oath, pronounced for every Member, to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and to bear true faith and allegiance to the same." As we raise our hands we are confronted by two portraits. The one on the left of the Speaker's table, George Washington, and on the right, his friend and comrade in arms, General Lafayette. An oath taken under these circumstances makes one feel almost as if one were in the physical presence of these two great men, both so largely responsible for the creation of the Government, the beneficent results of which we are to-day enjoying more fully than ever before. Let us see to it that we may never depart from the fundamental principles of that Government, and if we so adhere, we may go on, confident in the knowledge that government of the people, for the people, and by the people may not perish from the earth, and that America may go forward along her triumphant march of progress to heights undreamed of even by him whose memory we publicly revere here to-day, and whom we reverently hail as "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen!"

RECESS

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that on the calendar days of March 1, 2, and 3 it may be in order at any time to move to take a recess.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Connecticut asks unanimous consent that it may be in order to move to take a recess on any of the calendar days of March 1, 2, and 3. Is there objection?

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, are we to have a session on Sunday?

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, I am making this request as a matter of precaution. On March 1 I have been informed it is the desire of our Democratic friends to hold a caucus in this room in the afternoon of that day. I wish, if necessary, to be able to move to take a recess for that purpose. On Saturday it is the hope of the Republicans of the House to hold our caucus in this room, and I wish to be able to take a recess for that purpose, and it will surely be necessary to take a recess in order to meet on March 4.

Mr. RAYBURN. The gentleman does not mean to say that the Republicans are going to hold a caucus?

Mr. TILSON. Well, the Republicans have held such things in the last two or three Congresses.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, how about the Socialists having a caucus?

Mr. TILSON. After this request is granted, if necessary I shall ask that the Socialist Party may hold their caucus in this room at any time that it is not otherwise occupied. [Laughter.]

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

There was no objection.

ENGROSSMENT AND ENROLLING OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Connecticut asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a resolution, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Concurrent Resolution 59

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring) That during the remainder of the present session of Congress the engrossment and enrolling of bills and joint resolutions by printing, as provided by an act of Congress, approved March 2, 1895, may be suspended, and said bills and joint resolutions may be engrossed and enrolled by the most expeditious methods consistent with accuracy.

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, this is the usual resolution made necessary on account of the pressure of business at the end of the session.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I want to ask the leader when we can hope to take up the Private Calendar? There are a number of bills on that calendar and they will have to be acted upon by the Senate, so we ought not to wait until the last days before sending them over to the Senate.

Mr. TILSON. I hope that it may not be necessary to wait so long as the gentleman suggests.

Mr. SWING. Can the gentleman give us any idea when the Private Calendar will be called?

Mr. TILSON. The Consent Calendar, covering public bills, should first be considered.

Then, there are some special rules on very important matters which will be presented for consideration; but it is my hope that we may have consideration of the bills on the Private Calendar at an early date.

Mr. SWING. Why can we not have a night session either to-night or to-morrow night and dispose of the bills unobjected to on the Private Calendar?

Mr. TILSON. I am not willing to promise at the present moment to ask for what the gentleman suggests.

Mr. SWING. I hope the gentleman will arrange to dispose of them at an early time.

Mr. TILSON. I hope that we may soon have time to consider at least the bills unobjected to on the Private Calendar.

Mr. GARNER of Texas. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TILSON. Yes.

Mr. GARNER of Texas. There was so much noise and confusion in the Hall a moment ago that I did not understand the gentleman with respect to his resolution authorizing the engrossment of bills in the most expeditious method possible. That is about what the resolution provides?

Mr. TILSON. Yes.

Mr. GARNER of Texas. This is the usual resolution passed at the end of each Congress?

Mr. TILSON. Yes; the one I sent to the desk is the one passed two years ago at this time and is in exactly the same language.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. UNDERHILL. Mr. Speaker, I have several privileged reports from the Committee on Accounts, presenting resolutions, and I ask for their immediate consideration.

FRED R. MILLER

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the first resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 280

Resolved, That there be paid out of the contingent fund of the House $1,200 to Fred R. Miller for extra and expert services as expert legal examiner to the Committee on Pensions from March 4, 1928, to March 4, 1929, first and second sessions of the Seventieth Congress.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next resolution from the Committee on Accounts.

ASSISTANT CLERK TO THE COMMITTEE ON ENROLLED BILLS

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 316

Resolved, That the chairman of the Committee on Enrolled Bills be authorized to appoint an assistant clerk to the Committee on Enrolled Bills, who shall receive compensation at the rate of $6 per diem during the sessions of the Seventieth Congress, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, payment to commence from the date such clerk entered upon the performance of duties, which shall be ascertained and evidenced by the certificate of the chairman of said committee.

With the following committee amendments:

In line 6, after the word "from," insert "February 14," and strike out all other words on lines 6, 7, 8, and 9, and in line 7, in lieu of the language therein, the following: "Services to terminate on March 4, 1929."

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman a question about the first resolution. Was that to take care of the pension men?

Mr. UNDERHILL. Yes; one of them.

Mr. SNELL. Is there a resolution for the other one?

Mr. UNDERHILL. Yes.

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Clerk will report the next resolution.

MARGARET ELMA NAYLOR

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 311

Resolved, That there be paid out of the contingent fund of the House $1,000 to Margaret Elma Naylor for extra and expert services to the Committee on Invalid Pensions, from December 15, 1927, to October 20, 1928, as assistant clerk to said committee, by detail from the Bureau of Pensions, pursuant to law.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next resolution.

LEGISLATIVE CLERK

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 315

Resolved, That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, until otherwise provided by law, compensation at the rate of $2,740 per annum for the services of a legislative clerk subject to appointment and removal by the minority leader of the House.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next resolution.

BINGHAM W. MATHIAS

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 301

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of the contingent fund of the House, to Bingham W. Mathias, clerk of the Committee on Invalid Pensions, the sum of $420 per annum, payable monthly, as additional compensation until otherwise authorized by law.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next resolution.

ADDITIONAL CLERICAL SERVICES IN ENROLLING ROOM

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 338

Resolved, That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House of Representatives during the remainder of the present session not exceeding $100 for additional clerical services in the enrolling room.

The resolution was agreed to.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE NAVY DEPARTMENT AND THE NAVAL SERVICE

Mr. FRENCH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 16714) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments, disagree with the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Idaho? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. FRENCH, HARDY, TABER, AYRES, and OLIVER of Alabama.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Mr. FRENCH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members of the House, all of whom heretofore have been granted leave to extend their remarks in connection with the life, character, and public services of Members whom we memorialized the other day, be granted additional time within which to extend their remarks, so that the remarks may be included in the final issue of the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Idaho asks unanimous consent that all Members may have until the final day of printing the RECORD permission to extend their remarks in the manner indicated. Is there objection?

Mr. TILSON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and of course I shall not object, I should like to impress upon the membership of the House the desirability and appropriateness of putting something in the RECORD concerning those deceased colleagues with whom they were most intimately associated. In order to make these memorial volumes what they ought to be, at least the usual number of Members who have known our deceased colleagues best should write something about them so that it may be placed in the memorial volume. Unless this is done I am afraid that the program which we have laid out for ourselves in connection with memorial services will lose much of its significance.

Mr. FRENCH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have included in the request that the four pages that appear in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD giving the exercises that occurred on February 20, 1929, be reprinted immediately preceding the extensions in the RECORD that will then appear.

Mr. LINTHICUM. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. FRENCH. Yes.

Mr. LINTHICUM. I want to ask how it is proposed to finally print these volumes. Are they to be printed as memorials just as we have been doing in the past?

Mr. FRENCH. Yes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Idaho?

There was no objection.

CLAIMS OF THE SHOSHONE INDIANS

Mr. LEAVITT. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (S. 710) conferring jurisdiction on the Court of Claims to hear, adjudicate, and render judgment in claims which the northwestern bands of Shoshone Indians may have against the United States, and I ask unanimous consent that the statement be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Idaho calls up the conference report on the bill S. 710 and asks unanimous consent that the statement be read in lieu of the report. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 710) conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to hear, adjudicate, and render judgment in claims which the Northwestern Bands of Shoshone Indians may have against the United States having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its amendment numbered 2.

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the House numbered 3 and 4, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: After the words "for the benefit of any" and before the words "of said Indians," insert the words "band or bands," so as to make the amendment read: "Any payment which may have been made by the United States, including gratuities for the benefit of any band or bands of said Indians or for their support and civilization, shall not operate as an estoppel, but may be pleaded as a set-off in said suit"; and the House agree to the same.

SCOTT LEAVITT,
W. H. SPROUL,
JOHN M. EVANS,
Managers on the part of the House.

LYNN J. FRAZIER,
THOS. D. SCHALL,
HENRY F. ASHURST,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 710) conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to hear, adjudicate, and render judgment in claims which the Northwestern Bands of Shoshone Indians may have against the United States, submit the following written statement explaining the effect of the action agreed on by the conference committee and submitted in the accompanying conference report:

On amendment No. 1: Clarifies and completes the statement to which it is added and does not change the intention of the section. The Senate agrees.

On amendment No. 2: Places a restriction as to the maximum attorneys' fee, in addition to the "not to exceed 10 per centum of the recovery" already in the bill. The Court of Claims is empowered to set the fee within the percentage limitation, and their action in cases of this type over a number of years has been studied. As a result, no reason for the second limitation is seen. It is therefore recommended that the House recede.

On amendment No. 3: Reduces the interest rate to be paid from date of judgment from 5 to 4 per cent. It is agreed that this is reasonable; and the Senate recedes.

On amendment No. 4: Provides that the proceeds shall be subject to appropriation by Congress only for the health, education, and industrial advancement of said Indians. This is considered a wise provision; and the Senate conferees agree.

SCOTT LEAVITT,
W. H. SPROUL,
JOHN M. EVANS,
Managers on the part of the House.

The conference report was agreed to.

CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS AT BOLLING FIELD

Mr. MORIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 13931) authorizing an appropriation for the construction of buildings for barracks at Bolling Field, D. C., disagree to the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 13931, disagree to the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference. Is there objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, so far as I could understand the reading this is the House bill with reference to certain construction at Bolling Field. My reading of the Senate RECORD leads me to believe that the Senate has reverted to any old-time habit of putting on these bills riders that are not at all germane. As I understand, to this minor bill, affecting certain construction at Bolling Field, there have been added two amendments embodying matters unrelated to each other and unrelated to the bill. One of them is for two so-called sea-going retrievers which are to be constructed, and another is new construction at a military post in New York State. All of these are for new construction and not at all related to the matter in the House bill.

As to these matters the House has no information, no report before it, no examination has been had by the Budget so far as the House knows. While it may be that in conference information may be furnished to the conferees, the House will never know anything about it. It seems to me that the House ought to call a halt on this orgy of legislation for new construction by the War Department.

My view is strengthened by the fact that we find so much difficulty in getting the War Department to cooperate with other branches of the Government in the use of those facilities that are so freely being given to the War Department, to secure their use for the Government and for saving to the Treasury. Particularly in the last two years very important work of the topographical survey has been held up in a great measure by the refusal of the War Department, or by the failure to act, which comes to a refusal, to make available units of the Air Service in aerial photography.

Under such circumstances the result has been the slowing up of the national topographic map which is being made at joint expense of the States and the Nation. Our committee having in charge appropriations for the Geological Survey feel that much of this work could, without interference with their military duties, be done by the Army Air Service, resulting in saving to the treasuries of the States and the Federal Government as well, material speeding up of the topographic map of the country. The matter is covered by an item in the Interior appropriation bill for 1930, where authority is given for such cooperation. The matter was also considered in connection with the 1930 Army appropriation bill, and I have understood that such cooperation would be granted by the Army Air Service, in so far as possible, without interference with their military duties.

The trouble is the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Davison, has the theory that private concerns should be built up by Government contracts. We feel that such action is a subsidy, an unnecessary subsidy, as to contracts for service which the Army Air Corps is in a position to render.

We supposed, however, the coming year would see a real effort at such cooperation by the Army. Reports now come to me that Assistant Secretary Davison is taking an attitude as to this in his statements to the commercial concerns that is not at all reassuring as to the prospect for any such cooperation. The department knows the desire of Congress, but so far as the Assistant Secretary is concerned does give evidence of compliance.

There needs to be a readjustment of views between the Army and the Congress.

Mr. EDWARDS. I demand the regular order.

Mr. CRAMTON. I object.

TEMPORARY COMMITTEE ON ACCOUNTS

The SPEAKER. Under authority of United States Code, page 8, paragraph 97, providing for the appointment of a temporary committee on accounts to act until the meeting of the next session of the House of Representatives, the Chair appoints the following committee: Mr. UNDERHILL, Mr. PERKINS, and Mr. CANNON.

TRANSFER OF WATER RIGHTS—BOISE RECLAMATION PROJECT

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 11360) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey or transfer certain water rights in connection with the Boise reclamation project, with Senate amendments, and agree to the Senate amendments.

The Senate amendments were read and agreed to.

RELIEF OF CERTAIN ARMY OFFICERS

Mr. STRONG of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 4266) for relief of certain officers and former officers of the Army of the United States, and for the settlement of individual claims approved by the War Department, with Senate amendments, and agree to the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Kansas asks unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 4266, with Senate amendments thereto, and agree to the Senate amendments. The Clerk will report the bill and the Senate amendments.

The Clerk read the title of the bill and the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were agreed to.

AUSTRIAN DEBT SETTLEMENT

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that House Resolution 221, relating to the Austrian debt settlement, reported by the Committee on Rules, be laid on the table, as the matter taken up in that resolution has been attended to in another way.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent that House Resolution 221, from the Committee on Rules, may be laid on the table. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

AMENDING THE NATIONAL PROHIBITION ACT—MINORITY VIEWS

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I may have until to-morrow at 1 o'clock p. m. to file a minority report upon the bill S. 2901, to amend the national prohibition act, as amended and supplemented.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, could not the gentleman file his minority views by midnight to-night?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I expect to be engaged on the Consent Calendar all day, and I do not believe the bill will be called up before the minority report is printed. I would appreciate very much to have until 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, as I understand, whether the minority report is printed or not will not affect the calling up of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not think that would affect the calling up of the bill at all.

Mr. MICHENER. I have no objection.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, were hearings had on that bill?

Mr. GRAHAM. We had hearings on the bill.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

SUSIE MINOR

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I present the following privileged resolution from the Committee on Accounts.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 324

Resolved, That there shall be paid, out of the contingent fund of the House, to Susie Minor, widow of Harry E. Minor, late an employee of the House, an amount equal to six months' compensation and an additional amount not exceeding $250 to defray funeral expenses and last illness of the said Harry E. Minor.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

EIGHTH AND TENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUITS

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 16658) to amend sections 116, 118, and 126 of the Judicial Code, as amended, to divide the eighth judicial circuit of the United States and to create a tenth judicial circuit, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 16658, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments. The Clerk will report the title of the bill and the Senate amendments.

The Clerk reported the title of the bill and the Senate amendments.

The Senate amendments were agreed to.

ADDITIONAL JUDGE, NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 8295, for the appointment of an additional circuit judge for the ninth judicial circuit, with Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 8295, with a Senate amendment thereto, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The Clerk will report the bill and the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill and the Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

TWO ADDITIONAL JUDGES, EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 14659) to provide for the appointment of two additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and ask for a conference.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pennsylvania asks unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 14659, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and ask for a conference. The Clerk will report the bill and the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill and the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

There was no objection.

The Chair appointed the following conferees: Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. LAGUARDIA, and Mr. SUMNERS of Texas.

DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL

The SPEAKER. When the House adjourned on Saturday last the previous question had been ordered upon the bill H. R. 17223, the deficiency appropriation bill, and the amendments thereto. Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros. The question is on agreeing to the amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BACHMANN. When this bill was before the committee I made a motion to strike out section 2 in the bill. Now I understand there is to be a motion made to recommit the bill by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BYRNS]. I would like to propound the inquiry as to whether or not another motion to recommit the bill could be made with instructions to send the bill back to the committee to report it back without section 2?

The SPEAKER. Only one motion to recommit can be made.

Mr. BACHMANN. Another inquiry: I am opposed to the bill. I wish to make the motion to recommit the bill under the circumstances.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will give preference to a member of the committee on the minority side.

Mr. BACHMANN. Even if the Member is not opposed to the bill?

The SPEAKER. He has to be opposed to the bill in its present form.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the bill in its present form.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee to recommit the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BYRNS moves to recommit the bill to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report the same back forthwith, with the following amendment: Strike out the Wood amendment on page 59 and insert in lieu thereof the following: "For the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment to the national prohibition act and supplementary acts, the tariff acts, and all laws pertaining to the traffic in intoxicating liquor and narcotics, the sum of $24,000,000, or such portion thereof as the President may deem useful to be expended in the discretion of the President through the Department of Justice, Coast Guard, Customs Bureau, Prohibition Bureau: And he may allot a sufficient sum or amount to the Civil Service Commission for the examination and investigation of eligibles for employment in the enforcement of such laws in the various agencies above mentioned, in accordance with existing law, and to remain available until June 30, 1930."

Mr. WOOD, Mr. MAPES, and other Members rose.

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

Mr. MAPES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to raise a parliamentary question.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MAPES. As I understood the reading of the motion to recommit, it is to disagree to the so-called Wood amendment which has just been adopted by the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore [Mr. TILSON]. Will the gentleman please restate his parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. MAPES. If I understood the reading of the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee to recommit the bill, it is to disagree to the Wood amendment, which was adopted by the Committee of the Whole and by the House this morning a few minutes ago in its blanket adoption of all of the amendments reported from the committee to the House. Now, if the motion to recommit on the question of the Wood amendment stood alone, as I understand it, there is no question but what it would not be in order, because the House has, within the last few minutes, acted upon that amendment and adopted it.

I raise this question as to whether or not, if the gentleman from Tennessee desired to modify that amendment, should he not have demanded a separate vote on the committee amendment and offered the amendment before it was voted upon by the House? I raise the parliamentary inquiry whether or not the motion to recommit under the circumstances is in order. I desire to reserve a point of order and then to make it.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, that is the very question I was going to submit. If there is any dispute, Mr. Speaker, I do not object to the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry, because, of course, he had a right to make it. But as a matter of fact, the RECORD will show that the motion to recommit had been offered and read, and thereupon the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. WOOD] had moved the previous question, and the parliamentary situation, or the regular order pending, was the motion of the gentleman from Indiana moving the previous question. The gentleman from Michigan waived his right to make the point of order by delaying it until the motion for the previous question had been made.

Mr. MAPES. I am not in charge of this legislation. The Speaker quite naturally recognized the chairman of the committee in charge of the legislation first. I made the point of order as soon as it was possible to make it. That is entirely too technical for the Speaker to hold that any rights have been lost by failure to recognize me before recognizing the chairman in charge of the bill. I think this parliamentary situation ought to be settled on its merits and not by any technical ruling of that kind.

Mr. LEHLBACH. In furtherance of the suggestion made by the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BANKHEAD], I desire to say that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. MAPES] simply sought recognition at the same time that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. WOOD] sought recognition. Now, if he sought recognition for the purpose of raising a point of order, he could have given notice and said, "Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order." This he did not do, but allowed the recognition of another Member, who had a parliamentary motion to make, which was placed before the House. Therefore, the point of order now comes too late.

Mr. MAPES. Oh, well, Mr. Speaker, this is a parliamentary body and not a competition in noise. This is a question of orderly procedure. I was on my feet asking for recognition all the time, and I think I obtained recognition as soon as it was at all necessary.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is confronted with this situation: That the House has taken action on a motion made by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. WOOD.]

Mr. BLACK of Texas. There has been no motion for the previous question put to the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion of the gentleman from Indiana was made, is still pending for action.

Mr. WOOD. I was recognized, and after I was recognized and the motion made, the gentleman from Michigan got up and made a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. MAPES. It does not matter whether the gentleman from Indiana was recognized first or not.

The gentleman from Michigan had a perfect right to assume that the chairman of the committee would make that point of order and was waiting for him, in the regular course of procedure, to be recognized. If a Member must get up and inject himself into these proceedings when he is not in charge of the legislation that can be done, but it ought not to be made necessary by any ruling of the Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Of course, the gentleman from Michigan, when he saw that the chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill was proceeding to make a motion, had the right to interrupt him and make his point of order.

Mr. MAPES. There is not much chance to interrupt when a man simply says he moves the previous question. There is not much chance to interrupt until he completes his statement. The gentleman from Michigan does not care to argue this particular right any further, but he submits his views on the question.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Indiana was recognized and moved the previous question. After that the gentleman from Michigan was recognized by the Chair on a parliamentary inquiry. He did not make a point of order, but he made a parliamentary inquiry, instead of interposing a point of order or reserving a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. On the statement of the gentleman from Michigan the Chair would be compelled to rule that a point of order now made would come too late, and this is the Chair's answer to the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. MAPES. Just to clear up the record, will the Chair ask the stenographer to read just what the gentleman from Michigan did say at the beginning.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the reporter may read his notes. [After a pause.] It appears that the notes have gone downstairs for transcription. The gentleman from Indiana moves the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays on the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the Chair understand that the gentleman demands the yeas and nays on the previous question?

Mr. BYRNS. No; I thought the Chair declared the previous question ordered. This is on the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair so declared. The question is now on the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee to recommit the bill, and on that the gentleman from Tennessee demands the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 125, nays 240, not voting 63, as follows:

[Roll No. 29]

YEAS—125

Abernethy	Driver	Lozier	Rutherford
Allgood	Edwards	McDuffie	Sanders, Tex.
Almon	Eslick	McFadden	Sandlin
Aswell	Evans, Mont.	McKeown	Sears, Fla.
Ayres	Fisher	McMillan	Schallenberger
Bankhead	Gardner, Ind.	McReynolds	Speaks
Bell	Garner, Tex.	McSwain	Steagall
Bland	Garrett, Tex.	McSweeney	Steele
Box	Gasque	Major, Ill.	Stevenson
Brand, Ga.	Gilbert	Major, Mo.	Sumners, Tex.
Briggs	Goldsborough	Milligan	Swank
Browning	Gregory	Montague	Tarver
Bulwinkle	Green	Moore, Ky.	Taylor, Colo.
Busby	Greenwood	Moore, Va.	Tucker
Butler	Hare	Moorman	Vinson, Ga.
Byrns	Harrison	Morehead	Vinson, Ky.
Canfield	Hastings	Morrow	Warren
Cannon	Hill, Ala.	Nelson, Mo.	Weaver
Carss	Hill, Wash.	Norton, Nebr.	Whitehead
Chapman	Howard, Nebr.	O'Brien	Whittington
Collier	Huddleston	Oldfield	Williams, Mo.
Collins	Hull, Tenn.	Oliver, Ala.	Williams, Tex.
Connally, Tex.	Jeffers	Parks	Wilson, La.
Cox	Johnson, Tex.	Patterson	Wilson, Miss.
Crisp	Jones	Peery	Wingo
Davis	Kemp	Pou	Woodrum
Dickinson, Mo.	Kerr	Quin	Wright
Dominick	Kincheloe	Ragon	Yon
Doughton	Langley	Rankin	Zihlman
Dowell	Lankford	Rayburn
Drane	Larsen	Robinson, Iowa
Drewry	Lowrey	Romjue

NAYS—240

Ackerman	DeRouen	Kading	Reed, N. Y.
Aldrich	Dickinson, Iowa	Kahn	Reid, Ill.
Allen	Dickstein	Kearns	Robsion, Ky.
Andresen	Douglas, Ariz.	Kelly	Rowbottom
Andrew	Douglass, Mass.	Kendall	Sabath
Anthony	Dyer	Ketcham	Sanders, N. Y.
Arentz	Elliott	Kiess	Schafer
Bacharach	Englebright	Knutson	Schneider
Bachmann	Estep	Kopp	Sears, Nebr.
Bacon	Evans, Calif.	Korell	Selvig
Barbour	Fenn	Kurtz	Shreve
Beck, Pa.	Fish	Kvale	Simmons
Beedy	Fitzgerald, Roy G.	LaGuardia	Sinclair
Beers	Fitzgerald, W. T.	Lampert	Smith
Begg	Fitzpatrick	Leavitt	Snell
Berger	Fort	Leech	Spearing
Black, N. Y.	Foss	Lehlbach	Sproul, Ill.
Black, Tex.	Frear	Letts	Sproul, Kans.
Bloom	Free	Lindsay	Stalker
Bohn	Freeman	Linthicum	Stobbs
Bowman	French	Luce	Strong, Kans.
Boylan	Fulmer	McCormack	Strong, Pa.
Brand, Ohio.	Furlow	McLaughlin	Sullivan
Brigham	Gambrill	McLeod	Summers, Wash.
Britten	Garber	Magrady	Swick
Browne	Gibson	Manlove	Swing
Buchanan	Gifford	Mansfield	Taber
Buckbee	Glynn	Mapes	Tatgenhorst
Burdick	Goodwin	Martin, La.	Taylor, Tenn.
Burtness	Graham	Martin, Mass.	Temple
Campbell	Griffin	Mead	Thatcher
Carew	Guyer	Menges	Thompson
Carter	Hadley	Merritt	Thurston
Chalmers	Hale	Michener	Tilson
Chase	Hall, Ill.	Miller	Timberlake
Chindblom	Hall, Ind.	Monast	Tinkham
Christopherson	Hall, N. Dak.	Moore, Ohio	Treadway
Clague	Hancock	Morgan	Underhill
Clancy	Hardy	Morin	Underwood
Clarke	Haugen	Murphy	Vestal
Cochran, Mo.	Hawley	Nelson, Me.	Vincent, Iowa
Cochran, Pa.	Hersey	Nelson, Wis.	Vincent, Mich.
Cole, Iowa	Hickey	Newton	Wainwright
Cole, Md.	Hoffman	Niedringhaus	Ware
Colton	Hogg	Norton, N. J.	Wason
Combs	Holaday	O'Connell	Watres
Connery	Hooper	O'Connor, La.	Watson
Cooper, Ohio	Hope	O'Connor, N. Y.	Welch, Calif.
Cooper, Wis.	Houston, Del.	Palmisano	White, Colo.
Corning	Howard, Okla.	Parker	White, Me.
Crail	Hudson	Peavey	Wigglesworth
Cramton	Hughes	Perkins	Williams, Ill.
Crosser	Hull, Morton D.	Porter	Williamson
Crowther	Hull, Wm. E.	Prall	Winter
Culkin	Igoe	Pratt	Wolfenden
Cullen	Irwin	Purnell	Wolverton
Dallinger	Jenkins	Quayle	Wood
Darrow	Johnson, Ind.	Ramseyer	Woodruff
Deal	Johnson, S. Dak.	Ransley	Wurzbach
Denison	Johnson, Wash.	Reece	Wyant

NOT VOTING—63

Adkins	Davey	James	Palmer
Arnold	Dempsey	Johnson, Ill.	Rainey
Auf der Heide	Doutrich	Johnson, Okla.	Reed, Ark.
Beck, Wis.	Doyle	Kent	Rogers
Blanton	Eaton	Kindred	Seger
Boies	England	Kunz	Sirovich
Bowles	Fletcher	Lanham	Somers, N. Y.
Bushong	Fullbright	Lea	Stedman
Carley	Garrett, Tenn.	Leatherwood	Strother
Cartwright	Golder	Lyon	Tillman
Casey	Griest	McClintic	Updike
Celler	Hammer	Mass	Weller
Cohen	Hoch	Michaelson	Welsh, Pa.
Connolly, Pa.	Hopkins	Mooney	White, Kans.
Curry	Hudspeth	Moore, N. J.	Yates
Davenport	Jacobstein	Oliver, N. Y.

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

On this vote:

Mr. Tillman (for) with Mrs. Rogers (against).
Mr. Lyon (for) with Mr. Somers of New York (against).
Mr. Johnson of Oklahoma (for) with Mr. Hoch (against).
Mr. Hammer (for) with Mr. James (against).
Mr. Cartwright (for) with Mr. Adkins (against).
Mr. McClintic (for) with Mr. Golder (against).
Mr. Reed of Arkansas (for) with Mr. Welsh of Pennsylvania (against).
Mr. Rainey (for) with Mr. Weller (against).
Mr. Lanham (for) with Mr. Oliver of New York (against).
Mr. Stedman (for) with Mr. Carley (against).
Mr. Davey (for) with Mr. Auf der Heide (against).
Mr. Fletcher (for) with Mr. Doyle (against).
Mr. Blanton (for) with Mr. Kunz (against).

Until further notice:

Mr. Bowles with Mr. Garrett of Tennessee.
Mr. Connolly of Pennsylvania with Mr. Hudspeth.
Mr. Eaton with Mr. Casey.
Mr. Michaelson with Mr. Arnold.
Mr. Seger with Mr. Kindred.
Mr. Palmer with Mr. Celler.
Mr. Leatherwood with Mr. Mooney.
Mr. Griest with Mr. Cohen.
Mr. Curry with Mr. Kent.
Mr. Dempsey with Mr. Moore of New Jersey.
Mr. England with Mr. Lea.
Mr. Davenport with Mr. Jacobstein.
Mr. Johnson of Illinois with Mr. Sirovich.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that my colleague Mr. LANHAM is absent on account of illness.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the statement made by the gentleman from Texas will appear in the RECORD.

There was no objection.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken, and the bill was passed.

On motion of Mr. WOOD, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

CONSENT CALENDAR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the special order the Consent Calendar will be called beginning at the point at which the last call left off.

IMPORTATION OF MEXICAN CATTLE

The first business on the Consent Calendar was the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 21) to correct section 6 of the act of August 30, 1890, as amended by section 2 of the act of June 28, 1926.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I object.

HYDROGRAPHIC OFFICE AT HONOLULU

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 8917) to establish a hydrographic station at Honolulu, Hawaii.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I conferred with the Delegate from Hawaii, and as much as I would like to agree with him—I have looked into this very carefully, and we have a naval officer now assigned to this office, an office which the distinguished gentleman from Hawaii himself held some time ago; we have a Geodetic Survey office there at this time doing the same work. The Bureau of the Budget recommends against the bill and there is no immediate necessity. I am constrained to object.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. Will the gentleman reserve his objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I will reserve the objection.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. This office is now in Honolulu upon a temporary basis and the funds are chargeable against the Naval Establishment. It serves a commercial purpose and there is no legislative authority for the maintenance of the office there now. It fills a very great want.

The statement of the Hydrographer, upon my request before the committee, is to the effect that it would fill a vital need to American commerce.

There are at the present time 9 such offices in the Atlantic area, there are 6 offices in the Lake area, and there are only 4 in the enormous Pacific area in which our commerce at the present time is growing by leaps and bounds.

There are four thousand and odd charts issued by the Hydrographic Office which are not issued by any other agency of the Government. The Coast and Geodetic Survey issues less than half of this number.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Will the gentleman explain that it is only to keep these charts up to date.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. It is only in order that when mariners buy charts at the recognized agency there may be some one there who will see that the chart is corrected before they take it and use it.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. And that is being done?

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. That is not altogether being done. Only on a very restricted basis can it be done with the establishment there now, and there are four thousand and odd shoals and hazards that come into chart construction every year that were not there before, nad the gentleman may realize therefore the necessity for this, which has been pointed out by the Hydrographer and which is felt to be a need by the department, but the department simply could not approve it because of budgetary opposition.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. The gentleman knows my high regard for the gentleman's opinion and how carefully I consider anything he is interested in. I have taken this up with the Navy Department, with the bureau, and I find it would be most imprudent to pass the bill at this time. I trust the gentleman can understand my position in the matter.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. I understand the Budget's position, but I can not understand the legislative position.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I object, Mr. Speaker.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3770) authorizing the Federal Power Commission to issue permits and licenses on Fort Apache and White Mountain Indian Reservation, Ariz.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LEHLBACH). Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Federal Power Commission is hereby authorized, in its discretion, to issue permits and licenses in accordance with the Federal water power act for the development of hydroelectric power on Salt River within the Fort Apache and the White Mountain or San Carlos Indian Reservations, Ariz.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ADDRESS OF HON. JAMES P. BUCHANAN

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks by inserting in the RECORD a very able speech delivered over the radio by my colleague the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BUCHANAN] on the important subject of soil erosion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the request is granted.

There was no objection.

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, under the leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following address delivered by Hon. JAMES P. BUCHANAN, a Representative from the State of Texas, over the radio on Saturday, February 23, 1929, on the subject of soil erosion:

SOIL EROSION

Mr. BUCHANAN. Through the courtesy of this radio station, whose management is so intensely interested in the welfare of national agriculture, I will discuss for a short time one of the most vital problems now confronting not only the American farmer but our Nation.

We have in our midst a master criminal, a gigantic thief, a highwayman. I want you, my unseen audience, to act as a jury, listen to the evidence, render a righteous verdict upon the destructive depredations of this, the master criminal of our age, and by your verdict not only find this criminal guilty, but condemn the inaction and neglect of the Government of States and Nation in not sooner apprehending and condemning to eternal confinement this master criminal, thereby stopping his depredation. The name of this master criminal is soil erosion, the washing away of the soil of our farm and pasture lands by the uncontrolled rain water that falls upon their surface. Uncontrolled surface water is the enemy of man. Controlled, it is a priceless blessing. Every drop of water which falls upon the agricultural land of our Nation and finds its way to the sea is an economic loss to our country.

If the priceless heritage transmitted to us by our forefathers is to be preserved unmarred, and by us transmitted to our children, we must control our surface water and conserve our soil. The three most valuable gifts of God to man are soil, sunshine, and rain. They constitute the earthly trinity, absolutely essential to the existence of man. If either is destroyed, then our civilization and our people will perish from the earth.

Now listen to the evidence against this master criminal, soil erosion. For several years the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, the Missouri Experimental Station, the North Carolina Experimental Station, and the Bureau of Soils and Chemistry in the United States Department of Agriculture have conducted experiments, made surveys, and recorded observations upon the present and ultimate effect upon our Nation of the uncontrolled surface water, washing away our soil and carrying it to the sea. It has been determined that 1,500,000,000 tons of soil matter is washed from our farms and pasture lands and carried to the sea every year.

This soil, thus stolen from us by erosion, contains 126,000,000 pounds of plant food, which is twenty-one times more plant food than is removed from the soil by crops.

You must remember that when plant food is removed from the soil by agricultural crops it can be restored by fertilizer and soil legumes, but when the soil is washed away it can not be restored by man, and the land from which it is washed is forever lost to agriculture.

It has been conservatively estimated that the value of the soil our country loses each year by erosion amounts to $2,000,000,000, and the farmers of the Nation suffer a direct primary loss of two hundred million a year by reason of the destructive depredations of this master criminal—erosion.

In 1879, when erosion had not inflicted such enormous damage on the agricultural soil of the Nation, the farmers spent only $28,000,000 for fertilizer.

In 1919, as a result of erosion, they were compelled to spend $326,000,000. Thus, year by year, as the fertility of the soil of the farmers is decreased, and the soil is washed away, the farmers' burdens for fertilizer increases.

I will give you a few facts demonstrated by some of our experimental stations.

At the North Carolina experimental station it has been established beyond question that land sodded in grass holds back four hundred and sixteen times more water and soil than bare ground, and two hundred and thirteen times more water and soil than unterraced cultivated land, and yet by a scientific system of terracing more water and soil can be held on the ground, in cultivated land, than is held there by grass sod.

At the Missouri Experimental Station, it has been found by actual experiment, with only 3½-foot slope in 100 feet of bare ground, 7 inches of surface soil was washed away in 24 years, but on the same type of soil, with the same slope and with the same rainfall, sodded in blue grass, it will take 3,547 years to wash away the same 7-inch layer of surface soil; and yet by scientific terracing, the surface water can be held upon the land and the soil conserved to a greater extent than it is, by being sodded in blue grass.

At the experimental station, Spur, Tex., it was demonstrated by actual experiments and measurements that on land, sloping only 2 feet in 100, with 27 inches of rainfall per year on unterraced cultivated land 40.7 tons of soil was washed away per year on each acre, and 44 per cent of the total rainfall ran off.

On adjoining plots of same land, same rainfall, same slope, properly terraced, all the rainfall and all the soil was conserved and by reason of the increased moisture absorbed by the soil, as a result of this conservation, 20 per cent increase yield was procured.

The average depth of productive surface soil, on our sloping farm lands is 6 to 8 inches, and each acre has about 1,000 tons of productive soil.

If erosion is permitted to run wild in the future, as it has in the past, with a loss of 40 tons of soil per acre per year, in 25 years, at least 50 per cent of our agricultural lands will be destroyed for agriculture and 75 per cent in 50 years.

If you will take a retrospective view of the vast and dreary solitudes of past ages, you will find that archæological and other scientific research has now established that there once existed countries that were inhabited by a prosperous and highly civilized people. They did nothing to check soil erosion, and this master criminal, year by year, gradually washed the soil of such countries to the sea and ultimately destroyed such people and their civilization, and now there is nothing but barren waste and rocky surface where once existed a happy, prosperous, contented, and highly civilized people. Such will be the ultimate end of our country unless effective steps are taken to control our surface water, and conserve our soil for ourselves and our posterity.

Erosion is not a sectional problem. Its prevention is vital to our continued national existence. It has carried on its fearful destruction in every section of our country. Wherever water runs over the surface of the soil, erosion is gradually taking place, and because it seemingly operates under natural laws, its insidious conduct does not challenge our attention, and we attribute our decreased acre yield to exhaustion of the soil, when, in fact, 99 per cent of it on eroding areas is due to erosion.

In a few years the land ceases to be as productive as formerly, and the farmer concludes that the land is being exhausted by his crops, and resorts to expensive fertilizers and legumes to restore the fertility of soil he no longer has. He is fertilizing an unproductive clay subsoil, incapable of retaining either the fertilizer or moisture.

Let me call your attention to the widespread destruction of erosion throughout the Union. There are 18 distinct types of soil of material agricultural acreage in the United States. One type is located in the Piedmont region, containing an area of 46,000,000 acres, and includes parts of Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Delaware. From 4 to 8 inches of soil has been washed off of 65 per cent of this area, or 30,500,000 acres of land totally destroyed or severely injured for agricultural purposes.

The sandstone type of soil, containing an area of 5,000,000 acres, part of North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania, from 2 to 10 inches of soil have been washed off of 40 per cent of this area, or 2,000,000 acres destroyed for agricultural purposes.

The Appalachian Mountain region type of soil contains 78,000,000 acres, located in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey. Of this vast area 12,500,000 acres have been severely eroded and now of little value for agricultural purposes.

The fourth type of soil is in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, containing 18,000,000 acres. From 3 to 12 inches of soil have been washed off of 6,000,000 acres of this area.

The fifth soil type is in Indiana and Kentucky, containing an area of 7,000,000 acres. From 3 to 4 inches of soil have been washed off of 2,000,000 acres.

The sixth soil type is in Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia sandy land, containing 27,000,000 acres, of which more than 5,000,000 acres have been severely eroded.

The southern brown-loam region type of soil in Louisiana, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, and Mississippi, containing 17,000,000 acres. From 4 to 20 inches of soil have been washed off of 8,000,000 acres of this region.

The northern brown-loam type of soil in Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, South Dakota, and Minnesota containing 18,000,000 acres. Nine million acres of it have been severely eroded and are practically useless for agricultural purposes.

The ninth type of soil is in Iowa and Missouri, containing 6,000,000 acres, with 2,000,000 acres practically destroyed for agricultural purposes and 65 per cent of the area severely damaged.

The tenth type of soil is in Wisconsin, Missouri, and Iowa, containing 11,000,000 acres, with 4,000,000 acres severely eroded.

The sandy-land type of soil in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Oklahoma, containing 33,000,000 acres, with 10,000,000 acres severely eroded, and much of it abandoned as useless for agricultural purposes.

In the Texas, Alabama, and Mississippi black-land type of soil, containing 12,000,000 acres, 4,500,000 acres of it has been severely eroded with a loss of from 4 to 30 inches of soil.

The red plains type of soil in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas contain an area of 36,000,000 acres, 8,000,000 of which is severely eroded, and erosion is rapidly taking away the soil of the whole region.

The western Kansas and the Nebraska type of soil, containing an area of 6,000,000 acres, has lost the surface soil on 1,500,000 acres.

The southwestern valley and mountain grazing land States is another distinct type of soil, containing 379,000,000 acres, located in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and Wyoming.

Fifty per cent of this entire region has been severely eroded, and erosion is extending rapidly over the balance.

To bring home to you the enormous amount of damage that the American people have permitted erosion to inflict upon our Nation let us summarize: In 1924 the total area planted in crops in the United States was 391,459,902. The total area in pasture was 409,935,550 acres, making a total planted in crops and in pasture of 801,395,550 acres.

Uncontrolled surface water has washed the most productive and larger part of the soil off of 284,050,000 acres, or more than one-third of the entire agricultural and pasture land of the Union, and yet by the expenditure of $5 per acre for the first year in the construction of the character of terrace suitable to the respective soil type, and a maintenance charge of 50 cents an acre thereafter, this soil could have been saved and the surface water conserved for the production of crops and the replenshing of our underground reservoirs, which we yearly tap by wells for the industrial use of the Nation.

Not only this, but when you remember that 20 per cent of the water that now flows into our rivers can be prevented from doing so by terracing and sodding, and practically all of the soil that is washed into the channels of our rivers and augments destructive floods can be conserved and prevented from doing so, you will realize that it will constitute the greatest crime of the age for the Nation to longer permit this master criminal, erosion, to go unchained.

In this last Congress I offered an amendment and procured its adoption appropriating $160,000 for the Bureau of Soils and Chemistry and the Bureau of Public Roads, in cooperation with the agricultural colleges of the States and other agencies, for the purpose of establishing demonstration stations on different soil types in various States of the Union, to the end that this great problem might be carefully studied and solved. This amount of money will establish about seven demonstration stations in the Union. There should be one station established on each type of soil of material agricultural area in order that that particular soil may be studied and the character of terracing that will hold ascertained and the information furnished to the farmer.

This is a national question, and the whole burden should not fall upon the farmer, but chambers of commerce and other civic organizations should cooperate in its solution. Nation-wide conferences should be called to the end that all States and the National Government, in their organized capacity, should join farmers and their organizations in the conservation of our soil, which is absolutely essential to our present prosperity and to the destiny of our Nation.

God created the world; and when He came to the creation of the United States He must have been in a good humor and smiled, because He showered his blessings upon our country. He studded our sky, with stars unutterably bright; He planted within the bowels of the earth abundant minerals to serve every need of a great people. He gave to us abundant sunshine and fructified our land with teeming waters. He bestowed upon us an abundant fertile soil upon which to produce all the necessities of life. The sun in his majestic course does not look down upon a fairer land or one more capable of administering to the wants and gratifying the luxuries of man. Shall a progressive, scientific, intelligent, wealthy nation permit this master criminal, erosion, to rob us of God's priceless gift—the soil—which will ultimately destroy our civilization and our country? Forbid it, Almighty God.

AMENDMENT OF THE WAREHOUSE ACT

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16720) to amend sections 4, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 25, 29, and 30 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, this bill brings in an entirely new policy. I understood the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. NEWTON] is interested in it. Is he in favor of the bill or not?

Mr. KETCHAM. This is a unanimous report from the committee and it is a very meritorious measure.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I feel that way about it.

Mr. HOOPER. I notice throughout the bill that wherever reference is made to the Secretary of Agriculture it usually refers to his designated representative. What is the meaning of that language; who is the designated representative expected to be?

Mr. KETCHAM. It simply means the designated representative for a very small duty, namely, the approval of bonds.

Mr. HOOPER. Does the gentleman think that is the best way to treat it?

Mr. KETCHAM. It was gone into very carefully. The committee feel that the powers are carefully circumscribed.

Mr. JONES. It takes a great deal of time, and the Secretary, of course, is very busy.

Mr. HOOPER. The language came to my attention and I simply wondered who the representative was to be or what the language meant.

Mr. KINCHELOE. It is simply to expedite the administration.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. It will facilitate the matter, and the negotiability of the warehouse certificates.

Mr. KETCHAM. That is the idea exactly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

H. R. 16720, Seventieth Congress, second session

A bill (H. R. 16720) to amend sections 4, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 25, 29, and 30 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended

Be it enacted, etc., That section 4 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 244), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 4. That the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, is authorized, upon application to him, to issue to any warehouseman a license for the conduct of a warehouse or warehouses in accordance with this act and such rules and regulations as may be made hereunder: Provided, That each such warehouse be found suitable for the proper storage of the particular agricultural product or products for which a license is applied for, and that such warehouseman agree, as a condition to the granting of the license, to comply with and abide by all the terms of this act and the rules and regulations prescribed hereunder."

SEC. 2. That section 6 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 247), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 6. That each warehouseman applying for a license to conduct a warehouse in accordance with this act shall, as a condition to the granting thereof, execute and file with the Secretary of Agriculture a good and sufficient bond to the United States to secure the faithful performance of his obligations as a warehouseman under the terms of this act and the rules and regulations prescribed hereunder, and of such additional obligations as a warehouseman as may be assumed by him under contracts with the respective depositors of agricultural products in such warehouse. Said bond shall be in such form and amount, shall have such surety or sureties, subject to service of process in suits on the bond within the State, District, or Territory in which the warehouse is located, and shall contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Agriculture may prescribe to carry out the purposes of this act, and may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, include the requirements of fire and/or other insurance. Whenever the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, shall determine that a previously approved bond is, or for any cause has become, insufficient, he may require an additional bond or bonds to be given by the warehouseman concerned, conforming with the requirements of this section, and unless the same be given within the time fixed by a written demand therefor the license of such warehouseman may be suspended or revoked."

SEC. 3. That section 8 of the United States warehouse act of August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 250), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 8. That upon the filing with and approval by the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, of a bond, in compliance with this act, for the conduct of a warehouse, such warehouse may be designated as bonded hereunder; but no warehouse shall be designated as bonded under this act, and no name or description conveying the impression that it is so bonded, shall be used, until a bond, such as provided for in section 6, has been filed with and approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, nor unless the license issued under this act for the conduct of such warehouse remains unsuspended and unrevoked."

SEC. 4. That section 9 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 248), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 9. That the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, may, under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe, issue a license to any person not a warehouseman to accept the custody of agricultural products, and to store the same in a warehouse or warehouses owned, operated, or leased by any State, upon condition that such person agree to comply with and abide by the terms of this act and the rules and regulations prescribed hereunder. Each person so licensed shall issue receipts for the agricultural products placed in his custody, and shall give bond, in accordance with the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations hereunder affecting warehousemen licensed under this act, and shall otherwise be subject to this act, and such rules and regulations, to the same extent as is provided for warehousemen licensed hereunder."

SEC. 5. That section 10 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 251), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 10. That the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, may charge, assess, and cause to be collected a reasonable fee for every examination or inspection of a warehouse under this act when such examination or inspection is made upon application of a warehouseman, and for each license issued to a warehouseman or to any person to classify, inspect, grade, sample, and/or weigh agricultural products stored or to be stored under the provisions of this act the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, may charge, assess, and cause to be collected a reasonable fee. All such fees shall be deposited and covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts."

SEC. 6. That section 11 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 252), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 11. That the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, may, upon presentation of satisfactory proof of competency, issue to any person a license to inspect, sample, or classify any agricultural product or products stored or to be stored in a warehouse licensed under this act, according to condition, grade, or otherwise, and to certificate the condition, grade, or other class thereof, or to weigh the same and certificate the weight thereof, or both to inspect, sample, or classify and weigh the same and to certificate the condition, grade, or other class and the weight thereof, upon condition that such person agree to comply with and abide by the terms of this act and of the rules and regulations prescribed hereunder so far as the same relate to him."

SEC. 7. That section 12 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 253), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 12. That any license issued to any person to inspect, sample, or classify, or to weigh any agricultural product or products under this act may be suspended or revoked by the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, whenever he is satisfied, after opportunity afforded to the licensee concerned for a hearing, that such licensee has failed to inspect, sample, or classify, or to weigh any agricultural product or products correctly, or has violated any of the provisions of this act or of the rules and regulations prescribed hereunder, so far as the same may relate to him, or that he has used his license or allowed it to be used for any improper purpose whatever. Pending investigation, the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, whenever he deems necessary, may suspend a license temporarily without hearing."

SEC. 8. That section 25 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 246), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 25. That the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, may, after opportunity for hearing has been afforded to the licensee concerned, suspend or revoke any license to any warehouseman conducting a warehouse under this act, for any violation of or failure to comply with any provision of this act or of the rules and regulations made hereunder, or upon the ground that unreasonable or exorbitant charges have been made for services rendered. Pending investigation, the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, whenever he deems necessary, may suspend a license temporarily without hearing."

SEC. 9. That section 29 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 269), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 29. That in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture he is authorized to cooperate with State officials charged with the enforcement of State laws relating to warehouses, warehousemen, weighers, graders, inspectors, samplers, or classifiers; but the power, jurisdiction, and authority conferred upon the Secretary of Agriculture under this act shall be exclusive with respect to all persons securing a license hereunder so long as said license remains in effect. This act shall not be construed so as to limit the operation of any statute of the United States relating to warehouses or to warehousemen, weighers, graders, inspectors, samplers, or classifiers now in force in the District of Columbia or in any Territory or other place under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States."

SEC. 10. That section 30 of the United States warehouse act, approved August 11, 1916, as amended (U. S. C., title 7, sec. 270), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 30. That every person who shall forge, alter, counterfeit, simulate, or falsely represent, or shall without proper authority use, any license issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, or his designated representative, under this act, or who shall violate or fail to comply with any provision of section 8 of this act, or who shall issue or utter a false or fraudulent receipt or certificate, or change in any manner an original receipt or certificate subsequently to issuance by a licensee, or any person who, without lawful authority, shall convert to his own use, or use for purposes of securing a loan, or remove from a licensed warehouse contrary to this act or the regulations promulgated thereunder, any agricultural products stored or to be stored in such warehouse, and for which licensed receipts have been or are to be issued, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $10,000, or double the value of the products involved if such double value exceeds $10,000, or imprisoned not more than 10 years, or both, in the discretion of the court, and the owner of the agricultural products so converted, used, or removed may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, be reimbursed for the value thereof out of any fine collected hereunder, by check drawn on the Treasury at the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, for the value of such products to the extent that such owner has not otherwise been reimbursed. That any person who shall draw with intent to deceive a false sample of, or who shall willfully mutilate or falsely represent a sample drawn under this act, or who shall classify, grade, or weigh fraudulently, any agricultural products stored or to be stored under the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof fined not more than $500, or imprisoned for not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court."

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BATTLE FIELD OF STAR FORT, S. C.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16451) to provide for the inspection of the battle field of Star Fort, S. C.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. HOOPER. Reserving the right to object, and I do not intend to object, what is the purpose of this bill, to establish a park or simply a memorial?

Mr. DOMINICK. It is for the establishment of a memorial under the general act passed a few years ago. We are following the procedure and go no further until Congress authorizes a further inspection.

Mr. HOOPER. Where is Star Fort?

Mr. DOMINICK. It is in Greenwood County, S. C., about 3 miles distant from Ninety Six. It is a section rich in history. It was at that point that the first blood was shed in the Revolutionary War in South Carolina. It is a very unique fortification, the remains of which are there to-day. It is in the shape of a star, possibly about the size of this Hall.

Mr. HOOPER. Is it in an accessible region?

Mr. DOMINICK. Yes; two excellent improved roads.

Mr. CRAMTON. Reserving the right to object, I understand this will not lead to the establishment of a military park?

Mr. DOMINICK. No.

Mr. CRAMTON. You do not expect to ask that the Government buy an extensive amount of land?

Mr. DOMINICK. No.

Mr. CRAMTON. We are doing this rather for the fort than any large battle field?

Mr. DOMINICK. It is proposed and included in the report made by the Secretary of War at the beginning of this Congress.

Mr. CRAMTON. In view of what the gentleman says I am not going to object; but there is one suggestion, and if he thinks it does not appeal to him I will not press it, because it does not appear to be a matter of great financial importance. In the commission it requires two local men and one commissioned officer of the Army.

Mr. DOMINICK. No; there is a committee amendment to the bill to cure a typographical error.

Mr. CRAMTON. What does the committee propose?

Mr. DOMINICK. To have an engineer commissioner and one citizen.

Mr. CRAMTON. Only two men on the commission?

Mr. DOMINICK. Only two.

Mr. CRAMTON. I think that is better; I think there ought not to be a majority from the community.

Mr. DOMINICK. That was a typographical error.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. The bill I have before me does not contain the committee amendment. Will the gentleman offer it?

Mr. DOMINICK. It is in the report. I offer it. On page 1, line 6, insert the word "two" immediately preceding the word "citizens."

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I understood from the colloquy it was the intention to have but one citizen. The bill itself provides for one Army engineer and two citizens.

Mr. DOMINICK. Then it should be one, and I shall modify my amendment in that respect.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That a commission is hereby created, to be composed of the following members, who shall be appointed by the Secretary of War: (1) A commissioned officer of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army; and (2) two citizens and residents of Greenwood County, State of South Carolina.

SEC. 2. In appointing the members of the commission created by section 1 of this act the Secretary of War shall, as far as practicable, select persons familiar with the terrain of the battle field of Star Fort, S. C., and the historical events associated therewith.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the commission, acting under the direction of the Secretary of War, to inspect the battle field of Star Fort, S. C., in order to ascertain the feasibility of preserving and marking for historical and professional military study such field. The commission shall submit a report of its findings and an itemized statement of its expenses to the Secretary of War not later than December 1, 1929.

SEC. 4. There is authorized to be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $1,000, or such part thereof as may be necessary, in order to carry out the provisions of this act.

With the following amendment:

Line 6, page 1, strike out the word "two" and insert "one."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DOMINICK. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend by striking out the word "citizens" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "citizen," in line 6, page 1.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. DOMINICK: Page 1, line 6, strike out "citizens" and insert "citizen."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

Mr. DOMINICK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point by including a statement prepared by the historical section of the War Department upon this fort.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The matter referred to is as follows:

THE SIEGE OF STAR FORT AND NINETY SIX, S. C., MAY 22 TO JUNE 19, 1781

The siege of Star Fort and Ninety Six is one of the most interesting and spectacular of the operations which occurred during the closing months of the Revolutionary War. The four weeks from May 22 to June 19 were crowded with the drama of siege warfare, with novel expedients to secure military advantage, and with examples of chivalrous conduct on the part of all the combatants, somewhat exceptional in the southern campaign. After Lord Rawdon burned and abandoned his post at Camden, S. C., on the 8th and 9th of May, 1781, the ruins of the town were immediately occupied by the Continental Army, commanded by Gen. Nathanael Greene. Plans were at once made by the Americans to press the advantage gained over the British by the latters' evacuation of Camden, and to augment their good fortune by forcing the evacuation of the strong frontier posts of Augusta and Ninety Six. At this time Lord Charles Cornwallis was operating in Virginia at the head of the main British Army in the South.

Upon abandoning Camden, Lord Rawdon fell back in the direction of Charleston, for the purpose of receiving expected reinforcements, to cover the lower country, and to give protection to Charleston itself. Several expresses were sent by him to Lieut. Col. John H. Cruger, commanding at Ninety Six, to withdraw his garrison and join that of Augusta, about 60 miles to the south, on the Savannah River. None of the several messengers sent with these dispatches for Cruger succeeded in reaching their destination.

Ninety Six derives some celebrity in the annals of this country from having been the scene of the first conflict in South Carolina of the Revolutionary War. At that place commenced, on the 19th day of November, 1775, the sanguinary conflict between Whig and Tory which never ceased during the entire period of the war. The settlement of Ninety Six was surrounded by a stockade, as a defense against incursions of Indians who were not far removed from it. The stockade still stood when the British subjugated the Province of South Carolina in 1780, and Ninety Six was garrisoned by them and make a principal point in the chain of their military posts. Its situation on the Cherokee Trail rendered it peculiarly important and of great strategic value to the British. It maintained communication with the Indians, kept in check the Whig settlements to the west of it, and covered those of the loyalists to the north, east, and south. It was the most advanced post occupied by the British, and by its approach to the upper parts of North Carolina and Georgia, supported Camden and Augusta in their influence upon the population of these two Provinces. It was also a depot for recruits, and it was here that Major Ferguson made his headquarters in 1780, as organizer and inspector of Tory militia recruited in the adjacent country.

Ninety Six was garrisoned by about 550 loyalists at the time General Greene marched from Camden to lay siege to it. Of this number 350 belonged to the Provincial Corps, made up of troops recruited in the United States. In Delancey's battalion of New York loyalists there were 150 men, and in the second battalion of New Jersey Volunteers, 200 men. These corps had been raised in 1776, were well disciplined, and from the active service in which they had been engaged ever since their first landing in Georgia, had become equal to any troops. The remainder of Cruger's command consisted of about 200 South Carolina Tories, under Colonel King. These were given an opportunity to quit the garrison when it became known that Greene's army was approaching, but they preferred to remain. The entire garrison of Ninety Six was composed of Americans, Colonel Cruger being a native of the State of New York.

When Cruger learned that the British had abandoned Camden and fallen back on Charleston, it appeared quite probable to him that a strong force of Americans would be sent against Ninety Six to effect its subjugation, and energetic measures were at once put into effect to strengthen the post. The entire garrison was set to work to throw up a parapet outside the stockade, and slaves were called in from the neighborhood to assist in the work. Beyond the ditch created by throwing up the parapet, abatis was constructed. To the left of the stockaded village was a ravine, through which ran a rivulet that supplied the troops with water. Lying contiguous to the village, between it and the rivulet, and within the confines of the stockade, was the county prison. This was fortified, and its cannon and musketry fire covered the valley of the rivulet on the side next to the village. On the opposite side of the valley, and within reach of the gun posted at the prison, there was constructed a strong stockade fort with two blockhouses, which covered the communication with the rivulet in that quarter. A covered way led from the village to the rivulet, and by this passageway water was obtained during the siege. Within the village blockhouses were erected and caponiers prepared by which communication was maintained between the several parts of the works. Traverses were thrown up to prevent the execution of shells and ricochet shots.

On the right side of the village was located the only part of the works that constituted a strong defensive position. This had been planned some time before by Lieutenant Haldane of the engineers, aide-de-camp of Lord Cornwallis. It consisted of a work of 16 salient and reentrant angles, with a dry ditch and abatis, and was called the Star. One hundred and fifty men of the Provincial Corps and 50 militia, under the command of Major Greene, of Delancey's battalion, were selected to occupy the Star. A captain's party and some militia were placed in the stockade beyond the rivulet, and a subaltern's guard in the prison. The remainder of the troops was held by Cruger under his immediate command in the village. There was only three 3-pounder cannon in the garrison, and but a very small quantity of ammunition. Food had been stored within the stockade surrounding the village in anticipation of a siege.

General Greene appeared in front of Ninety Six on the 22d of May, 1781. His effective force, exclusive of militia, was about 1,000 men, and a park of artillery. His command included the Maryland and Virginia brigades, and the Delaware and North Carolina battalions. Reconnaissance was made of the position by Greene and his engineer officer, the Polish count, Kosciusko, and it was decided to demolish the Star, the strongest point in the enemy's defenses, rather than to attempt to secure the rivulet and cut off the water rupply. This latter plan was rejected, as it was believed at the time that the besieged could obtain water within the stockade by sinking wells.

Breaking ground close to the Star, Kosciusko labored with diligence during the first night, but by daybreak only very little headway had been made. Cruger hastily completed platforms for his guns in the Star and moved them into the salient nearest to the besiegers and opened fire on the working party, not more than 70 paces distant. Under cover of the gunfire, supported by musketry, 30 men debouched from the Star about noon on the 23d and rushed the working party, putting every man they could reach to the bayonet. This raiding force was followed by a detachment of militia, who quickly demolished the works and carried off the intrenching tools. So judiciously was this double sally planned and so rapidly executed, that although Greene promptly sent a detachment to support Kosciusko, the object of the raiders was accomplished before the supporting troops could arrive. Taught by this essay that the enemy was of a cast not to be rashly approached, Greene ordered Kosciusko to resume his labors under cover of a ravine at a more respectable distance. Kosciusko broke ground again on the night of the 23d at a distance of 400 paces, still directing his approaches against the Star, and by the 3d of June completed the second parallel.

In the meantime General Pickens and Lieut. Col. Henry Lee besieged and captured Forts Cornwallis and Grierson at Augusta, and then hastened to the assistance of Greene. Lee arrived on the 8th of June and Pickens soon afterwards.

As soon as the second parallel was completed Greene summoned the garrison to surrender, but Cruger replied that "My duty to my sovereign renders inadmissible at present" such a step. The temporary truce entered into to conduct this parley thereupon ceased, and Greene opened fire with his batteries, which enfiladed some of the works. The cannonading was continued at intervals for several days, and at the same time a sap was pushed against the Star, and the batteries advanced as the work progressed. One of the saps, constructed of fascines and gabions, at no greater distance from the abatis than 35 paces, was elevated 40 feet from the ground and upon it a number of riflemen were stationed who, as they overlooked the British works, did great execution. The garrison crowned their parapet with sandbags, leaving apertures through which to fire their rifles. African arrows were thrown by the besiegers on the roofs of the barracks within the stockade to set them on fire, but this design was immediately counteracted by Colonel Cruger, who directed that all the buildings be unroofed. These arrows fitted into the bore of muskets from which they were discharged. They were armed at the end with a barbed spear, entwined with flax, dipped in combustibles, lighted, and shot into the wooden buildings.

With the intention of burning a battery position of the assailants, constructed of crib work, attempts were made by the British to heat shot, but these efforts were frustrated for want of furnaces. The personnel in the Star now found themselves unable to continue firing their guns from the platform in the daytime, so withdrew them through the day and used them only at night.

When on the 8th of June the command of Lieutenant Colonel Lee joined from the successful siege of Augusta, the garrison of Ninety Six had the mortification of seeing their comrades in arms from Augusta marched by them as prisoners of war. With the British standard reversed, drums beating, and fifes playing, the exhibition instead of producing a depressing effect upon the besieged had quite a contrary effect. The regular soldiers were convinced by their officers that death was preferable to captivity under such humiliating circumstances, and the Tories within the works felt more certain than ever before that each was "fighting with a halter around his neck."

On the evening of the 9th of June two parties made a sortie from the works to obtain more definite information relative to the nature and progress of the siege operations being conducted by the Americans. One party from the Star penetrated to one of the 4-gun batteries, but was unable to damage the guns for want of spikes and hammers. This party discovered the mine designed to be carried under a curtain of the Star and inflicted a wound upon Count Kosciusko, who was engaged at the time in examining it. The other party from the left of the works fell in with a covering party of the besiegers and put a number of them to the bayonet, capturing the officer in command. On the 12th of the month, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, a sergeant and nine privates from Colonel Lee's command advanced with lighted combustibles to set fire to the abatis on the left of the works. This bold enterprise was conducted under cover of a concentrated fire from all the batteries and during a heavy storm. Just as the sergeant was in the act of applying the fire his party was discovered and himself and five privates were killed. The remaining four men succeeded in reaching their lines.

Work on the approaches was being pushed by both Greene and Lee. Several batteries for cannon, one more than 20 feet high, had been raised within 140 yards of the Star. A rifle battery was constructed within 30 yards to prevent the British from annoying the workmen of the besiegers. On Colonel Lee's front approaches drew nearer and nearer to the stockade on the left of the stream from which the besieged obtained their supply of water. Firing along the front was almost incessant day and night; not a man could show his head without being fired upon.

About this time a countryman was seen riding along the American lines conversing familiarly with the officers and soldiers on duty. He was not regarded with suspicion and was permitted to go wherever his curiosity led him. At length he reached the main road leading to the village and putting spurs to his horse rushed with full speed into the town, receiving the ineffectual fire of the American sentinels and guards nearest to him, and holding up a letter in his hand to attract the attention of the garrison within the works. The demonstrations of joy with which this messenger was received made it evident to General Greene that he was the bearer of good news, which could be nothing other than that relief was being sent to the beleaguered force.

On the 2d of June a convoy of ships carrying three regiments from Cork had reached Charleston, and the newspaper of that date, announcing that a large fleet with powerful reinforcements for the Royal Army had just anchored off the bar, was dispatched to General Greene, who received it on or before the 10th of the month. Now that Greene interpreted the joyful demonstrations within the works as due to the promise of early relief for the garrison, it became necessary for him to strike a decisive blow without further delay. The message which had been received by Colonel Cruger was in fact from Lord Rawdon giving information that he had passed Orangeburgh and was marching to raise the siege. This comforting information came none too soon to the beleaguered garrison, for on the 17th of June Lee's guns brought a concentrated fire upon the stockade beyond the rivulet so intense as to render it untenable, and that night the British evacuated this portion of the works. A well was dug in the Star, but no water was obtained, and naked negroes, their black bodies indistinguishable at night from the fallen trees, were sent to the rivulet to secure an adequate supply.

On the 18th of June the third parallel was completed close to the abatis in front of the Star. The Americans turned the abatis, drew out the pickets, and ran forward two approach trenches within 6 feet of the ditch surrounding the Star. On the American right, where Lee commanded, the trenches were now within 20 yards of the enemy's ditch. The siege operations had progressed to the point where an assault could be launched with every hope of success and delay could no longer be countenanced, as Greene knew definitely by this time that Rawdon was en route with superior numbers to raise the siege.

Dispositions were accordingly made by Greene to take the works on the 18th, and at noon of that day the assailing columns advanced on signal from the center battery. Colonel Lee, with his legion infantry, and Captain Kirkwood's light infantry, made the attack on the right. Colonel Campbell, with the First Maryland and the First Virginia Regiments, attacked the Star. As the parapet of this work was about 12 feet high, with an additional 3 feet of sandbags, a detachment under Lieutenant Duvall, of the Maryland line, and Lieutenant Selden, of the Virginia line, was sent against it to pull down the sandbags by the use of hooks to enable the Americans to make a lodgment. American riflemen were posted upon the elevated battery to pick off the enemy wherever they appeared, while the Maryland and Virginia troops sustained the action by platoon fire from their trenches.

A furious cannonade was soon followed by the assaulting columns rushing to their respective tasks. The troops on the right were exposed to the fire of a 3-pounder and to musketry fire from the blockhouses in the village, but the British were driven out of their works on this front and Lee's men took possession. On the left the initial operations by Lieutenants Duvall and Selden did not meet with success. Their detachments entered the ditch surrounding the Star at different points, and Colonel Campbell stood prepared to support them. When the detachments succeeded in lowering the height of the parapet by pulling down the sandbags, Campbell's men were to rush through this partial breach and gain the interior of the fort.

The command of the Star was intrusted to Major Greene, who well justified the confidence placed in him by Colonel Cruger. Not only had careful preparations been made to meet the assailants should they reach the parapet, but his men were impatient to sally from the works and meet the enemy on his own ground. Two parties of 30 men each were therefore organized, one under Captain Campbell, of the New Jersey Volunteers, and the other under Captain French, of Delancey's corps. These officers led their men from the sally port in the rear of the Star, and upon entering the ditch separated, one party passing through the ditch in one direction, the other taking the opposite direction. With their bayonets projected well to the front, they encircled the ditch until the Americans working on the sandbags were encountered. Here ensued a desperate conflict with Duvall's and Selden's men. The Americans, fighting not only with the enemy in the ditch, but fired on by those overhead, gallantly sustained the unequal contest until both leaders became disabled by wounds, when they yielded and were driven back with great loss to the point of entry into the ditch. Finding the British defending their works with great obstinacy, and seeing but little prospect of succeeding without heavy loss, General Greene ordered a cessation of the attack.

The American losses during the entire siege amounted to 185 killed and wounded. The losses in the final action on the 18th of June, which lasted three-quarters of an hour, were about 40 killed and wounded. General Greene raised the siege upon the afternoon of the 19th, and on the morning of the 21st the reinforcements under Lord Rawdon made their appearance. The chivalrous conduct of all the participants in these siege operations gives a glamour to Ninety Six and Star Fort that is quite a happy contrast to the needless cruelties generally practiced by Whig and Tory partisan groups throughout the southern Provinces.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Johnson, William: Sketches of the Life and Correspondence of Nathanael Greene. 1822.

Lee, Henry: Memoirs of the War in Southern Department of the United States. 1812.

Tarleton, Lieut. Col. Banastre: Campaigns of 1780 and 1781 in the Southern Provinces of North America. 1787.

Mackenzie, Roderick: Strictures on Lieutenant Colonel Tarleton's History. 1787.

Stedman, Charles: History of the American War. 1794.

Lossing, Benson J.: Pictorial Field Book of the Revolution. 1860.

Caldwell, Charles: Life of Nathanael Greene. 1819.

ASSAY OFFICE AT DAHLONEGA, GA.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 12451) to establish an assay office at Dahlonega, Lumpkin County, Ga.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. HOOPER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

ADDITIONAL JUDGE, MIDDLE DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16034) to authorize the President of the United States to appoint an additional judge of the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of the State of Pennsylvania.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, was this bill reported out by the unanimous vote of the Committee on the Judiciary?

Mr. GRAHAM. Yes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to substitute for this bill the bill S. 5193, of similar title and text, which has been already passed by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint an additional judge of the District Court of the United States for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, who shall reside in said district and shall possess the same qualifications and have the same powers and jurisdiction and receive the same compensation and allowances as the present judge of said district.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect upon its approval by the President.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H. R. 16034) was laid on the table.

CONSULTING ENGINEERS FOR RECLAMATION PROJECTS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4528) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to employ engineers and economists for consultation purposes on important reclamation work.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object which I do not intend to do, I want to offer certain amendments. I am not making this a condition, and the House may do what it pleases with the amendments. I give notice now that I shall move to strike out in line 5 the words "not to exceed three." That would be a substitute for the committee amendment. In lines 6 and 7, I shall move to strike out the words "on any one project." In other words, I am endeavoring to remove the limit, because there is no reason why a department that is charged with the responsibility for constructing large engineering works involving the safety of human beings as well as large financial outlays should be limited in the number of engineers that they employ.

Mr. SMITH. When the bill was under consideration in the committee, that amendment was suggested, and I see no objection to it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. McFADDEN. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Pennsylvania yield for a moment? I am sure the gentleman from Pennsylvania, who is the head of an important committee which will bring many bills into this House that are important to certain people in the country, does not want to lightly object to a bill just because it has to do with reclamation. This bill does not add one acre to the number of acres that will be under reclamation or available for reclamation. It does not add anything to or make competition with the product of Pennsylvania farms. It does give the department an opportunity to safeguard in the construction of engineering works that are authorized. If this bill fails, the works will be constructed just the same, but perhaps not so wisely, and I will not say safely, because they have always been constructed safely, but in these important works the department should have authority to occasionally consult outside engineers, so that the gentleman's objection will not operate at all to reduce the acreage now already proposed.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. It is just as necessary to the department as bank examiners are to the Federal reserve.

Mr. CRAMTON. Absolutely, and if the gentleman is to object to this kind of a bill because the word "reclamation" happens to be in the bill, there is apt to grow a prejudice in this House against bills in which the word "banking" happens to occur.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Pennsylvania merely wanted to afford me an opportunity to make a statement.

Mr. McFADDEN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, the statement of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CRAMTON] is entirely out of order. This is not a matter in which the Banking and Currency Committee is involved in any way whatsoever nor a matter in which the State of Pennsylvania should be brought in. It is the right of a Member of Congress to object to a bill that he thinks is improper, and I insist that this is an improper bill and should not be enacted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair calls the attention of the House to the fact that it requires three objections to prevent the consideration of a bill on the Consent Calendar. There is a reservation of the right to object by one Member. The question is, is there objection.

Mr. McFADDEN. I object.

Mr. KETCHAM. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Two objections have been heard, not a sufficient number. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, in his judgment and discretion, to employ for consultation purposes on important reclamation work not to exceed three consulting engineers, geologists, and economists, on any one project, at rates of compensation to be fixed by him, but not to exceed $50 per day for any engineer, geologist, or economist so employed: Provided, That the total compensation paid to any engineer, geologists, or economist during any fiscal year shall not exceed $3,500: Provided further, That notwithstanding the provisions of any other act, retired officers of the Army or Navy may be employed by the Secretary of the Interior as consulting engineers in accordance with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. The joint resolution approved June 28, 1926, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to employ engineers for consultation in connection with the construction of dams for irrigation purposes, is hereby repealed.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the committee amendments first.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 1, line 5, strike out the word "three" and insert in lieu thereof the word "five."

On page 2, line 1, strike out "$3,500" and insert in lieu thereof "$5,000."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, may I offer an amendment as a substitute for the first committee amendment?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment of the gentleman to the first committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CRAMTON to the committee amendment: Page 1, line 5, strike out the words "not to exceed three," and on page 1, lines 6 and 7, strike out the words "on any one project."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the committee amendment.

The question was taken, and the amendment to the committee amendment was rejected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question now recurs to the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the next committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 2, line 1, strike out "$3,500" and insert "$5,000."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. SMITH] why should we increase the limit over the amount provided in the Senate bill?

Mr. SMITH. Because some of these dams are very stupendous, requiring a long time to construct, and it will be necessary to retain in employment some of these experts for several months in the aggregate.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. The gentleman realizes that the regular naval appropriation bill provides for the hiring of experts in a number of different cases, and the amount to be paid them is $20 a day.

Mr. SMITH. If the salary is increased to $50 a day, it will only permit him to work on the project for 70 days in one year. Some of these dams will take years to construct.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. The Reclamation Bureau has many engineers at its command, and can call in consulting engineers for consultation when necessary.

Mr. SMITH. This is to give the Secretary discretion to employ them for not exceeding 70 days if necessary.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I do not think the committee amendment should be adopted, especially in view of the fact that retired Army and Navy officers who are drawing their compensation from the Government can be employed under this bill.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Yes.

Mr. CRAMTON. Possibly we put too much emphasis on part of the language without referring to the other part. This bill is not limited alone to engineers. It says "engineers, geologists, or economists." That is to say, in these projects more attention is to be given than heretofore to the economic side. On the question of bringing in economic experts they might even attempt to go into the State of Pennsylvania and bring in agricultural experts. There is a demand to go outside of the Reclamation Service and hire economic experts. The Army and Navy officers would not, of course, be very valuable for this service in economic and agricultural studies.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I know; but I think it is very bad policy to employ retired Army and Navy officers and pay them large compensation. When called to Government employment they ought to accept their Regular Army pay. I do not favor paying them these special sums.

Mr. SMITH. It is not unusual to employ experts in private employments at as much or more than $100 a day. We are employing these experts at $50 a day.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Why is it that the naval appropriation bill prescribes only $20 a day? Why is it necessary for the Reclamation Service to pay $50 a day?

Mr. SMITH. This legislation is necessary because competent consulting engineers can not be secured to construct dams for $20 a day when employed only part of the time.

Mr. McFADDEN. The gentleman has spoken of what work these consulting engineers shall be put on. Will the gentleman repeat to me what he said?

Mr. SMITH. I will state to the gentleman that I had a consultation with the Chief of the Reclamation Bureau yesterday.

Mr. McFADDEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last word.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Pennsylvania moves to strike out the last word.

Mr. SMITH. I had a conference yesterday with Doctor Mead, the Commissioner of Reclamation, and he assured me that he did not contemplate employing these expert engineers, economists, and geologists on the Columbia Basin project, which is not yet authorized, and where work is not contemplated at this time.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McFADDEN. I will say to the gentleman from Idaho, before I yield to the gentleman from Michigan, that my opposition to this measure is that these are additional employees who are unnecessary to conduct this work. It seems to me that the present force of the Bureau of Reclamation in the Interior Department is sufficient to handle these things inasmuch as assurance is given that they are not to undertake any new operations. The result of the reports of the studies of these engineers and experts usually is a recommendation for some new reclamation project. My opposition to this matter is to the whole scheme of reclamation, owing to the general economic condition which now confronts this country.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McFADDEN. I yield.

Mr. CRAMTON. The assurance that the gentleman suggests could not well be given by any Member of the House or even by the Reclamation Service for the reason that this is permanent law and unless changed it will be the law 10 or 20 years from now. No person could say that none would ever be used on any one project.

Mr. McFADDEN. I will say to the gentleman that is the reason I object to the bill.

Mr. CRAMTON. But it can not be used, I will say to the gentleman, on the Columbia River Basin project until Congress authorizes a further study of that project. Now, if the gentleman wants the assurance that in the next year or two years, without the action of Congress, they would not be used on the Columbia River Basin project, then probably some such assurance could be given him, but if Congress should authorize a further study of the Columbia River Basin project then this bill would authorize the employment of the caliber of engineers and the number of engineers that would be necessary.

Mr. KETCHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the pro forma amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for five minutes.

Mr. KETCHAM. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the House, my opposition to this proposition follows the general line of that expressed by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, but particularly do I call to the attention of the House the language that is included in the amendment. We have geologists, we have engineers, we have economists, and perhaps one or two other classes of persons who are to do this work, but it does seem to me that while it is intended to be all inclusive one officer has been lost sight of, and that is an agricultural economist. I think such an economist should be included in the list of those who are to do this expert work, because, while water is important and geological studies are required, in the last analysis all of that is subordinate to the main purpose for which these projects are being undertaken, namely, the bringing in of new land for cultivation. If that be true it certainly seems to me that in future bills of this sort where economists are enumerated particular attention ought to be paid to the inclusion of agricultural economists.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KETCHAM. I yield.

Mr. CRAMTON. I wonder if my colleague and the gentleman from Pennsylvania could indicate the kind of language that would be necessary to authorize the employment, for instance, of Gifford Pinchot and experts of that type.

Mr. KETCHAM. Of course, I always appreciate the wit and humor of my colleague, but I know in this instance he seeks thereby to rather minimize the objection we make to his proposition. That is all very well and I will not seek to match him in that arena, where he is characteristically strong, but I come back to the particular point that I think is the vital one. Here is something of interest to men who come from agricultural sections of the country, who are familiar with the fact that there are 15,000,000 acres of abandoned farm lands east of the Mississippi River. If you provide for projects that increase the possibility of opening still larger areas of land, it seems to me that the employment of agricultural economists is worthy of careful consideration, and with that idea in mind I just simply submit this consideration to the House.

Mr. LEAVITT. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KETCHAM. Yes.

Mr. LEAVITT. Let me say to the gentleman that there is no new project in this.

Mr. KETCHAM. My understanding is there is not, but the idea I am presenting ought to be incorporated in this particular legislation and in all further reclamation projects.

Mr. LEAVITT. This bill is to accomplish just exactly what the gentleman would require; that is, that in carrying on these projects in the future there be secured additional expert advice along all of these lines.

Mr. KETCHAM. But, if the gentleman will permit, this is the kind of report that we get from engineers and economists that are appointed by the Reclamation Bureau. Their reports are favorable to an extension of this particular work. If they were not favorable, they would not be appointed.

Mr. LEAVITT. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KETCHAM. I will be pleased to yield.

Mr. LEAVITT. That would be interetsting, if true, but the fact is there are now before the Reclamation Committee a number of such adverse reports.

Mr. KETCHAM. Mr. Chairman, I do not yield further. When it comes to the matter of truth, of course, that is a matter of opinion. In my judgment, my statement is true.

Mr. LEAVITT. It is a matter of record, not a matter of opinion, because the Reclamation Committee has before it numerous adverse reports that have come from the Reclamation Service.

Mr. McFADDEN. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. KETCHAM. If my time has not expired, I will be pleased to yield.

Mr. McFADDEN. I would like to ask the gentleman from Michigan who has made a study of this situation—and I am very much interested in the remarks he has made—whether or not, in his opinion, the whole question of reclamation should be turned over to the Department of Agriculture where it more properly belongs than where it is now?

Mr. KETCHAM. If a few more propositions of this sort come in, I know that I should be very glad to join in such an effort.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

Mr. ARENTZ. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last three words.

The Irrigation and Reclamation Committee of the House has heard many, many men during the past two years on the subject of proposed reclamation projects, a number of which were not adopted, and during these two years the thing that has been brought out most forcibly is the question that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. KETCHAM] and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. McFADDEN] have brought out, namely, that we should have an economic study of these problems.

Now, this bill proposes to allow the Commissioner of Reclamation to appoint engineers, geologists, and economists. Now, what are the economists going to do? According to the hearings before the Committee on Reclamation of the House, these economists are going study every phase of agriculture having a bearing on the success or failure of lands that are contemplated to be put under cultivation on these Government projects. They are going to study the needs of certain crops in a particular locality. They are going to study the transportation problems affecting the prices of these crops at the places where they are perhaps needed. They are going to examine into all the questions pertaining to agriculture as they would affect the proposed projects; whether farmers would be successful on a project and meet the Government payments, what they would raise and how these crops would fit into the picture, and so forth.

This is a movement in the right direction. It is a movement along lines that the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the gentleman from Michigan have suggested. This is the first time that a bill of this sort has been brought in, and I am sure that if the gentlemen thoroughly understood its purposes they would favor it, for, as I understand it, the gentlemen from Pennsylvania and Michigan are in favor of an economic study of agriculture, and so am I of every proposed reclamation project.

This is a splendid advance move and just the thing we want to do, because we certainly must study the economics of the situation; otherwise the agriculture problem will never be solved.

Mr. McFADDEN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ARENTZ. Of course I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. McFADDEN. The gentleman is referring to having these projects studied by engineers, geologists, and economists, and I would like to inquire of the gentleman whether the Riverton project is one of them?

Mr. ARENTZ. These engineers, geologists, and economists are going to study the projects that the Congress has favorably considered, and those proposed before actual work begins.

Mr. McFADDEN. Is the study limited to these present authorized projects?

Mr. ARENTZ. That is my understanding so far as the economists are concerned.

Mr. McFADDEN. Does the gentleman know about the Riverton project?

Mr. ARENTZ. Yes.

Mr. McFADDEN. Does not the gentleman think that project ought to be studied some more?

Mr. ARENTZ. I can not answer definitely, but I would say that so far as economists are concerned it certainly should be considered with respect to the economics of the situation.

Mr. McFADDEN. I will say to the gentleman that the reason I think that project should be studied is because I understand we have spent about $5,000,000 on the project, and I understand it is 26 miles from a railroad and contains some 20,000 acres of land that has been watered, and with all the publicity efforts of the Bureau of Reclamation during the past two years, they have only succeeded in getting located on this project six settlers, and now they are going to spend $3,000,000 more to irrigate about 40,000 acres of additional land, and the Government has 196 men there on the job superintending the work. I suppose they are economists, geologists, and engineers, such as are provided for in this bill.

Mr. ARENTZ. I want to say to the gentleman that this bill will provide for a study so as to prevent just the thing that the gentleman is referring to, in order that projects that are adopted from now on will be feasible projects, and even as to projects that this Congress has passed on, if they are not feasible economically, they will not be considered at all even though the Congress has passed favorably upon them.

We have got to study these things in an entirely different light from in the past. Mistakes have been made. Many of these projects were passed on by the Congress, I will say, as political expedients, but that was in the past. Nothing of that sort is going to happen in the future. We are going to study the projects and find out that they can be made a success before any money is spent on them.

I am in favor of this and every member of the Committee on Reclamation is favorable to doing just the things which the gentleman himself has suggested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk completed the reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FOURTH WORLD'S POULTRY CONGRESS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 382) to send delegates and an exhibit to the Fourth World's Poultry Congress to be held in England in 1930.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, this is a poultry proposition introduced by a FISH, and it ought to be all right. [Laughter].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the invitation of the Government of Great Britain to the United States to send delegates and an exhibit to the Fourth World's Poultry Congress, to be held in England in 1930, be accepted.

SEC. 2. That the President is hereby authorized to designate official delegates to enable the United States to participate in the proposed Congress.

SEC. 3. That the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to prepare and install a suitable national exhibit for display at the proposed congress, portraying in a correlated manner the fundamental features concerning the organization and development of the poultry industry of the United States, including the broad problems of production, distribution, and marketing of poultry and poultry products, and the sum of $40,000 is hereby authorized to be appropriated for the purpose of preparing, transporting, and demonstrating such an exhibit, of which amount not to exceed $15,000 may be available for the expenses of official delegates.

The resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read the third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ROCK CREEK AND POTOMAC PARKWAY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16209) to enable the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway Commission, established by act of March 4, 1913, to make slight changes in the boundaries of said parkway by excluding therefrom and selling certain small areas, and including other limited areas, the net cost not to exceed the total sum already authorized for the entire project.

The Clerk read the title to the bill.

The SPEAKER. pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, when this bill was up in the House before I pointed out the danger of allowing park land to be sold. I have since investigated and found that there were three strips of land to be sold. I have taken the matter up with Colonel Grant and the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. LUCE]. I have a letter from Colonel Grant in which he agrees with my proposed amendment to strike out of the bill the authorized sale of any park land. The very purpose of these strips adjoining the park is to create a territory necessary between private property and park land. It is the experience of every large city that park land should never be sold. Now, with the understanding that the proposed amendment on page 2, line 17, after the word "parkway," strike out the remainder of the paragraph, is adopted I will not object. I ask unanimous consent to insert in my remarks a letter from Colonel Grant.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The letter is as follows:

NATIONAL CAPITAL PARK AND PLANNING COMMISSION,
Washington, February 14, 1929.

Hon. FIORELLO H. LAGUARDIA,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. LAGUARDIA: We have carefully considered your suggested amendment to the bill H. R. 16209 (H. Rept. No. 2210), House Union Calendar 692, Consent Calendar 1137, so as to strike out all authorization for sale of any park land.

Referring to the bill, the words "provided further" in line 17, page 2, and all the remainder of the bill following those words may be stricken out, and also, in the title the words "and selling" may be stricken out; also the word "net" in the next to the last line of the title may also be stricken out.

There are a few small areas already acquired that we felt could be dispensed with and the proceeds better invested in certain other small areas, but considering the objections you presented I am entirely willing to accept your suggestion.

We will greatly appreciate it if you will consent to passage of the bill with these amendments, when the bill is next reached on the calendar.

Very sincerely yours,

U. S. GRANT 3d,
Executive and Disbursing Officer.

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object, I would like to have the assurance of the proponents of the measure that they will support the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York; otherwise, I shall object.

Mr. LUCE. Mr. Speaker, still further reserving the right to object, I may repeat what I said before when the bill was before the House: I acted simply as the conduit for the wishes of the commission concerned, and without consulting the commission I did not feel warranted in accepting the suggestion of the gentleman from New York. Now I find that the commission accepts or agrees to the change, I am quite willing that the amendment should be adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the authority of the commission created by section 22 of the public building act approved March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 885), is extended to include the acquisition of such additional lands and premises lying adjacent to or in the immediate vicinity of the taking lines as shown on the map on file in the office of the executive and disbursing officer and known as the map of the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway (in four sheets), dated May 1923, as may in its discretion, subject to the approval of the Commission of Fine Arts, be necessary for the development of the connecting parkway between Rock Creek Park, the Zoological Park, and Potomac Park: Provided, That the total sum expended for lands needed for this parkway shall not exceed that authorized by section 22 of the public buildings act, approved March 4, 1913, and amended by the second deficiency act of May 5, 1926: Provided further, That the commission may exclude such lands and premises, not now owned by the United States but within the taking lines heretofore authorized for the said parkway, as may in its discretion, and upon the advice of the Commission of Fine Arts, be found not to be desirable or necessary for the connecting parkway: Provided further, That the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital may dispose of the lands so excluded, either by public auction or at fair appraised value, or to the owners of adjacent property at a price not less than that paid for it, as the best interest of the United States may justify: Provided further, That after payment of the necessary expenses of said sales the net proceeds thereof shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States, to be credited to the appropriation disbursed by the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway Commission.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment:

Page 2, line 17, strike out the colon and insert a period; and strike out the remainder of the section.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I want to call the gentleman's attention to the fact that the bill still carries a provision permitting the commission to exclude certain land not desirable.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. We do not own those.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. It would contemplate the exclusion of the land the Government owns?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. No.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. On reading further in the bill I think the gentleman is correct.

The amendment of Mr. LAGUARDIA was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read the third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The title was amended.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Mr. ZIHLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my colleague the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. MCLEOD] may be permitted to extend his own remarks in the RECORD upon the question of reapportionment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCLEOD. Mr. Speaker, as the Senate begins consideration of the Fenn reapportionment bill to-night I want to take a few moments to praise the work on behalf of this constitutional mandate of a former Member of this House—Judge Vincent M. Brennan, of Detroit—who at one time represented my district in Congress.

While I have exerted my efforts to the utmost in bringing the demand for this legislation to the attention of the Members much of the work in this regard in the Sixty-seventh Congress was done by Judge Brennan when he was an outstanding champion of reapportionment. In that session, to his great disappointment, he saw the Senate let the first reapportionment bill in this decade die without raising its hand to uphold the Constitution.

Mr. Brennan was one Member who fought for reapportionment when others were showing an indifference to the issue. Mr. Brennan's efforts in laying the ground work for the fight that has carried on for eight years will only culminate when President Coolidge affixes his approving signature to the Fenn bill.

We hope the present Fenn bill, now that it has been successfully passed by the House, will not find the same fate as the martyred reapportionment measure of 1922.

RELOCATION OF LEVEE OF CONWAY DISTRICT NO. 1, ARKANSAS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16397) granting authority to the Secretary of War to relocate levee of Conway district No. 1, Conway County, Ark.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in the reconstruction of the levee along the left bank of the Arkansas River in Conway levee district No. 1, Conway County, Ark., as provided under the terms of section 7 of the flood control act (Public, No. 391) approved May 15, 1928, authority is hereby granted to the Secretary of War, upon the recommendation and approval of the Chief of Engineers, to relocate all or any part of said levee when in the opinion of the Chief of Engineers such relocation shall be deemed practical and feasible: Provided, That the cost to the United States of such relocation shall not exceed the cost of the necessary repairs to the relocated part of the levee in its present position under the provisions of section 7 of the flood control act of May 15, 1928.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS POTOMAC RIVER NEAR GREAT FALLS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4721) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Potomac River at or near Great Falls, and to authorize the use of certain Government lands.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. FREAR. Mr. Speaker, I object.

EDITING OF OFFICIAL PAPERS OF THE TERRITORIES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 1168) to amend an act to authorize the collection and editing of official papers of the Territories of the United States now in the national archives, approved March 3, 1925.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 2 of the act entitled "An act to authorize the collection and editing of official papers of the Territories of the United States now in the national archives," approved March 3, 1925, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 2. That the Secretary of State be ordered to continue the work of collecting, copying, arranging, and editing of the official papers relating to the Territories of the United States and to have them issued as a Government publication."

SEC. 3. For defraying the expenses to be incurred in carrying out the provisions of section 2 of this act, including the employment, either in or outside of the District of Columbia, of not to exceed five historical experts, especially informed on the various phases of the territorial history of the United States, without regard to the classification act of 1923 and the civil service rules, and for the printing and binding of an edition of 600 copies of the publication for the use of the Senate, 1,300 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 50 copies for the use of the Department of State, and a sufficient number of copies for distribution by the Superintendent of Documents to depository libraries, and for all other purposes relevant to the carrying out of the provisions of section 2 of this act, salaries for personnel, printing and binding, contingent expenses and traveling expenses, there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of the money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $125,000, the appropriations to remain available until expended, and under this authorization not more than $50,000 shall be appropriated for any one year.

SEC. 4. The work of copy reading and index making for this publication shall be done by the regular editorial staff of the Department of State, and the cost of this work (prorated each month according to the number of hours spent and the annual salaries of the clerks employed) shall be charged against such annual appropriations as may be made under the provisions of section 3.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 11, after the word "of" where it occurs the second time, strike out "600 copies of the publication for the use of the Senate, 1,300 copies for the use of the House of Representatives, and 50 copies" and insert "1,950 copies for the Department of State, of which 6 copies shall be delivered to each Senator and 2 copies to each Representative, and the remaining 50 copies shall be."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I have certain amendments that I desire to offer, and one of them is a substitute for the committee amendment. That I send up to the desk and ask to have read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan offers an amendment in the way of a substitute for the committee amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Substitute for the committee amendment offered by Mr. CRAMTON: In lieu of the matter proposed by the committee amendment insert "1,950 copies for the Department of State, of which 6 copies shall be delivered to each Senator and 2 copies to each Representative, and 8 copies for each State or Territory to be distributed to historical associations, commissions, museums or libraries, and to other nondepository libraries therein designated by the Governor of each State or Territory, 4 copies for the library of the Department of the Interior, and the remainder of said 1,950 shall be."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the substitute for the committee amendment.

The substitute was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question now is on agreeing to the committee amendment as amended.

The committee amendment as amended was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CRAMTON: Page 2, line 35, after the word "appropriated," insert the words "not more than."

Page 2, line 24, and page 3, line 1, strike out the words "the appropriation to remain available until expended."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

COLUMBIA RIVER BIRD REFUGE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was Senate joint resolution (S. J. Res. 111) authorizing the acceptance of title to certain lands in the counties of Benton and Walla Walla, Wash., adjacent to the Columbia River bird refuge in said State established in accordance with the authority contained in Executive Order No. 4501, dated August 28, 1926.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, here is a railroad giving lands away for nothing. What is back of it?

Mr. HAUGEN. Almost 7 acres. It has no economic value.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. It almost takes my breath away.

Mr. HAUGEN. It is very generous upon the part of the railroad.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of Agriculture be, and he is hereby, authorized to accept, on behalf of and without expense to the United States, from the Northern Pacific Railway Co., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, or its authorized agents, a gift of certain lands situate in the counties of Benton and Walla Walla, State of Washington, described as lot 8, section 21, and lot 5, section 33, all in township 7 north, range 31 east, Willamette principal meridian, containing 6.97 acres, more or less, including all the buildings and improvements thereon, and all rights, easements, and appurtenances thereunto appertaining: Provided, That upon the acceptance of the title to the lands above described by the United States, they shall become a part of the Columbia River bird refuge established pursuant to the authority contained in Executive Order No. 4501, dated August 28, 1926, and shall be subject to any laws governing the administration and protection of said refuge.

The joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

NET WEIGHTS IN COTTON

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14938) to provide for the use of net weights in interstate and foreign commerce transactions in cotton, to provide for the standardization of bale covering for cotton, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That this act shall be known by the short title of the "Cotton net weight act."

The word "person," wherever used in this act, shall be construed to import the plural or singular as the case demands, and shall include individuals, associations, partnerships, and corporations.

The words "in interstate or foreign commerce," wherever used in this act, shall be construed to mean from any State, Territory, or District to or through any other State, Territory, or District, or to or through any foreign country, or within any Territory or District.

The words "bale covering" shall be construed to mean bagging, ties, and patches.

When considering and enforcing the provisions of this act the omission or failure of any official, agent, or other person acting for or employed by any association, partnership, or corporation within the scope of his employment or office shall in every case also be deemed the act, omission, or failure of such association, partnership, or corporation, as well as that of the person.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized to investigate the handling, inspection, and transportation of cotton in interstate and foreign commerce; to study the materials used for bale covering for such cotton; and from time to time to establish standards for materials used for bale coverings, including specifications and tolerance as to sizes, weights, and patterns, which said standards, when established, shall be known as the United States official cotton tare standards: Provided, That said official cotton tare standards shall be established and promulgated within one year from the date of the approval of this act: Provided further, That any such standards or change or replacement thereof shall become effective only on and after a date specified in the order of the Secretary of Agriculture establishing the same, which date shall be not less than one year from the date of such order. The Secretary of Agriculture is further authorized to prescribe minimum weights of bale covering, used on cotton for shipment in interstate or foreign commerce, which such bale covering is not of sizes and patterns conforming with said official standards.

SEC. 3. That from and after one year following the effective date of the United States official cotton tare standards, all ties used on American cotton for shipment in interstate or foreign commerce shall be of sizes, weights, and patterns conforming with such official cotton tare standards. The bagging and patches used on each bale shall be of standard size, weight, and pattern.

SEC. 4. That from and after one year following the effective date of official cotton tare standards all American cotton shall be quoted, bought, and sold for shipment in interstate and foreign commerce on net weights, excluding in each instance the weight of bagging, ties, and patches.

SEC. 5. That for the purposes of this act the Secretary of Ariculture shall cause to be promulgated such regulations, may cause such investigations, tests, demonstrations, and publications to be made as he shall find to be necessary; and he is hereby authorized to cooperate with any department or agency of the Government, any State, Territory, District, or possession, or department, agency, or political subdivision thereof, or any person, in carrying out the provisions of this act; and he shall have the power to appoint, remove, and fix the compensation of such officers and employees not in conflict with existing law, and to make such expenditures for printing, books of reference, technical newspapers and periodicals, furniture, stationery, office equipment, travel, and other supplies and expenses as shall be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act in the District of Columbia and elsewhere.

SEC. 6. Any person who shall knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act or any regulation made in pursuance hereof; or any person who shall forcibly assault, resist, impede, interfere with, or influence improperly, or attempt to influence improperly, any person employed under this act in the pursuance of his duties, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $500.

SEC. 7. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sums as may be necessary for carrying out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 8. If any provisions of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the act and the application of such provision to other persons and circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 3 line 6, strike out the word "minimum" and insert the word "maximum."

Page 3, line 7, after the word "covering," insert "including both bagging and ties."

Page 3, line 9, strike out "which such bale covering is not of sizes and patterns conforming with said official standards" and insert "not to exceed 15 pounds per bale."

Page 3, line 14, strike out "ties" and insert "bale covering."

Page 3, line 17, strike out "The bagging and patches used on each bale shall be of standard size, weight, and pattern."

Page 4, line 17, after the word "hereof," insert "or any person who shall knowingly misrepresent the weight of any bale covering by misbranding or otherwise."

Page 5, line 3, strike out "such sums as may be necessary for" and insert "an amount not to exceed $30,000 annually for the purpose of."

The committee amendments were agreed to and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read a third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

RIFLE RANGE, PUGET SOUND, WASH.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15678) to provide for the establishment of a rifle range in the vicinity of the navy yard, Puget Sound, Wash.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman what naval rifle ranges there are on the Pacific coast.

Mr. MILLER. There is no naval rifle range on the Pacific coast. The facilities that the Navy Department has been using are at Fort Lewis, an old Army range, about 40 miles distant. About half of that distance will be traveled by water and the remainder by truck, and that range is now being demolished and the buildings wherein the troops heretofore have been quartered are likewise being demolished.

Mr. HOOPER. Are there none on the Pacific coast?

Mr. MILLER. None in the neighborhood of the Puget Sound.

Mr. HOOPER. I will not object, but I would like to ask the gentleman why the Navy Department is opposed to this legislation. Is it because of the Budget?

Mr. MILLER. It is on the report of the Director of the Budget. I have in my hand the report of the Secretary of the Navy, 1928. On page 12 of that report——

Mr. HOOPER. I am not going to object.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Further reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I want to point out to the gentleman from Washington that it would appear that the Secretary of the Navy in submitting this bill to the Bureau of the Budget submits to the Bureau of the Budget a statement of the present rifle-range facilities in the vicinity of the Puget Sound Navy Yard, and with that information before it the Bureau of the Budget recommends against it.

I want to say further to the gentleman from Washington that that letter from the Navy Department is very meager. It does not afford the gentleman from Washington, the sponsor of this bill, even a loophole or something to hold to, to overcome the opposition of the Bureau of the Budget. If the Navy Department itself will not take the initiative and urge the passage of the bill, surely the gentleman from Washington must understand that the Members following this legislation can not do otherwise than to follow the report.

Mr. MILLER. This is based entirely on the annual report of the Secretary of the Navy for the fiscal year 1928. On page 12 the Secretary says:

> The Battle Fleet continues to be handicapped by the lack of convenient facilities, and a naval rifle range in the vicinity of Puget Sound is urgently needed.

Mr. HOOPER. In other words, would the fleet have to go into Atlantic waters for practice of that kind?

Mr. MILLER. The nearest naval target range is at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER. Yes.

Mr. SCHAFER. The report of the committee seems to indicate that this range is not required. Will the gentleman explain this language, taken from the top of page 2 of the committee report?—

> There is no rifle range anywhere near the Puget Sound Navy Yard, which is the home of the Pacific Fleet, where all the major naval vessels go for overhaul and repair, and where the fleet remains for weeks. The old target range was sold, so that is gone as far as the Navy is concerned.

When was this old target range sold? And why was it sold, if we need a naval range in that locality?

Mr. MILLER. I will be glad to explain that to the gentleman. The old target range was near the magazines. It is settled up immediately around the land constituting this range, until the use of the range for target practice endangered the lives of people in that vicinity. It was also too small in extent. Therefore the Navy Department thought it was the part of wisdom to abandon this range, and sell it, and procure another before serious accidents should occur.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. How much did it bring?

Mr. MILLER. About $7,600, if I remember correctly.

Mr. SCHAFER. Do they not want $85,000 for the new one?

Mr. MILLER. The new one will be larger than the old one. The old one comprised about 210 acres. It did not sell for a very big price, but in the immediate vicinity of it very many homes were established, and the use of the target range jeopardized life in that vicinity.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. How far away is it proposed to be?

Mr. MILLER. The tract of land under consideration will be about 8 miles, partially traveled by water and partially by highway.

Mr. SCHAFER. Consisting of how many acres?

Mr. MILLER. According to the hearings, there is a tract of land which seems favorably situated, about 4 miles in length and 2 miles in width. Dependent upon the topography, the range will be selected. It is not expected to secure all this tract. The firing field will probably be about 1½ miles long and perhaps one-half mile wide.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. The gentleman will pardon my confusion, but I can not understand how a tract of land surrounded by buildings——

Mr. MILLER. I did not say buildings. I said homes. There is some acreage in cultivation, where people are working. The ordinary small arms shoot for a distance of a mile and over.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Would sell for $7,600, while another tract, 8 miles away, will cost $85,000. I am somewhat curious about it.

Mr. MILLER. The $85,000 is not only for the purpose of buying the lands but improving it with sheds, butts, sanitary arrangements, and those other things always necessary in a target range.

Mr. SCHAFER. What is the assessed valuation of this land that we are asked to purchase at a cost of almost $85,000?

Mr. MILLER. I could not say exactly, but I think it is, perhaps, a dollar and a quarter an acre. As I said, it is not expected to spend all this money for the land, but it is necessary to have the land cleared of the present standing timber and to install the necessary butts, buildings, and other requirements.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. SCHAFER. I will object for the present.

INDIANS OF THE KLAMATH RESERVATION IN OREGON

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 10432) for the relief of the Indians of the Klamath Reservation in Oregon.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. ARENTZ. Will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I reserve my objection.

Mr. ARENTZ. It is not my intention to press this bill, because I understand legislation is now pending before the Senate which contemplates the doing of the very thing that this bill desires to do. So this bill is unnecessary, according to our friend from Michigan [Mr. CRAMTON].

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. The department makes an adverse report on the bill, and I will object to it at the present time.

CODE OF LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 399) providing more economical and improved methods for the publication and distribution of the Code of Laws of the United States and of the District of Columbia, and supplements.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That in order to avoid duplication and waste—

(a) Publication of Supplement I to the Code of Laws of the United States (Public—No. 621, 70th Cong.) as a part of the Statutes at Large is dispensed with;

(b) Publication in slip or pamphlet form or in the Statutes at Large of any of the volumes or publications enumerated in the act of May 29, 1928 (45 Stat. 1007), as amended by this resolution, shall, in event of enactment be dispensed with whenever the Committee on Revision of the Laws of the House of Representatives so directs the Secretary of State;

(c) Curtailment of the number provided by law to be printed and distributed of the volumes or publications enumerated in such act of May 29, 1928, as amended by this resolution, may be directed by such committee, except that the Public Printer shall print such numbers as are necessary for depository library distribution and for sale; and

(d) Such committee may direct that the printing and distribution of any supplement to the Code of Laws of the United States or to the Code of the District of Columbia be dispensed with entirely, except that there shall be printed and distributed for each Congress at least one supplement to each such code, containing the legislation of such Congress.

SEC. 2. Section 2 of such act of May 29, 1928, is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 2. There shall be prepared and published under the supervision of the Committee on Revision of the Laws of the House of Representatives—

"(a) A supplement for each session of the Congress to the then current edition of the Code of Laws of the United States, cumulatively embracing the legislation of the then current supplement, and correcting errors in such edition and supplement;

"(b) A consolidation and codification of the laws, general and permanent in their nature, relating to or in force in the District of Columbia, except such laws as are of application in the District of Columbia by reason of being laws of the United States general and permanent in their nature. Such code shall be designated 'The Code of the District of Columbia';

"(c) A supplement for each session of the Congress to the then current edition of the Code of the District of Columbia, cumulatively embracing the legislation of the then current supplement, and correcting errors in such edition and supplement;

"(d) New editions of the Code of Laws of the United States and of the Code of the District of Columbia, correcting errors and incorporating the then current supplement. In the case of each code new editions shall not be published oftener than once in each five years. Copies of each such edition shall be distributed in the same manner as provided in the case of supplements to the code of which it is a new edition. Supplements published after any new edition shall not contain the legislation of supplements published before such new edition."

SEC. 3. Section 4 of such act of May 29, 1928, is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 4. In all courts, tribunals, and public offices of the United States, at home or abroad, of the District of Columbia, and of each State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States—

"(a) The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of Laws of the United States current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie the laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, in force on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included.

"(b) The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of the District of Columbia current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie the laws, general and permanent in their nature, relating to or in force in the District of Columbia on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included, except such laws as are of application in the District of Columbia by reason of being laws of the United States general and permanent in their nature.

"(c) The Code of the District of Columbia may be cited as 'D. C. Code.'

"(d) Supplements to the Code of Laws of the United States and to the Code of the District of Columbia may be cited, respectively, as 'U. S. C., Sup. ,' and 'D. C. Code, Sup. ,' the blank in each case being filled with Roman figures denoting the number of the supplement.

"(e) New editions of each of such codes may be cited, respectively, as 'U. S. C., ed.' and 'D. C. Code, ed.,' the blank in each case being filled with figures denoting the last year the legislation of which is included in whole or in part."

SEC. 4. The publications provided for in such act of May 29, 1928, as amended by this resolution, shall be printed at the Government Printing Office, and shall be in such form and style and with such ancillaries as may be prescribed by the Committee on Revision of the Laws of the House of Representatives. The Librarian of Congress is directed to cooperate with such committee in the preparation of such ancillaries. Such publications shall be furnished with such thumb insets and other devices to distinguish parts, with such facilities for the insertion of additional matter, and with such explanatory and advertising slips, and shall be printed on such paper and bound in such material, as may be prescribed by such committee.

SEC. 5. All bills and resolutions referred to or reported by the Committee on Revision of the Laws of the House of Representatives shall be printed in such form and style, and with such ancillaries, as such committee may prescribe as being economical and suitable, to so continue until final enactment thereof in both Houses of Congress; and such committee may also curtail the number of copies of such bills to be printed in the various parliamentary stages in the House of Representatives.

SEC. 6. The Public Printer is directed to print, in addition to the number provided by existing law, and, as soon as printed, to distribute in such manner as the Committee on Revision of the Laws of the House of Representatives shall determine, 20 copies in slip form of each public act and joint resolution, beginning with the second session of the Seventieth Congress.

SEC. 7. The functions vested by this resolution in the Committee on Revision of the Laws of the House of Representatives may from time to time be vested in such other agency as the Congress may by concurrent resolution provide.

Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD: At the end of the resolution strike out the period, insert a colon, and add the following: "Provided, That the printing, binding, and distribution of the volumes and publications enumerated in the act of May 29, 1928, and this act shall be done under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing."

Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD. Mr. Speaker, may I make a statement in connection with the amendment? In the original draft of the bill from the Committee on the Revision of the Laws, the paper, printing, binding, and distribution of codes and supplements of the general laws of the United States and of laws relating to the District of Columbia were put completely in control of the Committee on the Revision of the Laws. The Joint Committee on Printing of the House and Senate desires that it have direction over these matters. The matter has been submitted to our Committee on Revision of the Laws and it has no objection. I have agreed with the vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Printing that I would not seek the passage of this resolution without this amendment which he has prepared and requested.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD. Yes.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. As I understand, this supervision will merely be mechanical supervision.

Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD. The word "direction" is used in the amendment. In the bill more definite words regarding the form and style are used. Thumb indexes and certain other mechanical devices may be provided as prescribed by the Committee on the Revision of the Laws. Now, this amendment provides that at least some of the printing, binding, publication, and distribution of code and supplement bills and acts shall be under direction of the Joint Committee on Printing.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Who is going to do the indexing?

Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD. That will have to be done by experts employed by the Committee on the Revision of the Laws.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I want to say to the gentleman that I admire his efforts and all he has done, but that the indexing requires much improvement.

Mr. ROY G. FITZGERALD. May I say in answer to the gentleman that while the indexing of the United States Code is very far from perfect it was the best that could be done in the length of time we had. It cost $5,000 to do it as well as it was done. Now, just as soon as we can satisfy the Senate that the code is worthy of being considered conclusive evidence of the law instead of merely prima facie evidence I hope to get out an edition which will include all the corrections that have been found necessary and have a better, a complete index, as the gentleman suggests is needed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was passed was laid on the table.

AMENDMENT TO THE FOOD AND DRUGS ACT

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15218) to amend section 8 of the act entitled "An act for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes," approved June 30, 1906, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the author of this bill if it has the unanimous support of the committee?

Mr. HAUGEN. It has.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Then I should like to ask whether it is or is not now the law?

Mr. HAUGEN. No; it is not.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I would like to have some explanation. I do not see why we should go through this process if we have a law that takes care of all these matters.

Mr. MAPES. This is simply the addition of one paragraph to the present law. It is a new provision entirely.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. O'CONNELL. Yes.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. This provides that if certain canned and preserved food does not come up to the standard required by the Department of Agriculture it shall be marked "Not up to standard."

Mr. MAPES. That is all there is to it.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I would like to ask what penalty is provided if Mr. Canner does not say, "My product is up to standard"?

Mr. O'CONNELL. That is what I was going to ask.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. There is no penalty in the bill to take care of the man who evades the law.

Mr. O'CONNELL. That is just exactly the question I was going to ask. There is no penalty provided in the bill to apply to the man who violates the law.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Ostensibly, it is for the protection of consumers, but I do not know how the provisions of the bill will be enforced.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I object.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Will the gentleman withhold his objection a moment?

Mr. O'CONNELL. What is the use of wasting time? This bill provides no penalty for the canner who fails to observe the law, and such legislation is utterly useless.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. It is for the protection of the consumer, if it means anything.

Mr. LINTHICUM. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. O'CONNELL. That being the case, I will withdraw the objection.

Mr. MAPES. I will say to the gentleman from New York that the only purpose of this legislation is to protect the consumer against impure goods sold in these cans.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I am for that, I will say to the gentleman, but why not put some provision in the bill that penalizes the man who violates or evades the law?

Mr. MAPES. The same penalty will apply to a violation of the terms of this paragraph that applies to any violation of the other provisions of the food and drugs act.

Mr. CRAMTON. If the gentleman will permit, he will note this is only one subdivision of a long section.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I think it is a step in the right direction.

Mr. O'CONNELL. I have no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 8 of the act of June 30, 1906, entitled "An act for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes," as amended, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"Fifth. If it be canned food and falls below the standard of quality, condition, and/or fill of container, promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture for such canned food, and its package or label does not bear a plain and conspicuous statement prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture indicating that such canned food falls below such standard. For the purpose of this paragraph, the words 'canned food' mean all food which is in hermetically sealed containers and is sterilized by heat, except meat and meat food products which are subject to the provisions of the meat inspection act of March 4, 1907 (34 Stat. 1260), as amended, and except canned milk; the word 'class' means and is limited to a generic product for which a standard is to be established and does not mean a grade, variety, or species of a generic product. The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to determine, establish, and promulgate, from time to time, a reasonable standard of quality, condition, and/or fill of container for each class of canned food as will, in his judgment, promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer; and he is authorized to alter or modify such standard from time to time, as, in his judgment, honesty and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer may require. The Secretary of Agriculture is further authorized to prescribe and promulgate from time to time the form of statement which must appear in a plain and conspicuous manner on each package or label of canned food which falls below the standard promulgated by him, and which will indicate that such canned food falls below such standard, and he is authorized to alter or modify such form of statement, from time to time, as in his judgment may be necessary. In promulgating such standards and forms of statements and any alteration or modification thereof, the Secretary of Agriculture shall specify the date or dates when such standards shall become effective, or after which such statements shall be used, and shall give public notice not less than 90 days in advance of the date or dates on which such standards shall become effective or such statements shall be used. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to authorize the manufacture, sale, shipment, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded foods."

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

INDIAN TRUST ESTATES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4222) to authorize the creation of Indian trust estates, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

IDAHO NATIONAL FOREST

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 1578) to add certain lands to the Idaho National Forest, Idaho.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. I reserve it.

Mr. SMITH. This bill has reference to a forest reserve in the district of my colleague the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. FRENCH], who is detained in a conference committee.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, there are two departments interested. The Interior Department states that, owing to the character of the lands, this bill ought not to pass, and with that character of report I would be obliged to object.

Mr. SMITH. Will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. I do not feel that I ought to withhold it too long in justice to other bills on the calendar.

Mr. SMITH. The Secretary of Agriculture recommends the passage of the bill. The report of the Secretary of the Interior is in line with his usual policy in reporting on bills of this character, as he has recommended for several Congresses that we enact some general law applicable to the grazing lands, and this report is similar to the report which he has made on a great many other bills that have been passed and have become law.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, the Secretary of the Interior states that this is not the character of land that he feels should be added to a forest reserve, and because of the character of the land he objects; and it seems to me there is force in his objection, and I am obliged to object to the bill.

Mr. SMITH. The Secretary of Agriculture recommends it and states that the land is valuable for timber.

Mr. CRAMTON. Oh, the Forest Service wants to take in all of the Western States, and we can give them 1,000 acres and they do not want to let loose one acre for any other purpose.

Mr. SMITH. As I have stated, this is not in my district and I am simply speaking for my colleague.

Mr. ARENTZ. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH. Yes.

Mr. ARENTZ. I can not quite get the view point of the gentleman from Michigan. Land placed within the exterior boundaries of a forest reserve is forever protected, not only protected with respect to grazing, but protected in every other way imaginable; and for the gentleman from Michigan, who is a conservationist of a high order, to object to a bill to place land in a forest reserve is beyond me. I do not understand it.

Mr. CRAMTON. And generally my friend from Nevada is protesting against these millions of acres of nonforest-bearing lands being in forest reserves.

Mr. ARENTZ. And at the same time I can not overlook a chance to put the gentleman right.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill may be passed over and retain its place on the Calendar.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Idaho?

There was no objection.

EXTENDING PROVISIONS OF SECTION 18A OF GENERAL LEASING ACT

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4691) to extend the provisions of section 18a of an act approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. p. 437), to certain lands in Utah, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That for the period of 12 months from and after the approval of this act, the provisions of section 18a of an act entitled "An act to promote the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, oil shale, gas, and sodium on the public domain," approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. p. 437), be, and the same are hereby, extended to land in Utah embraced in the Executive order of withdrawal issued October 4, 1909: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed as otherwise enlarging, continuing, or extending the provisions of the aforesaid section 18a of the act approved February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. p. 437).

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ISSUE OF A PATENT TO THE CITY OF BOZEMAN, MONT.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5014) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to issue to the city of Bozeman, Mont., a patent to certain public lands.

The Clerk read the title to the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to issue to the city of Bozeman, Mont., a patent in fee to lots 9, 10, 11, and 12, section 21, township 1 south, range 6 east, Montana principal meridian, upon payment therefor by the city at the rate of $1.25 an acre subject to valid existing rights: Provided, That there shall be reserved to the United States all oil, coal, or other mineral deposits, and the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same under such rules, regulations, and conditions as the Secretary of the Interior shall prescribe.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RELINQUISHING TITLE TO CERTAIN LANDS IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15727) to relinquish all right, title, and interest of the United States in certain lands in the State of Washington.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, this bill carries the provision that the party in interest shall sign a statement that he will make no claim against the United States for damages to such lands heretofore or hereafter caused by the construction, and so forth. I think that is an unlawyerlike provision. I shall offer an amendment that he shall file a release so as to preclude any possibility of reopening the claim.

Mr. SUMMERS of Washington. I have no objection to that.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to convey by quitclaim deed to George F. McAulay, his heirs and assigns, all right, title, and interest of the United States in lot 2, section 17, township 12 north, range 19 east, Willamette meridian, acquired by virtue of a deed executed by Violetta Stone and W. D. Stone on January 25, 1917, and recorded on March 26, 1917, in book of deeds No. 166, at page 636, records of Yakima County, Wash. The deed herein provided for shall contain an express condition that the said George F. McAulay, his heirs and assigns, shall make no claim against the United States for damages to such land heretofore or hereafter caused by the construction and operation of the diversion dam across the Yakima River, known as the Wapato Dam.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 1, strike out all after the word "shall" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "not be executed by the Secretary of the Interior until he shall have been furnished with a statement signed and acknowledged by the said George F. McAulay that in consideration of the execution of the deed he shall make no claim against the United States for damages to such land heretofore or hereafter caused by the construction and operation of the diversion dam across the Yakima River, known as the Wapato Dam."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order—I am not going to insist on the point of order—but in reading this bill it occurred to me that there is some question as to whether or not it belongs on this calendar. I am not making the point of order, but I do want to observe that this bill ought not to be considered a precedent for other bills of that character going to this calendar. I withdraw the point of order.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment to offer to the committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 2, line 8, strike out the words "a statement" and insert "a general release"; after the word "signed" insert a comma and the word "sealed."

The amendment to the committee amendment was agreed to.

The committee amendment as amended was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE COOSA RIVER AT GILBERTS FERRY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16432) granting the consent of Congress to the Highway Department of the County of Etowah, State of Alabama, to construct, maintain, and operate a toll bridge across the Coosa River at or near Gilberts Ferry.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress is hereby granted to the Highway Department of the County of Etowah, State of Alabama, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Coosa River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Gilberts Ferry, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. If tolls are charged for the use of such bridge, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of the bridge and its approaches, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 25 years from the completion thereof. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the costs of the bridge and its approaches, the expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 3. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 11, strike out the words "twenty-five" and insert the word "twenty" in lieu thereof.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The title was amended.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE PATUXENT RIVER, CHARLES COUNTY, MD.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16170) authorizing Walter J. Mitchell, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Patuxent River between Charles County, Md., and Calvert County, Md.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, this is one of those bridge bills and I understand that an objection at this time would practically defeat the bill. I do not believe that the objection of one man taking that position ought to defeat the bill, but I want to register my objection based on the report as to the position of the Agricultural Department. I will ask the Speaker not to pass the bill by unanimous consent but give us an opportunity to say "no."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, Walter J. Mitchell, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Patuxent River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, between Charles County, Md., and Calvert County, Md., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Maryland, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Maryland, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. Walter J. Mitchell, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Department of the State of Maryland, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Maryland shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge. For the purpose of such investigation the said Walter J. Mitchell, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall make available all of his records in connnection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to Walter J. Mitchell, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 9, strike out the words "between Charles County, Md., and" and insert the words "at or near Hallowing Point, approximately one-eighth mile south of Burch."

Page 2, line 16, strike out the word "twenty" and insert the word "five" in lieu thereof.

Page 6, after line 12, add the following as a new section:

"SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000, shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the State in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War, may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with."

Page 5, line 13, correct "Sec. 6" to read "Sec. 7."

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time.

The SPEAKER. The question is, Shall the bill pass?

The bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill authorizing Walter J. Mitchell, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Patuxent River south of Burch, Calvert County, Md."

BRIDGE ACROSS MISSISSIPPI RIVER BETWEEN COUNTY OF CARROLL, ILL., AND COUNTY OF JACKSON, IOWA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16429) granting the consent of Congress to the city of Savanna, State of Illinois, to construct a bridge across the Mississippi River, connecting the county of Carroll, Ill., and the county of Jackson, Iowa.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. DENISON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill be passed over without prejudice. There is another bill on the calendar to carry out the same purpose.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, what is the calendar number of the other bill?

Mr. DENISON. It is not on this calendar. It is to build a bridge at the same place by the same party, but it is in different form.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

BRIDGE ACROSS OHIO RIVER, NEAR CANNELTON, IND.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16565) authorizing the Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Cannelton, Ind.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I am opposed to this bill for the reasons stated in the communication of the Department of Agriculture, contained in the committee report for the reasons heretofore stated, I shall not interpose an objection to its consideration.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, be, and are hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Ohio River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Cannelton, Perry County, Ind., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. There is hereby conferred upon Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

SEC. 3. The said Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, are hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

SEC. 4. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Indiana, the State of Kentucky, any public agency or political subdivision of either of such States, within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 10 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 5. If such bridge shall be taken over or acquired by the States or public agencies or political subdivisions thereof, or by either of them as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 6. Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Departments of the States of Indiana and Kentucky, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and upon request of the highway department of either of such States shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 7. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to Hawesville & Cannelton Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 8. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000 shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the States in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway departments of the States in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with.

SEC. 9. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS TENNESSEE RIVER NEAR CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16719) granting the consent of Congress to the city of Chattanooga and the county of Hamilton, Tenn., to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Tennessee River, at a point suitable to the interest of navigation, opposite or near Chattanooga, Hamilton County, Tenn.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, the city of Chattanooga and the county of Hamilton, Tenn., or any board or commission of the said city and county which may be duly created or established for the purpose, their successors or assigns, be, and are hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Tennessee River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, extending from some point in the city of Chattanooga, Tenn., across said river to a point on the opposite shore thereof, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in said act.

SEC. 2. The said city of Chattanooga and the county of Hamilton, or such board or commission, their successors and assigns, are authorized to construct, maintain, and operate such bridge and the necessary approaches thereto as a railroad bridge for the passage of railway trains or street cars, or both, or as a highway bridge for the passage of pedestrians, animals, and vehicles, adapted to travel on public highways, or as a combined railroad and highway bridge for all such purposes; and there is hereby conferred upon said city of Chattanooga and the county of Hamilton, or such board or commission, their successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

SEC. 3. The said city of Chattanooga and county of Hamilton, or such board or commission and the successors thereof, are hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of tolls so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

SEC. 4. If such bridge is constructed as a highway bridge alone, in fixing the rates of toll to be charged for the use of such bridge the same shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, to pay an adequate return on the cost thereof, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of such bridge and its approaches, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 25 years from the completion thereof. If such bridge is constructed as a combined railroad and highway bridge, in fixing the rates of toll to be charged for the use of the highway part thereof the same shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient (with the other revenues received from the bridge) to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, to pay an adequate return on the cost thereof, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of such bridge and its approaches, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 25 years from the completion thereof. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, that portion of such bridge used for highway purposes shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of tolls shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the cost of the bridge and its approaches, the expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the city of Chattanooga and the county of Hamilton, Tenn., or any board of the said city and county which may be duly created or established for the purpose, their successors and assigns; and any corporation to which, or any person to whom, such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

The title was amended to read: "A bill granting the consent of Congress to the city of Chattanooga and the county of Hamilton, Tenn., to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Tennessee River at or near Chattanooga, Hamilton County, Tenn."

DENTAL CORPS, UNITED STATES NAVY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 480) for the relief of certain officers of the Dental Corps of the United States Navy.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to have the last letter from the Navy Department to the Senate committee inserted in the RECORD. This last letter withdraws the objection theretofore made to the House committee.

Mr. BURDICK. That is correct. Mr. Speaker, there is a Senate bill (S. 2068) of similar title, already passed by the Senate, and I ask to substitute that.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Rhode Island asks unanimous consent to substitute the Senate bill. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the provision contained in the act approved July 1, 1918 (40 Stat. L. 709), reading as follows, "And the time served by dental officers on active duty as acting assistant dental surgeons and assistant dental surgeons under provisions of law existing prior to the passage of this act shall be reckoned in computing the increased service pay and service for precedence and promotion of dental officers herein authorized or heretofore appointed," shall be held and considered to apply to all officers of the Dental Corps of the Navy who had previously served on active duty as assistant dental surgeons pursuant to the provisions of the act approved March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. L. 903), and who were regularly commissioned in the Dental Corps of the Navy at the time of the passage of the act of July 1, 1918: Provided, That such officers of the Dental Corps of the Navy shall be assigned running mates for promotion purposes in accordance with their precedence as so determined: And provided further, That no back pay or allowances shall accrue to any officer by reason of the passage of this act.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

The letter referred to is as follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, January 25, 1929.

The CHAIRMAN COMMITTEE ON NAVAL AFFAIRS,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: In my letter to you dated February 25, 1928, certain comment was made upon the bill (H. R. 480) for the relief of certain officers of the Dental Corps of the United States Navy. In that letter you were informed that the bill H. R. 480 had been referred to the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, who had informed the Navy Department that the enactment of the proposed bill was in conflict with the financial program of the President.

I have the honor to invite your attention to paragraph 3 of my letter dated February 25, 1928, which reads as follows:

"The enactment of the proposed legislation would not directly result in any increased cost to the Government. It would, however, advance Lieut. Commander John R. Barber, Dental Corps, United States Navy, to a position where he would be eligible for selection for promotion to commander and if selected after the passage of the bill H. R. 480, he would be advanced in date of promotion from approximately January 1, 1929, to the date of the act, and the cost to the Government would be at the rate of $600 per annum for such period."

Since the above was written Lieutenant Commander Barber, Dental Corps, United States Navy, has been selected for promotion to the rank of commander, and is now eligible for promotion to that rank upon the promotion of his running mate, which will occur on or before February 17, 1929. Should the bill be enacted, after promotion to the rank of commander of Lieutenant Commander Barber, Dental Corps, United States Navy, no additional cost will result. It will merely permit his active service (about seven months) as an assistant dental surgeon to be counted for precedence purposes. This service is already counted for pay purposes.

The bill, if enacted, will result in his having a new running mate assigned and will permit him to become eligible for selection to the rank of captain at an earlier date. However, no change in pay period will be involved in that promotion. Consequently, no additional cost will be involved.

On January 8, 1929, the above additional information as to cost was referred to the Bureau of the Budget. Under date of January 17, 1929, the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, advised the Navy Department that, since no additional cost would be involved under the provisions of the bill H. R. 480, that the relationship of this matter to the financial program of the President is not involved.

In view of the above, the Navy Department recommends that the bill, H. R. 480, be enacted.

Sincerely yours,

CURTIS D. WILBUR,
Secretary of the Navy.

A similar House bill, H. R. 480, was laid on the table.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION ACT, JUNE 30, 1916

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14923) to amend the naval appropriation act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1916, relative to the appointment of pay clerks and acting pay clerks.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, the gentleman from New York [Mr. SNELL] the other day, in respect to a similar bill, pointed out the desirability of having all of these pay bills studied and the whole situation ironed out at one time. We find, by taking these piecemeal, we satisfy a small group, and then create what is called another "hump" in the situation.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, this is not a matter of pay legislation. It simply provides that men coming up for warrant ranks from the enlisted ranks may be taken from the list of chief petty officers, plus first-class petty officers. During the last fiscal year there were 14 vacancies for the warrant rank of pay clerk, and because they were limited to men who held appointments as chief petty officers, there were only 21 who took the examination and of that number only 12 passed; less than the vacancies. To be consistent with the practice with respect to all of the other warrant ranks, this will give authorization for men with appointments as chief petty officers, and also first petty officers, to take the examination. That will be consistent with the practice for all other warrant ranks.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. And what will become of the Budget Bureau recommendation, which is conspicuous by its absence in this report?

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. There is no difference in the pay amounts that would be involved.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. With that assurance, I have no objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That so much of the act approved March 3, 1915, entitled "An act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1916, and for other purposes" (38 Stat. L. 942; U. S. C., title 34, 131), as provides: "The title of paymaster's clerk in the United States Navy is hereby changed to pay clerk, and hereafter all pay clerks shall be warranted from acting pay clerks, who shall be appointed from enlisted men of the Navy holding acting or permanent appointments as chief petty officers, who have served at least three years as enlisted men, at least two years of which service must have been on board a cruising vessel of the Navy," is hereby amended to read as follows: "The title of paymaster's clerk in the United States Navy is hereby changed to pay clerk, and hereafter all pay clerks shall be warranted from acting pay clerks, who shall be appointed from enlisted men in the Navy holding acting or permanent appointments as chief petty officers, or appointments as petty officers, first class, who have served at least three years as enlisted men, at least two years of which service must have been on board a cruising vessel of the Navy."

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 2, page 2, strike out the word "permanent."

The amendment was agreed to, and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

KLAMATH INDIANS, OREGON

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4517) appropriating tribal funds of Indians residing on the Klamath Reservation, Oreg., to pay expenses of the general council and business committee, and for other purposes.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered as having been read.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan asks unanimous consent that the bill be considered as read. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Following is the text of the bill:

Be it enacted, etc., That the sum of $10,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, of the tribal funds of the Indians residing on the Klamath Reservation in the State of Oregon, namely, the Klamath and Modoc Tribes and the Yahooskin Band of Snake Indians, is hereby authorized to be appropriated to pay the expenses of the general council and business committee (or so-called tribal council) of the said Indians, in organizing and holding councils, conducting tribal elections, maintaining their tribal organization, and generally looking after the affairs of the said tribes, including, among other things, the actual and necessary expenses of its delegation, or legislative committee, in visiting Washington during the second session of the Seventieth Congress or any succeeding Congress; also the expenses incurred, and to be incurred, by the tribal delegation of said Indians in procuring evidence and taking testimony to be used in connection with the three suits instituted by the said Indians against the United States and now pending in the Court of Claims; said sum to be immediately available, and said expenses to be approved by the said business committee and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and certified to the Secretary of the Interior, and, if so approved and certified, to be paid.

Mr. CRAMTON. As to that committee amendment on page 1, line 7, involving the insertion of the words "authorized to be," I will say it is merely to comply with the rules of the House, because the appropriating jurisdiction is not within the Committee on Indian Affairs. The expenditures are necessary, and if we accept the committee amendment, the deficiency bill having passed the House, there will be no opportunity for an appropriation to be obtained. I would suggest, therefore, to the gentleman from Montana [Mr. LEAVITT] that he ask the House not to agree to the committee amendment. If there is any gentleman present who disagrees to that, he can make a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

Mr. LEAVITT. I ask that the committee amendment be not agreed to. It was placed there because our committee, not being a legislative committee, was not authorized to bring out an appropriation bill. The purpose of the bill will be defeated if the committee amendment is agreed to. I ask that it be not agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The question was taken, and the committee amendment was rejected.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

Amend the title so as to read: "An act authorizing the appropriation of tribal funds of Indians residing on the Klamath Reservation, Oreg., to pay expenses of the general council and business committee, and for other purposes."

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

PROTECTION OF THE FISHERIES OF ALASKA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5073) to amend the act of Congress of June 26, 1906, entitled "An act for the protection of the fisheries of Alaska, and for other purposes."

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 7 of the act of June 26, 1906, entitled "An act for the protection of the fisheries of Alaska, and for other purposes," is amended so that it will read as follows:

"SEC. 7. It shall be unlawful to preserve for sale as food for human consumption any salmon unless it shall have been canned, salted, iced, frozen, smoked, or dried within 48 hours after being killed."

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

SEIZURE OF UNITED STATES VESSELS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5181) to amend section 4 of the act of June 15, 1917 (40 Stat. 224, sec. 241, title 22, U. S. C.).

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 4 of Title VI of the act of June 15, 1917, chapter 30, entitled "An act to punish acts of interference with the foreign relations, the neutrality, and the foreign commerce of the United States, to punish espionage, and better to enforce the criminal laws of the United States, and for other purposes" (sec. 241, title 22, U. S. C.), be, and it is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 4. Whenever the person making any seizure under this title (secs. 238 to 245, inclusive, of ch. 5, title 22, U. S. C.) applies for and obtains a warrant for the detention of the property, and (a) upon the hearing and determination of the petition of the owner or claimant restoration is denied, or (b) the owner or claimant fails to file a petition for restoration within 30 days after the seizure, the United States attorney for the district wherein it was seized, upon direction of the Attorney General, shall institute libel proceedings in the United States district court or the district court of the Canal Zone or the court of first instance of the Philippine Islands having jurisdiction over the place wherein the seizure was made, against the property for condemnation; and if, after trial and hearing of the issues involved, the property is condemned, it shall be disposed of by sale, and the proceeds thereof, less the legal costs and charges, paid into the Treasury: Provided, That the court shall order any arms and munitions of war so condemned delivered to the War Department of the United States."

The bill was considered and ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

DIVISION OF IDENTIFICATION AND INFORMATION, DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 11802) establishing under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice a division of the Bureau of Investigation to be known as the division of identification and information.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That there be, and there is hereby, established under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice a division of the Bureau of Investigation to be known as the division of identification and information; that said division shall be vested with the duty of acquiring, collecting, classifying, and preserving criminal identification records and the exchanging of said criminal identification records with the duly authorized officials of governmental agencies, of States, cities, and penal institutions; and that the cost of maintenance and operation of said division shall be paid from the appropriation "Detection and prosecution of crimes" for the respective fiscal years concerned, as otherwise provided.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

MALHEUR AND HARNEY LAKES, OREG.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16394) to authorize the United States to be made a party defendant in any suit or action which may be commenced by the State of Oregon in the United States District Court for the District of Oregon, for the determination of the title to all or any of the lands constituting the beds of the Malheur and Harney Lakes in Harney County, Oreg., and lands riparian thereto, and to all or any of the waters of said lakes and their tributaries, together with the right to control the use thereof, authorizing all persons claiming to have an interest in said land, water, or the use thereof to be made parties or to intervene in said suit or action, and conferring jurisdiction on the United States courts over such cause.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Whereas there is situated in Harney County, Oreg., two inland bodies of water known as Malheur and Harney Lakes, which are fed by the waters of Silvies River and from the north and by the Blitzen River from the south; and

Whereas there are large bodies of arable land lying along and adjacent to said streams largely in private ownership, and the owners thereof have appropriated certain of the waters of said streams for the irrigation and reclamation of said lands; and

Whereas the State of Oregon, in its sovereign capacity, claims to be the owner of the bed of said lakes and of certain of the lands riparian thereto, together with the right to the use of the waters of said lakes and streams aforesaid for the irrigation of said riparian lands; and

Whereas various private persons claim to be the owners of the beds of said lakes and of certain of the lands adjacent and riparian thereto, together with the right to the use of the waters of said lakes and streams for the irrigation of said riparian lands; and

Whereas President Roosevelt did, on August 18, 1908, by proclamation, set aside all of the land lying within the meandered lines of said lakes, and of the waters and streams connecting the said lakes, and designated the same as the Malheur Bird Reservation; and

Whereas the State of Oregon has asserted its title to the beds of said lakes and to such of the lands riparian thereto as it may be found to be the owner of, together with sufficient of the waters of said lakes and streams aforesaid to properly reclaim and irrigate said riparian lands; and

Whereas the United States and the Department of Agriculture, claiming under the provisions of said proclamation, claim all of the lands within the meander lines of said lakes, together with the beds thereof, and certain of the waters of said streams for the purpose of perpetuating such bird reservation, and that, by reason of said claims, have made it impossible to determine what part of said waters may be stored for irrigation and how much should be allowed to escape to said bird reservation; and

Whereas such uncertainty results in hindering and delaying the reclamation of the lands adjacent to said streams and lakes and clouds the State's title to its said riparian lands; and

Whereas numerous attempts have been made to compromise and adjust the respective rights of the United States, the State of Oregon, and such riparian owners and water appropriators, and these parties have been unable to agree upon the terms of any compromise; and

Whereas the United States in its sovereign capacity can not be sued nor impleaded in an action without the consent of Congress; therefore

Be it enacted, etc., That the United States of America does hereby consent to be made a party defendant in any suit or action which may be commenced by the State of Oregon in the United States District Court for the District of Oregon to determine the respective rights of the United States, the State of Oregon, and any person or persons claiming any title to or interest in, or the right to the use of the lands, or any of them, constituting the beds of Malheur and Harney Lakes in Harney County, Oreg., and lands riparian thereto, and the waters of said lakes and of their tributaries, or of any, either, or all of them; that any person claiming to have an interest in said lands, waters, or the use thereof may be joined as plaintiff or defendant, or may intervene in said suit or action. All parties to such suit shall have the same procedural rights, including rights of appeal and appellate writs, as in other similar cases between private litigants, and shall be subject to the same jurisdiction of the said courts, and be bound and concluded by their decisions to the same extent.

With a committee amendment to strike out the preamble.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14931) to amend section 93 of the Judicial Code establishing the judicial district of Nebraska.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be passed over without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Nebraska asks unanimous consent that the bill be passed over without prejudice. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

AMENDMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CODE OF LAW

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16314) to amend section 198 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 198 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Jury commission: There shall be, and there is hereby, constituted a jury commission for the District of Columbia, which shall be composed of three commissioners, who shall be citizens of the United States and actual residents of the District of Columbia, who have been domiciled therein for at least three years prior to their appointment, and not engaged in the practice of law, nor at the time of their appointment be a party to any cause then pending in the courts of the District of Columbia. Such commissioners shall be appointed by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in general term, and shall serve for a term of three years and until their successors are appointed and qualified; except that the members first appointed shall serve for one, two, and three years, respectively, as may be designated by said court. Before entering upon the discharge of their duties they shall each take an oath of office to be prescribed by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. No person who has served as such commissioner shall be eligible for reappointment within three years of the date of the expiration of his term of service. It shall be the duty of said jury commission to make and preserve a record of the list of names of jurors, both grand and petit, and of commissioners and jurors in condemnation proceedings for service in all the courts of the District of Columbia having cognizance of jury trials and of condemnation proceedings, to place the names in the jury box, and to have custody and control of said jury box, and to draw the names of said jurors and condemnation commissioners from time to time as hereinafter provided. The compensation of said jury commissioners shall be $10 each per day for each day or fraction of a day when they are actually engaged in the performance of their duties, not to exceed five days in any one month, which shall be paid by the United States marshal for the District of Columbia out of the appropriation for pay of bailiffs, upon the certificate of said commissioners. The said Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in general term, shall have power summarily to remove any of said commissioners for absence, inability, or failure to perform his duties as such commissioner, or for any misfeasance or malfeasance and to appoint another person for the unexpired term. In the event of the illness or other inability or absence from the District of Columbia of any one of said commissioners, the other two commissioners may perform the duties of said jury commission."

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

SITES FOR A NAVAL AIRSHIP BASE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16839) to provide for investigation of sites suitable for the establishment of a naval airship base.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Navy is directed to appoint a board of naval officers to examine and report upon such locations as may be deemed most suitable for the establishment of a naval airship base and to submit to the Congress the report of said board concerning the several locations considered and his recommendations as to the location of the airship base, together with estimates in detail of cost of the best sites available and of the structures, facilities, and improvements necessary to the efficiency of the airship base.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

SHORTER WORKDAY ON SATURDAY FOR POSTAL EMPLOYEES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3281) to provide a shorter workday on Saturday for postal employees.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOOPER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, the memorandum I have on this bill indicates that the Postmaster General considers that the passage of this bill will add $10,000,000 to the annual expense of the Post Office Department, and probably a good deal more than that, and the deficit in that department is estimated at $92,000,000 for the year 1929. I want to ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania if, under these circumstances, the bill should come up at this time and in this way.

Mr. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Michigan, I will say that I believe it should come up at this time and be considered in this way on account of the very unjust and unsatisfactory situation that now exists in the Postal Service. The Postmaster General four years ago gave out an order requesting postmasters to arrange Saturday half holidays wherever possible. The result of that order was that about one-quarter of the postmasters of the United States have provided for a Saturday half holiday, and they are giving their employees such reduced hours. The result is that in all the other offices there is a feeling that the employees have been dealt with in unjust fashion. As a result, there is some feeling of dissatisfaction permeating the service. We undertake in this measure to make general the order of the Postmaster General and decide by legislation that all employees shall have what some now have.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KELLY. Yes.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I remember that several years ago, when I was on the Post Office Committee with the gentleman, it was generally understood that this would be worked out by the administrative officers.

Mr. KELLY. That is true, but the Postmaster General has said he can go no further than he has gone without legislation, thus inviting Congress to deal with this matter. Now, as to the cost, let me say that that is a matter entirely outside the power of the Postmaster General or anybody else to determine. He himself, in the first letter he wrote the committee, said it was impossible to say how much this provision would cost. At present a large number of employees have a Saturday half holiday without a dollar's additional cost.

Mr. CRAMTON. I intend ultimately to object, and, as there are so many bills on the calendar, this debate, while interesting, is not especially helpful.

Mr. KELLY. Of course, if the gentleman intends to object, there is no use taking up the time of the House, unless it may be possible to persuade the gentleman to refrain from objection.

Mr. CRAMTON. The gentleman can not be persuaded, in view of the statement of the department, that this will cost $10,000,000 annually.

Mr. HOOPER. I will say that I, myself, had intended to object for the reasons I have given, and unless my colleague from Michigan wishes to make the objection, I will object.

The SPEAKER. Objection is heard.

RELIEF OF POSTMASTERS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16305) for the relief of present and former postmasters and acting postmasters, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. SPROUL of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. KELLY. Will the gentleman withhold his objection? There is a matter of real emergency in this proposition. Some 350 postmasters have been required to pay out money of their own, and it should be refunded as a matter of justice.

Mr. SPROUL of Kansas. What amount of money have they paid out?

Mr. KELLY. It runs from $100 up, and I think the entire amount involved in this whole proposition is over $35,000. This is a matter of emergency and the bill should be passed at once.

Mr. SPROUL of Kansas. On each occasion when a postmaster paid money out he knew before he accepted the position that it would be required to be paid out and that it was a part of the incidental expenses.

Mr. KELLY. No; the gentleman is entirely mistaken. The postmaster acted on the orders of the Postmaster General himself and took on this responsibility because it was authorized by the department.

Mr. SPROUL of Kansas. Does the gentleman mean authorized by the department to pay it out with the understanding that the money would be refunded to him?

Mr. KELLY. The orders from the department were that the postmasters should employ these men in a dual capacity. They carried out these orders and when the accounts came to the Comptroller General he ruled that such dual employment was not contemplated by the law and that the postmasters must pay the amounts themselves.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. And charged the postmaster's account with that amount.

Mr. KELLY. Yes; and it was a great injustice, in view of all the circumstances.

Mr. KETCHAM. Not a dollar is lost to the Government. It is merely a paper transaction.

Mr. SPROUL of Kansas. I withdraw the objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. SANDERS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move that the Senate bill (S. 5255) be substituted for the House bill.

Mr. TILSON. Is it substantially the same bill?

Mr. SANDERS of New York. It is the same bill as amended and passed upon by the committee.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That on and after July 1, 1929, the provisions of section 6 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and for other purposes," approved May 10, 1916, as amended by the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and for other purposes," approved August 29, 1916, shall not be construed to apply where the total amount of the salaries actually paid to postal employees does not exceed $2,000 per annum, and such employees shall be paid for services notwithstanding sections 1764 and 1765 of the Revised Statutes: Provided, That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to credit the accounts of present and former postmasters and acting postmasters with payments made by them to postal employees, mail messengers, and other employees of the United States for dual services in post offices prior to July 1, 1929, contrary to said provisions of law and also the provisions of sections 412 and 3850 of the Revised Statutes, and section 226 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909; and an appropriation of such sum as may be necessary is authorized to be appropriated out of postal revenues to enable the Comptroller General of the United States, where there is no other appropriation available, to credit said accounts and/or to pay to postal employees, mail messengers, and other employees of the United States sums refunded by them, or deducted from balances due to them by the United States, for dual services in post offices to and including June 30, 1929, under the laws herein named, as shown by the records of the General Accounting Office.

With the following committee amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

"That postmasters and acting postmasters are authorized, when in the judgment of the Postmaster General the needs and interests of the Postal Service require, to employ mail messengers and other postal employees in a dual capacity, or to assign extra duties to such mail messengers and other employees; and, notwithstanding the provisions of sections 1763, 1764, and 1765 of the Revised States, as amended (U. S. C., title 5, secs. 58, 69, and 70), compensation shall be paid to such mail messengers and other employees for such services if the total compensation actually paid for all services does not exceed $2,000 for any one fiscal year.

"SEC. 2. The Comptroller General of the United States is authorized and directed to (1) allow credit in the accounts of present and former postmasters and acting postmasters for payments made by them, prior to the date of the enactment of this act, to mail messengers, postal employees, and other employees of the United States employed in post offices contrary to the provisions of sections 1763, 1764, and 1765 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (U. S. C., title 5, secs. 58, 69, and 70), section 3850 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 39, sec. 52), and section 226 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, as amended (U. S. C., title 18, sec. 356); and (2) pay to such mail messengers, postal employees, and such other employees an amount equal to the sums refunded by them or deducted from balances due them prior to the date of the enactment of this act, under the laws referred to in subdivision (1) of this section.

"SEC. 3. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

CONGRESSIONAL CEMETERY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 11916) to provide for the care and preservation of certain land and monuments in the Washington Parish Burial Ground (Congressional Cemetery).

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War is authorized and directed to care for and preserve the land and monuments owned by the United States in the Washington Parish Burial Ground (Congressional Cemetery). The Secretary of War is authorized to make such expenditures, including expenditures for personal services at the seat of government, as he deems advisable to carry out the provisions of this act. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COLLECT-ON-DELIVERY PARCELS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 11476) to authorize the Postmaster General to impose demurrage charges on undelivered collect-on-delivery parcels.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That under such regulations as the Postmaster General may prescribe any collect-on-delivery parcel which the addressee fails to remove from the post office within such reasonable time as may be prescribed by the Postmaster General, may be returned to the sender, charged with the return postage, whether or not such parcel bears any specified time limit for delivery, and a reasonable demurrage charge may be collected when delivery has not been made to either the addressee or the sender until after the expiration of the prescribed period.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PENSIONS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3198) to amend the act of March 3, 1915, granting double pension for disability from aviation duty, Navy or Marine Corps, by inserting the word "Army," so as to read: "Army, Navy, and Marine Corps."

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask some member of the Committee on Pensions if, in the near future, that committee can be expected to bring before the House legislation to increase the pension rates for the dependents of all members of the Regular Establishment who die of disease contracted or injuries received in service other than war service?

We now have this situation, a man may be killed in Nicaragua—and a considerable number have been killed there—leaving a widow and five minor children. The widow is allowed but $12 a month pension for herself and $2 for each child under the existing general law.

I shall not object to this bill, but make the reservation to state that the Committee on Pensions, instead of devoting its time to reporting a special pension for these aviators, should devote some of its time toward reporting a bill which would increase the rates under the general pension law. I think it is a sad state of affairs when the Committee on Pensions continues to let this discrimination exist.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SNELL). Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act of March 3, 1915, granting double pension for disability from aviation duty, Navy or Marine Corps, be amended by inserting the word "Army," so as to read: "In all cases where an officer or enlisted man of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps dies, or where an enlisted man of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps is disabled, by reason of any injury received or disease contracted in line of duty, the result of an aviation accident received while employed in actual flying in or in handling aircraft, the amount of pension allowed shall be double that authorized to be paid should death or the disability have occurred by reason of an injury received or disease contracted in line of duty not the result of an aviation accident."

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

REGULATING THE DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE BUILDINGS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 8746) to regulate the height and exterior design and construction of public and private buildings in the National Capital fronting on or located within 200 feet of a public building or public park.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, what is meant by the language?—

Any portion of which is to front or abut upon the grounds of the Capitol, the grounds of the White House, the portion of Pennsylvania Avenue extending from the Capitol to the White House, Rock Creek Park—

And so forth. How far from the White House would this be applicable?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. There is no land abutting there—H Street abuts Lafayette Square.

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object—and I believe I shall object—I want to ask the gentleman a question. Section 2 states that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall prepare plats defining the areas within which application for building permits shall be submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts for its recommendation. Does not the gentleman think it would be a better policy if the plats were prepared so that Congress would know what plats were included before passing the legislation?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I call the gentleman's attention to section 1, which defines the area. It is then proposed that the plats shall be prepared in order that they may show what areas are affected by the public interest. I consider this one of the most important, necessary, and meritorious bills that has come before the House to-day. The Government has expended and is expending millions of dollars on the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue and on the grounds of the Capitol and the White House, and this is to prevent private capital from erecting undesirable buildings.

Mr. SCHAFER. It will only apply to Pennsylvania Avenue and the grounds abutting the Capitol and the White House?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. The White House and Rock Creek Park.

Mr. SCHAFER. No danger of its being applied to the small parks in the District?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. No.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in accordance with the provision of paragraph 17 of section 8 of Article I of the Constitution, that Congress shall have power to "exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district" as may become the seat of government of the United States; and in keeping with the spirit of the laws, agreements, and acts establishing the National Capital, at which time the original owners formally agreed, "in consideration of the great benefits expected," upon conveyance to trustees appointed by the President of "all lands he might think proper to include within the Federal City," with "the sole power of laying off said city in what manner he pleased and to retain any manner of squares he might think proper for public use," and that the conveyance of lots to any purchasers should be "on such conditions as thought reasonable by the President for regulating the materials and manner of the buildings and improvements generally in the said city, or in particular streets or parts thereof for convenience, safety, and order"; and in consideration of the special benefits inuring to the owners of adjacent property by the construction of public buildings and by the establishment of parks and reservations of such character and such surroundings as befit the dignity of the buildings and public grounds of this Nation's Capital; hereafter no permit shall be granted for the erection or alteration of any building within the District of Columbia, any portion of which is to front upon or to be located within 200 feet of any public building or any public park, parkway, or reservation, except space for street parking, until the plans therefor, so far as they relate to height and appearance, color, and texture of the materials of exterior construction have been submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts and approved by that commission as involving no reasonably avoidable impairment of the public values dependent upon said public building or public park, parkway, or reservation, and the erection or alteration of any building so located shall conform to the plans so approved; in case of any change in the application for permit or accompanying plans the application shall be treated as a new case, and as such shall be subject to all the provisions of this act: Provided, That if the Commission of Fine Arts fails to report its approval or disapproval of any such plans to the inspector of buildings of the District of Columbia within 30 days of the submission of said plans to the commission, its approval thereof shall be assumed and a permit may be issued: Provided further, That the Commission of Fine Arts may, from time to time, designate certain classes of cases, such as those of proposed building sites fronting upon or located within 200 feet of certain minor public buildings, parks, parkways, or reservations, or applications for permits for certain classes of relatively temporary or otherwise unimportant buildings, in respect to which the requirements of this act, in the opinion of said commission, may reasonably be waived for the time being without prejudice to the public interests; and as to such classes, approval of plans by the Commission of Fine Arts shall not be a prerequisite to the issuance of building permits.

SEC. 2. Said Commission of Fine Arts, as early as practicable after approval of this act, shall prepare plats defining the areas within which application for building permits shall be submitted for its approval, and issue suitable explanations for the information and guidance of prospective builders in preparing applications for building permits within said areas.

With the following committee amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"That in view of the provisions of the Constitution respecting the establishment of the seat of the National Government, the duties it imposed upon Congress in connection therewith, and the solicitude shown and the efforts exerted by President Washington in the planning and development of the Capital City, it is hereby declared: That such development should proceed along the lines of good order, good taste, and with due regard to the public interests involved, and a reasonable degree of control should be exercised over the architecture of private or semipublic buildings adjacent to public buildings and grounds of major importance. To this end, hereafter when application is made for permit for the erection or alteration of any building, any portion of which is to front or abut upon the grounds of the Capitol, the grounds of the White House, the portion of Pennsylvania Avenue extending from the Capitol to the White House, Rock Creek Park, the Zoological Park, the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, Potomac Park, the Mall, or abutting upon any street bordering any of said grounds or parks, the plans therefor, so far as they relate to height and appearance, color, and texture of the materials of exterior construction, shall be submitted by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to the Commission of Fine Arts; and the said commission shall report promptly to said commissioners its recommendations, including such changes, if any, as in its judgment are necessary to prevent reasonably avoidable impairment of the public values belonging to such public building or park; and said commissioners shall take such action as shall, in their judgment, effect reasonable compliance with such recommendations: Provided, That if the said Commission of Fine Arts fails to report its approval or disapproval of such plans within 30 days, its approval thereof shall be assumed and a permit may be issued.

"SEC. 2. Said Commissioners of the District of Columbia, in consultation with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, as early as practicable after approval of this act, shall prepare plats defining the areas within which appliances for building permits shall be submitted to the Commission of Fine Arts for its recommendations."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The title was amended.

RELIEF OF CONTRACTORS AND SUBCONTRACTORS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 13857) to amend the act entitled "An act for the relief of contractors and subcontractors for the post offices and other buildings and work under the supervision of the Treasury Department, and for other purposes."

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act entitled "An act for the relief of contractors and subcontractors for the post offices and other buildings and work under the supervision of the Treasury Department, and for other purposes," approved August 25, 1919, as amended, is amended by adding the following new sentence: "That the date April 6, 1917, shall not apply to the aforesaid bid for the United States courthouse in the District of Columbia, said bid, in accordance with the circular letter from the office of the superintendent, United States Capitol Buildings and Grounds, dated March 17, 1917, having been delivered on the morning of April 7, 1917."

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read the third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS CHOPTANK RIVER, CAMBRIDGE, MD.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16349) authorizing V. Calvin Trice, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Choptank River, at or near Cambridge, Md.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I object to the bill for the reason stated in the report made by the Department of Agriculture. I shall vote against it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, V. Calvin Trice, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Choptank River at or near Cambridge, Md., at a point suitable to the interest of navigation, between Dorchester County, Md., and a point opposite thereto in Talbot County, Md., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Maryland, any political subdivisions thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches and any interests in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or condemnation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge and its approaches the same is acquired by condemnation the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by an municipality or other political subdivision or subdivisions of the State of Maryland under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid for such bridge and its approaches as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of acquiring the bridge and its approaches shall have been provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper care, repair, maintenance, and operation of the bridge and its approaches. An accurate record of the amount paid for the bridge and its approaches, the expenditures for operating, repairing, and maintaining the same, and of daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. V. Calvin Trice, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War, and with the Highway Department of the State of Maryland, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Maryland shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge. For the purpose of such investgation the said V. Calvin Trice, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns shall make available all records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to V. Calvin Trice, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 9, strike out the word "interest" and insert the word "interests" in lieu thereof; strike out the words "between Dorchester."

Page 2, strike out all of line 1.

Line 2, strike out the words "County, Maryland."

Line 8, strike out the word "subdivisions" and insert the word "subdivision" in lieu thereof.

Line 16, strike out the word "twenty" and insert the word "five" in lieu thereof.

Page 3, strike out all of section 3 and insert the following in lieu thereof:

"SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Maryland or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested."

Page 4, line 14, strike out the word "so." Strike out all of line 15. Line 16, strike out the word "costs."

Page 5, after line 9, add the following as a new section:

"SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000, shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the State in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with."

Page 5, line 10, correct "Sec. 6" to read "Sec. 7."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS RED RIVER NEAR MONTGOMERY, LA.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16725) authorizing L. L. Thompsen, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Red River at or near Montgomery, La.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object. I am opposed to this bill on the ground stated in the communication of the Department of Agriculture contained in the committee report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, L. L. Thompsen, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto, across the Red River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation at or near Montgomery, La., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Louisiana, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of five years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Lousiana, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. L. L. Thompsen, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Department of the State of Louisiana a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Louisiana shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said L. L. Thompsen, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to L. L. Thompsen, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000 shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the State in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required, and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof; and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with.

SEC. 7. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 4, line 20, strike out the word "its" and insert the word "his."

The committee amendment was agreed to; and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ACROSS OHIO RIVER, NEAR EVANSVILLE, IND.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4438) authorizing the State of Indiana to construct, maintain, and operate a toll bridge across the Ohio River at or near Evansville, Ind.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. ROWBOTTOM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill be passed over without prejudice.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, it will be so ordered.

There was no objection.

BRIDGE ACROSS OHIO RIVER NEAR CARROLLTON, KY.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16764) authorizing the State Highway Commission, Commonwealth of Kentucky, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Carrollton, Ky.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress is hereby granted to the State Highway Commission, Commonwealth of Kentucky, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Ohio River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Carrollton, Ky., in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. If tolls are charged for the use of such bridge the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of the bridge and its approaches, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the completion thereof. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the costs of the bridge and its approaches, the expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 3. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

AMENDING TEACHERS' SALARY ACT, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4063) to amend certain sections of the teachers' salary act, approved June 4, 1924, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BLACK or Texas. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I notice the bill in section 3 has a clause that it shall not apply during the fiscal year 1928. Of course, the fiscal year 1928 has already gone by, and a good part of the fiscal year 1929 has passed. Would the gentleman not agree to an amendment on page 3, line 9, striking out "1928" and inserting "1929," so that the provision will not apply to a mere part of a fiscal year?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I would have no objection to an amendment of that kind.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. It would have to go back, then, to the Senate.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. The House passed an identical bill with this last Monday. It was a House bill and not a Senate bill, and in order to have the same bill pass the two Houses, this bill was placed on the calendar.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. In view of the statement just made, I shall not insist upon the amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the following quoted provisions of Article I covering salary class 2, teachers in junior high schools, are hereby repealed.

"CLASS 2.—TEACHERS IN JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS

"A teacher in the junior high schools who possesses the eligibility requirements of teachers in the elementary schools and who in addition has met the higher eligibility requirements established by the Board of Education for teachers in junior high schools shall be paid in accordance with the following schedules:

"A teacher in the junior high school who possesses the eligibility requirements of teachers in the senior high and normal schools shall be paid in accordance with the following schedules," so that the salary schedule as amended shall read as follows:

"CLASS 2.—TEACHERS IN JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS

"Group A: A basic salary of $1,600 per year, with an annual increase in salary of $100 for eight years, or until a maximum salary of $2,400 per year is reached.

"Group B: A basic salary of $2,500 per year, with an annual increase in salary of $100 for three years, or until a maximum salary of $2,800 per year is reached.

"Group C: A basic salary of $1,800 per year, with an annual increase in salary of $100 for 10 years, or until a maximum salary of $2,800 per year is reached.

"Group D: A basic salary of $2,900 per year, with an annual increase in salary of $100 for three years, or until a maximum salary of $3,200 per year is reached."

SEC. 2. That the Board of Education is hereby authorized to establish the eligibility requirements and prescribe such methods of appointment or promotion for teachers in the junior high schools as it may deem proper, subject to provisions of law covering such matters now in effect or which may hereafter be enacted.

SEC. 3. That the following provision of section 9 of Article V of the act of June 4, 1924, "Provided further, That no person who has not received for at least one year the maximum salary of Group A in any class or Group C of class 2 shall be eligible for promotion to Group B of any class or Group D of class 2," shall not apply during the fiscal year 1928 to the teachers affected by the provisions of paragraph (d) of section 6 of the same act.

SEC. 4. Amend paragraph (q) of section 6 of Article IV by adding the following:

"Provided further, That in the case of trade teachers in regularly organized trade schools the Board of Education is authorized to credit approved experience in the trades in the same manner and to the same extent as though it were experience in teaching."

SEC. 5. That this act shall take effect on its passage.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

MEMORIAL BUILDING AT CHAMPOEG, OREG.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 11726) to authorize the construction of a memorial building at Champoeg, Oreg.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, the Budget Bureau objects.

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman withhold his objection.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Certainly.

Mr. HAWLEY. This bill is to provide cooperation with the State of Oregon for the erection of a memorial building at Champoeg, Oreg., on the site of a meeting at which by vote it was decided that they would adhere in allegiance to the United States. A code of laws was provided for the Oregon country, the national ownership of which was in dispute between the United States and Great Britain at that time. The people who settled Oregon went out there when the land was under the joint occupancy of Great Britain and the United States, and made their settlements. After a time it became necessary to have a code of laws, neither the laws of the United States nor the protection of the United States flag extending over them at that time. At that meeting on May 2, 1843, 102 persons appeared. After a long debate 52 agreed to cast in their lot with the United States and 50 desired to go with Great Britain. But the majority vote was accepted.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I am not questioning the object of the project at all. I am simply questioning the desirability of it at this time.

The Secretary says:

In response I have to state that the department has no information either as to the necessity for or desirability of the construction of such a building as is contemplated in the measure under consideration, to be paid for from Federal funds.

Mr. HAWLEY. But it is to be paid for from Federal funds only in part.

Mr. LUCE. Mr. Speaker, will be gentleman yield?

Mr. HAWLEY. Yes.

Mr. LUCE. I imagine the gentleman is not informed that an identical Senate bill having passed the Senate and come to the House, has been referred to the Committee on the Library. A citizen of Oregon, not knowing, however, that there were now two bills on this matter before the House, has sent to that committee certain communications which I feel sure the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. HAWLEY] would like to examine before final action is had upon this measure.

Mr. HAWLEY. May I ask who the gentleman is?

Mr. LUCE. I do not remember his name.

Mr. HAWLEY. I think I received the same communication. This bill is based on the accepted and acknowledged history of the State of Oregon regarding the matter. The action which is to be commemorated was the determining factor in the final settlement between the United States and Great Britain which made the Oregon country a part of the United States. The fact of the settlement and the adoption of a code of laws at a time when the people were outside of the protection of the flag, outside of the protection of the laws of the United States, was held decisive in favor of American ownership. By actual vote of the people at that time there was obtained to the United States about 200,000 square miles of territory, all of the Pacific coast north of the California line, west of the Rocky Mountains.

It seems to me that an event of that character should be signalized by the erection of this building, commemorating the service of those people to the United States.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. There is no historical question involved here at all. It is simply the working out of proper details.

Mr. HAWLEY. What form of details?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Nobody seems to know anything about it. The department does not know anything about it.

Mr. HAWLEY. It seems to me this is a proper policy for the Congress to determine.

Mr. LEAVITT. The mere fact that the Department of the Interior knows nothing about it seems in itself to be a good reason for our action. There was a vote of the pioneers, 102 men being present, as to whether the States of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and a part of Montana should be a part of the United States or a part of the British Empire; and nothing has happened in the western part of the United States of such great historical value as that which took place at this camp. Simply because the Department of the Interior says it is not in possession of these facts should not be a reason for our rejecting this bill.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. The historical question is not before us.

Mr. LEAVITT. Evidently it is before us when the gentleman from New York quotes the Department of the Interior as not being informed. That affects the historical value. I hope no one will object.

Mr. SCHAFER. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard. The Clerk will report the next bill.

PAVING AT NOGALES, ARIZ.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was a bill (H. R. 16661) to amend the act entitled "An act authorizing the paving of the Federal strip known as International Street adjacent to Nogales, Ariz.," approved May 16, 1928.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act entitled "An act authorizing the paving of the Federal strip known as International Street adjacent to Nogales, Ariz.," approved May 16, 1928, is amended by striking out "$40,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$70,000."

With committee amendment as follows:

Page 1, strike out all of line 3 to line 7, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"That the act entitled 'An act authorizing the paving of the Federal strip known as International Street adjacent to Nogales, Ariz.,' approved May 16, 1928, be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"'That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause the grading and paving of the Federal strip of land known as International Street, belonging to the United States, along the international boundary line between Mexico and the United States and adjacent to the city of Nogales, Ariz., said paving to extend from the east side of Nelson Avenue to the top of the hill beyond West Street, with the necessary fence, retaining walls, storm sewers, the installation of an ornamental lighting system, and other items necessary in connection therewith, at a limit of cost of $70,000.'"

SEC. 2. All sums heretofore or hereafter appropriated under such act of May 16, 1928, or such act as amended, shall remain available for the purposes authorized by such act until expended.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

MEMORIAL BUILDING AT CHAMPOEG, OREG.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to return to Calendar No. 1302, and ask for the consideration of that bill, H. R. 11726.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I object, Mr. Speaker. I hope the gentleman from Wisconsin will learn to know his own mind when he objects.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard. The Clerk will report the next bill.

FEDERAL BUILDING SITE AT SAVANNAH, GA.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17026) granting a part of the Federal building site at Savannah, Ga., to the city of Savannah for street purposes.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I have the usual reversionary clause to offer as an amendment providing that when this land shall not be a public street it shall revert to the Government.

Mr. EDWARDS. I will say to the gentleman from New York that there was an understanding between the city council and the officials of the Government at the time this land was offered to the effect that this land should be given to the city for street purposes.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Outright?

Mr. EDWARDS. Yes. There was a trade and it is for the benefit of the Government rather than for the benefit of the city.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to convey by suitable deed to the city of Savannah, Ga., for street purposes, the following-described strip of land: Twenty-two feet south of and abutting on State Street from Bull Street to Whitaker Street, in the city of Savannah, Chatham County, Ga., in exchange for 65.5 feet, given by the said city of Savannah to the Government as part of a public-building site, in closing President Street in said city.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 4, strike out the words "and directed" and insert the words "in his discretion."

Page 1, line 5, strike out the word "suitable" and insert "quit-claim."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

EXEMPTION FROM TAXATION OF PROPERTY OF THE NATIONAL SOCIETY SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 10171) to exempt from taxation certain property of the National Society Sons of the American Revolution in Washington, D. C.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOOPER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the gentleman who is responsible for this bill if this organization is a governmental organization in any sense of the word?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. Not in any sense of the word, no more than the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mr. HOOPER. I do not see why an organization of this kind should be exempt from taxation or their property exempt from taxation any more than the property of any private organization. I think I shall object.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I want to point this out: We have taken the stand here that we will give the District of Columbia a lump sum instead of assuming a proportionate share of the cost of maintaining the District government. Now, it seems to me that in the face of that situation it would be improper for us to exempt property from taxation.

Mr. HOOPER. Why should there be any property exempted from taxation?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. There should not be.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I will say there are quite a number of similar organizations here whose properties are exempt from taxation, and one of the organizations whose property is exempted from taxation is that of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mr. SCHAFER. Is the property of the American Legion and of the Disabled War Veterans exempted from taxation?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I said quite a number were exempted from taxation, but I can not enumerate specifically the properties that are exempted. I understand that $70,000,000 worth of property is exempted from taxation.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. The point I made was this——

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I understand the point made by the gentleman.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. We have passed a law placing certain responsibilities on the District of Columbia. Therefore I say, let the Commissioners of the District of Columbia assume the responsibility of exempting property from taxation.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I will say, in all fairness to the commissioners, that they object to any exemptions of this character.

Mr. HOOPER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. GILBERT. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GILBERT. In order to preserve a record which I have some pride in maintaining, may the RECORD also show that I object. There is only one objection made, and it will be shown to have been made by the gentleman from Michigan.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is not a parliamentary inquiry, but the objection will be noted.

Mr. GILBERT. A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GILBERT. Does the RECORD show that I object?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. We have tried to make the RECORD show that the gentleman objects.

Mr. GILBERT. Well, I do object.

USE OF CERTAIN LANDS OWNED BY THE UNITED STATES IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA FOR STREET PURPOSES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4087) authorizing the use of certain land owned by the United States in the District of Columbia for street purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be, and they are hereby, authorized to use for street purposes 1,651 square feet of a tract of land known as parcel 17/93, 708 square feet of a tract of land known as parcel 18/52, and 380 square feet of a tract of land known as parcel 18/23, all for the widening of Reservoir Road, and to use for street purposes 23,779.63 square feet of a tract of land known as parcel 28/12 for the widening of Reservoir Road and Forty-fourth Street; and to use for street purposes a strip of land 60 feet wide containing 258,750 square feet, more or less, lying immediately northeasterly of the southwesterly boundary of a tract of land known as parcel 173/23 for the widening of South Dakota Avenue; and to use for street purposes 9,000 square feet, more or less, of a tract of land known as parcel 243/15 for the extension of Trenton Street and for the widening of Fourth Street southeast; and to use for street purposes 1,521.28 square feet of lot 802, square 1932, and 3,669.88 square feet of lot 837, square 1300, for the widening of Wisconsin Avenue, all as shown on maps designated as Street Extension Maps 1150 and 1154, and Surveyor's Office Maps 1314 and 1373, on file in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, all the above-described property herein authorized to be used for street purposes being owned by the United States of America.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

SUBMARINE BASE, SQUANTUM, MASS.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17055) to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to lease the United States naval destroyer and submarine base, Squantum, Mass.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. DOUGLASS of Massachusetts. I object.

Mr. ANDREW. Will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. DOUGLASS of Massachusetts. Yes.

Mr. ANDREW. This is a great tract of land in the Boston Harbor that has been kept idle ever since the war, some 340 acres, which could be utilized for the development of docks and factories.

Mr. DOUGLASS of Massachusetts. I make this objection reluctantly; in fact, I had intended to vote for this bill up to within two or three days, and within that time there have come to me from reliable sources in the city of Boston objections which to me are very serious. Therefore I must reluctantly object to the bill. I think this can safely go over until the next session, so that I may have an opportunity to ascertain the real value of these objections.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

HOT SPRINGS, N. MEX.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 2572) granting certain land in the town of Hot Springs, N. Mex., to the State of New Mexico.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. MORROW. Mr. Speaker, I rise to move to lay this bill on the table for the reason that a similar bill passed the Congress on April 25, 1928, and is now known as Private Law No. 89.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, Senate bill 2572 will be laid on the table.

There was no objection.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3001) to revise the north, northeast, and east boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park in the States of Montana and Wyoming, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOOPER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, may I ask the gentleman from Wyoming whether or not this bill has already passed the House? Something was said to me about it by the chairman of the committee.

Mr. WINTER. No; it has not.

Mr. HOOPER. I have no objection.

Mr. CRAMTON. Reserving the right to object, I would like to ask a question of the gentleman from Wyoming. I would very much like to see, on page 4, the proviso in lines 4 to 9 stricken out. I think it will be agreeable to the gentleman to have that considered in committee. I do not desire to object, but I think I ought to give notice that I am going to offer the amendment, although I do not ask the gentleman just now to commit himself.

Mr. HASTINGS. Further reserving the right to object, does this bill exclude any of the land that is now in the Yellowstone Park?

Mr. WINTER. Yes; it does.

Mr. HASTINGS. How much?

Mr. WINTER. I could not give it exactly in acreage, but it is considerably less acreage than that which is added to the park by the bill. The total effect of the bill is to add to the area of the park.

Mr. CRAMTON. If the gentleman will yield, I have a letter from the Director of the National Park Service, Mr. Albright, under date of February 21, in which he says that the total additions in this bill, as it stands, are 157 square miles, and the elimination 79 square miles, which leaves a net addition of 78 square miles, and I may say that Mr. Albright approves of the measure.

Mr. HASTINGS. Of course, the gentleman is familiar with some of the criticisms that are being made against this bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Most of those criticisms are either founded on misinformation or apply to proposed changes that are not embodied in this bill.

Mr. HASTINGS. I understand the gentleman from Michigan to say that this bill is indorsed by the Park Service?

Mr. CRAMTON. It is.

Mr. HASTINGS. And there is a unanimous report from the Public Lands Committee?

Mr. WINTER. Yes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the boundary of the Yellowstone National Park is hereby changed so as to read as follows:

"Beginning on the present north boundary line of Yellowstone National Park at its intersection with the hydrographic divide immediately north of Pebble Creek, approximately at park boundary monument 29 east; thence following said divide around the head of the drainage of Pebble Creek to its intersection with the present east boundary line of Yellowstone National Park, at a point near park boundary monument 54 north; thence southerly along said boundary line to its intersection with the hydrographic divide between Soda Butte and Cache Creeks, at a point near park boundary monument 51 north; thence easterly along said hydrographic divide to its intersection with the crest of the Absaroka Range; thence southerly along said crest to its intersection with the main hydrographic divide between Little Lamar River and the North Fork of Shoshone River, passing over Republic and Hoodoo Peaks; thence westerly along said divide passing over Notch Mountain to its intersection with the present east boundary line of Yellowstone National Park at a point near park boundary monument 26 north; thence continuing westerly along said divide, now between the headwaters of Lamar River and Jones Creek, headwaters of Sedge, Bear, Cub, and Clear Creeks, and the headwaters of Jones and Crow Creeks, and between Crow Creek and Middle Creek, to its intersection with the present east boundary line of Yellowstone National Park, approximately at park boundary monument 18 north, passing over Pyramid and Cathedral Peaks, Mount Chittenden, and Avalanche Peak, thence southerly along said boundary line to its intersection with the hydrographic divide immediately south of Middle Creek, approximately at park boundary monument 15 north; thence westerly along said divide, now between a southern tributary of Middle Creek, headwaters of Beaverdam, Trappers, and Mountain Creeks, and the headwaters of Canfield and Eagle Creeks, to its intersection with the present east boundary line of Yellowstone National Park, at a point near park boundary monument 5 north, passing over Reservation and Atkins Peaks, Mount Schurz, Mount Humphreys, and Eagle Peak; and

"Beginning on the present west boundary line of Yellowstone National Park at its intersection with the left bank of Gallatin River between park monuments 45 and 46 north; thence northwesterly along said bank to a point opposite the hydrographic divide between Daly and Tepee Creeks; thence northeasterly across the Gallatin River and along said divide, around the headwaters of Daly, Black Butte, Specimen, and Fan Creeks, to the intersection of said divide with the present north boundary line of Yellowstone National Park, at a point near park boundary monument 11 west.

"All of those lands lying within the boundary lines above described and the present north, east, and west boundary lines are hereby included in and made a part of the Yellowstone National Park; and all of those lands of the present Yellowstone National Park excluded from the park are hereby included in and made a part of the contiguous national forests subject to all laws and regulations applicable to national forests, and upon acceptance thereof by appropriate action of the State, jurisdiction for all purposes whatsoever shall be, and is hereby, ceded over the land hereby excluded from the park to the State of Wyoming: Provided, That whereas it is the purpose and intent of Congress to retain the area hereby added to the park in its original wilderness character, therefore no new roads shall be constructed and no hotels or permanent camps shall be authorized or permitted to be maintained on such lands."

SEC. 2. That the provisions of the act of March 1, 1872, reserving lands for park purposes, the act of July 10, 1890, admitting the State of Wyoming into the Union, the act of May 7, 1894, entitled "An act to protect the birds and animals in the Yellowstone National Park and to punish crimes in said park, and for other purposes," the act of August 25, 1916, entitled "An act to establish a National Park Service, and for other purposes," and all acts supplementary to and amendatory of said acts are made applicable to and extended over the lands hereby added to the park: Provided, That the provisions of the act of June 10, 1920, entitled, "An act to create a Federal Power Commission, to provide for the improvement of navigation, the development of water power, the use of the public lands in relation thereto, and to repeal section 18 of the river and harbor appropriation act, approved August 8, 1917, and for other purposes," shall not apply to or extend over such lands.

SEC. 3. That the provisions of the act of March 20, 1922 (title 16, sec. 485, U. S. C.), as amended, shall continue to be applicable to the areas included within the Yellowstone National Park by this act, and any lands within such areas acquired by exchange thereunder shall thereupon become a part of the Yellowstone National Park.

SEC. 4. That nothing herein contained shall affect any valid existing claim, location, or entry under the land laws of the United States, whether for homestead, mineral right of way, or any other purposes whatsoever, or shall affect the right of any such claimant, locator, or entryman to the full use and enjoyment of his land.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CRAMTON: Page 4, lines 4 to 9, strike out the words "Provided, That whereas it is the purpose and intent of Congress to retain the areas hereby added to the park in its original wilderness character, therefore no new roads shall be constructed and no hotels or permanent camps shall be authorized or permitted to be maintained on such lands."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I do not anticipate that in this area there will be any special road program or hotel development, but I do not believe the authorities ought to be handicapped in their administration.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

NATIONAL PARK IN FLORIDA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4704) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to investigate and report to Congress on the advisability and practicability of establishing a national park to be known as the Tropic Everglades National Park in the State of Florida, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to object, but I give notice that I will offer an amendment which I understand is agreeable to the gentleman from Florida.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, directed to investigate and report to Congress as to the desirability and practicability of establishing a national park, to be known as the Tropic Everglades National Park, in the everglades of Dade, Monroe, and Collier Counties of the State of Florida, for the benefit and enjoyment of the people of the United States and to preserve said area in its natural state: Provided, That such investigation shall be made without expense to the United States other than the salaries of any Government experts who may be assigned for that purpose.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CRAMTON: On page 2, line 1, after the word "state" insert the following: "Including in his report full information as to the ownership, value, estimated cost to acquire, the character of the lands involved, and his opinion as to whether such areas measure up to national park standards; any appropriation for the National Park Service shall be available for the necessary expenses of such investigation."

And strike out the proviso on page 2.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks on the Yellowstone National Park bill just passed, and in doing so I will want to insert a letter from the director and another letter bearing on the matter suggested by the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. HASTINGS.]

Mr. LEAVITT. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the gentleman to make plain in his remarks that this Yellowstone National Park boundary bill is nothing except an adjustment of the boundary as between the national park and the national forest to give, for administrative purposes, a natural boundary rather than an arbitrary boundary.

Mr. CRAMTON. The gentleman has already done that pretty well.

Mr. HOWARD of Oklahoma. Reserving the right to object, will not the gentleman also include in his remarks evidence showing that in this change of boundary there is no lumber or timber grab such as have been referred to in letters we have been receiving?

Mr. CRAMTON. The letters I have in mind are directly in response to the Van Name charges, and one is from Mr. Albright, the director, formerly superintendent of Yellowstone National Park, and the other is from Mr. Ringland, of the commission which made the report on which the change is based. The letters are as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
NATIONAL PARK SERVICE,
Washington, February 21, 1929.

Hon. LOUIS C. CRAMTON,
House of Representatives.

DEAR MR. CRAMTON: Referring to the attached publication by Willard G. Van Name, he seems to be opposed in general to S. 3001 now pending on the floor of the House, but as a matter of fact he directs his argument at the change suggested by the coordinating committee in the south boundary of the park, which S. 3001, amended by the Senate committee, eliminated from the bill. In other words, S. 3001 as it now stands on the floor of the House has nothing whatever to say about the south boundary.

I had a letter from Mr. Van Name this morning, which is in answer to one I wrote him a day or two ago about his protest. I pointed out the reasons why the bill as it stands now is in the interest of good administration, cheaper protection, etc., the east boundary line being provided in the bill as the summit of the Absaroka Range instead of the present arbitrary line. The quotation from his letter about S. 3001 is as follows:

"While I admit the correctness of your statements regarding the Yellowstone Park boundary alterations that bill S. 3001 would make, there are several other serious considerations involved, the discussion of which would require too long a letter. I feel that better plans for enlargement of the Yellowstone can be put through before long and that meanwhile no surrender of any part of the original park should be made."

I attach a map showing the boundaries of the park as proposed by S. 3001. It makes all the changes proposed in the north and east line as far as Eagle Peak, throwing out the watersheds of parts of five small streams and taking in the headwaters of the Lamar River with its wonderful Hoodoo region, as well as the Specimen Creek area with its petrified forest and a little amphitheater at the head of Pebble Creek. The total additions to the park are 157 square miles and the eliminations 79, leaving a net addition of 78 square miles.

* * * * * * *

Sincerely yours,

HORACE M. ALBRIGHT, Director.

P. S.—I called up Roosevelt.

[From the New York Herald Tribune, Sunday, February 17, 1929]

YELLOWSTONE ADJUSTMENTS—REVISION OF NATIONAL PARK AND NATIONAL FOREST BOUNDARIES; NO PRIVATE EXPLOITATION

To the NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE:

In your issue of January 30 there is published a letter from Willard G. Van Name, commenting on Senator Nye's bill to adjust the boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park. This letter is so replete with misinformation and unwarranted inference that I am moved to protest. I served in the field with the Coordinating Commission on National Parks and Forests (the body responsible for Senator Nye's bill) as a representative of the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation, attended all meetings and public hearings of the commission, personally kept the minutes and drafted the report for the consideration of the President's committee on outdoor recreation. This experience permits me to speak with a measure of authority.

At the outset it should be understood that the various proposals before Congress to adjust the boundaries of our national parks involve as well an adjustment of our national forests, for the boundaries of the two classes of reservations are generally coterminous. Mr. Van Name studiously avoids reference to this fact and would have it appear that any changes in national-park boundaries will make possible exploitation by "unscrupulous interests." The commission has not recommended the release of a single acre from Federal control and administration.

The Yellowstone is a case in point. This national park is entirely surrounded by national forests—the Targhee, the Teton, the Shoshone, the Beartooth, the Absaroka, the Gallatin, and the Madison. What is involved is an interchange in Federal administration and management of relatively small areas of land within these national forests and the park to permit of the highest utilization of their resources—economic in the case of the forests and spiritual in the case of the park—and the reestablishment of boundaries following natural features of the topography. These national forests and the Yellowstone National Park were not established at the same time, so division between the reservations has been along arbitrary and artificial lines. There are areas that should be withdrawn from economic use and transferred to park management; likewise the national park includes areas that should be placed under the control of the Forest Service.

To effect coordination in policy and the complementary development of the resources of each class of reservation, Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution and representing the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation, requested President Coolidge's Cabinet committee on outdoor recreation to appoint a commission to study the problem and make recommendations to Congress. This was done, and a commission of well-known conservationists, under the chairmanship of Dr. Henry W. Temple, a distinguished scholar and Member of Congress, spent the seasons of 1925 and 1926 in a field examination of the Yellowstone and Yosemite National Parks and the surrounding national forests with respect to their coterminous boundaries.

When the Yellowstone Park was created in 1872 the boundaries, because of lack of precise surveys at that time, were located on standard parallel lines and therefore no account whatsoever was taken of the topography—the boundaries crossed box canyons and high mountain peaks willy nilly. The subsequent creation of national forests surrounding the Yellowstone Park on all sides has continued to present difficult problems in the administration of both the parks and forests, in patrol, fire protection, and game administration.

With these facts in mind and substantiated by field examinations the commission recommended the addition of approximately 200,000 acres to the Yellowstone Park embracing the watersheds of the upper Yellowstone River and Thorofare Creek by elimination from the Teton National Forest. This region is tributary topographically to the park and the proposed new boundary will follow natural features of the topography. It was the opinion of the commission that this addition to the park should be administered by the Park Service as a wilderness area, and to conserve inviolate its superb scenic and wild-life values the commission recommended to Congress that any legislation authorizing the addition should include a provision prohibiting the construction of roads or the issuance of permits for resorts.

It was found distinctly inadvisable to add to the park, as Mr. Van Name recommends, the Teton National Forest lands east of the proposed Thorofare Creek addition and north of the Buffalo River, because of the high potential forest value, forage, wild life (elk), water, and other economic resources, including minerals. To include too much of the summer and fall range of the elk within the park and, therefore, under absolute sanctuary, would effectively defeat the conservation of these superb herds.

This is for the simple reason that these animals breed prolifically and unless provision is made for the economic and humane disposal of the annual increase they multiply beyond the means of subsistence on the now severely restricted winter range to which the elk migrate miles outside of the park and the starvation of thousands ensues. The interested reader is referred to the report on the conservation of the elk of Jacksons Hole, recently published by the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation.

Moreover, the elimination from the Teton National Forest of the potentially valuable timber (estimated at over one and a quarter billion feet), the forage, water, and minerals, and withholding these from utilization under park administration, would be a violation of the sound principles of land management and would unjustly remove taxable wealth from struggling communities. In the long view these resources will be needed. To-day the timber can not be marked, for the nearest railroad is several hundred miles distant; its value is only potential, a point that Mr. Van Name ignores. Under national-forest administration these resources are safeguarded from private appropriation or exploitation and available for conservative use without impairment of the natural capital.

Another important recommendation of the commission, which Congress has just approved (the Norbeck bill), was the addition to the park system of 100,000 acres of the east drainage of the Grand Teton Range by elimination from the Teton National Forest. The east front of the Grand Tetons, with its foothill lakes, affords one of the superb scenic spectacles of the United States, and is preeminently worthy of inclusion as a national park.

ARTHUR RINGLAND,
Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, Colo.

FEBRUARY 13, 1929.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL PARKWAY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15524) for the acquisition, establishment, and development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the Potomac from Mount Vernon and Fort Washington to the Great Falls, and to provide for the acquisition of lands in the District of Columbia and the States of Maryland and Virginia requisite to the comprehensive park, parkway, and playground system of the National Capital.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object——

Mr. BELL. I object.

MONUMENT OR MEMORIAL TO OSCAR S. STRAUS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 377) authorizing the erection on public grounds in the District of Columbia of a monument or memorial to Oscar S. Straus.

The Clerk read the title to the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. HUDDLESTON. Reserving the right to object, I have had a feeling for a good many years that there is too much tendency to fill up Washington with monuments to gentlemen who have had their birthplace and residence and chief activities in other parts of the country. I do not understand why those who want to put up monuments to eminent gentlemen, benefactors, and philosophers do not put the monuments up where the men lived their lives and performed their chief functions.

We have dozens of efforts to build these monuments in Washington. It occurs to me that if anybody insists that they want to build a monument in the Capital City, they buy the ground and put up the monument as their own private property. Washington is full of monstrosities in the shape of monuments of one kind and another. I think we should leave some of the spaces for the use of future generations. In my judgment this practice has gone quite far enough, and I object to this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

APPROPRIATION FOR FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16662) to authorize appropriation for buildings, sites, and other facilities for the free Public Library of the District of Columbia.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to provide for the expansion of the public-library facilities of the District of Columbia to cover existing needs and to care for the future growth of the library system by the acquisition of new sites, the enlargement of sites now or hereafter acquired, the erection of new buildings, the enlargement, extension, and major alteration or conversion of buildings now or hereafter erected, including the erection of wings or other extension of public-school buildings suitable for public-library branches, there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, from time to time as the needs of the public-library system may require, such sum or sums as in the aggregate will not exceed $2,000,000.

SEC. 2. Such sums as are appropriated under the authority of this act shall be payable out of the combined appropriations from the revenues of the District of Columbia and the Treasury of the United States in the manner provided in the acts making appropriations for carrying out the purposes of this act.

SEC. 3. This act shall be effective on and after July 1, 1929.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE AMERICAN GROUP OF THE INTERPARLIAMENTARY UNION

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17077) to authorize and appropriate for the American group of the Interparliamentary Union.

The Clerk read the title to the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask that this bill be passed over without prejudice.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. This is the last chance that this bill will have to pass at this session. Other countries have already appropriated, and we will adjourn in a few days, and it is necessary to get the bill over to the Senate.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. There is legislation and appropriation authorizing us to pay our share in the support of these interparliamentary activities at Geneva. That provision is carried in the regular appropriation bill. I am frank to question the propriety of our embarking on a policy of paying the expenses of delegates to these various meetings.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Would the gentleman have them pay their own expenses?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. If I went I would expect to pay my own expenses. The delegates have heretofore paid their own expenses.

Mr. O'CONNELL. That is what many of the members of this commission do.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

REPEALING PROVISION LIMITING THE ANNUAL PER CAPITA COST IN INDIAN SCHOOLS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17079) to repeal the provision in the act of April 30, 1908, and other legislation limiting the annual per capita cost in Indian schools.

The Clerk read the title to the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the provision in the act of April 30, 1908 (35 Stat. L. 72), and all other acts imposing a limit upon the per capita cost in Indian boarding schools, be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK BOUNDARY COMMISSION

The next business on the Consent Calendar was Senate joint resolution (S. J. Res. 206) to authorize the President of the United States to appoint a Yellowstone National Park boundary commission to inspect the areas involved in the proposed adjustment of the southeast, south, and southwest boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to appoint a commission, consisting of five members, to be known as the Yellowstone National Park boundary commission, whose duty it shall be to inspect the areas involved in the proposed adjustment of the southeast, south, and southwest boundaries of the Yellowstone National Park, and report to the President its recommendations concerning such adjustment. The necessary expenses of such inspection shall be paid from any appropriation available for Yellowstone National Park: Provided, That said commission shall make a final report to the Congress on or before January 1, 1931.

The joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed was laid on the table.

POSSESSION OF FIREARMS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 13211) to control the possession, sale, transfer, and use of pistols and other dangerous weapons in the District of Columbia, to provide penalties, to prescribe rules of evidence, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc.—

DEFINITIONS

SECTION 1. "Pistol," as used in this act, means any firearm with a barrel less than 12 inches in length.

"Machine gun," as used in this act, means any firearm which shoots automatically and any firearm which shoots more than 12 shots semiautomatically without reloading.

"Person," as used in this act, includes firm, association, or corporation.

"Sell" and "purchase" and the various derivatives of such words, as used in this act, shall be construed to include letting on hire, giving, lending, borrowing, and otherwise transferring.

"Crime of violence," as used in this act, means any of the following crimes or an attempt to commit any of the same, namely: Murder, manslaughter, rape, mayhem, assault to do great bodily harm, robbery, larceny, burglary, and housebreaking.

COMMITTING CRIME WHEN ARMED

SEC. 2. If any person shall commit a crime of violence when armed with or having readily available any pistol or other firearm, he may in addition to the punishment provided for the crime be punished by imprisonment for a term of not less than 3 nor more than 5 years; upon a second conviction for a crime of violence so committed he may in addition to the punishment provided for the crime be punished by imprisonment for a term of not less than 5 nor more than 10 years; upon a third conviction for a crime of violence so committed he may in addition to the punishment provided for the crime be punished by imprisonment for a term of not less than 10 nor more than 15 years; upon a fourth or subsequent conviction for a crime of violence so committed he may in addition to the punishment provided for the crime be punished by imprisonment for an additional period of not less than 15 nor more than 30 years.

BEING ARMED PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE OF INTENT

SEC. 3. In the trial of a person for committing a crime of violence the fact that he was armed with or had readily available a pistol, and had no license to carry the same, or was armed with or had readily available any other firearm having a total length of less than 26 inches, or any machine gun, or any of the instruments specified in section 18 hereof, shall be prima facie evidence of his intention to commit such crime of violence.

PERSONS FORBIDDEN TO POSSESS CERTAIN FIREARMS

SEC. 4. No person who has been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence shall own or have in his possession or under his control a pistol.

CARRYING PISTOL

SEC. 5. No person shall carry a pistol in any vehicle or concealed on or about his person except in his dwelling house or place of business or on other land possessed by him without a license therefor issued as hereinafter provided.

EXCEPTIONS

SEC. 6. The provisions of the preceding sections shall not apply to marshals, sheriffs, prison or jail wardens or their deputies, policemen or other duly appointed law-enforcement officers, or to members of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States or of the National Guard or Organized Reserves when on duty, or to the regularly enrolled members of any organization duly authorized to purchase or receive such weapons from the United States, provided such members are at or are going to or from their places of assembly or target practice, or to officers or employees of the United States duly authorized to carry a concealed pistol, or to any person engaged in the business of manufacturing, repairing, or dealing in firearms or the agent or representative of any such person having in his possession, using, or carrying a pistol in the usual or ordinary course of such business, or to any person while carrying a pistol unloaded and in a secure wrapper from the place of purchase to his home or place of business or to a place of repair or back to his home or place of business or in moving goods from one place of abode or business to another.

ISSUE OF LICENSES TO CARRY

SEC. 7. The superintendent of police of the District of Columbia may upon the application of any person having a bona fide residence or place of business within the District of Columbia, or of any person having a bona fide residence or place of business within the United States and a license to carry a pistol concealed upon his person issued by the lawful authorities of any State or subdivision of the United States, issue a license to such person to carry a pistol within the District of Columbia for not more than one year from date of issue, if it appears that the applicant has good reason to fear injury to his person or property or has any other proper reason for carrying a pistol and that he is a suitable person to be so licensed. The license shall be in duplicate, in form to be prescribed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and shall bear the name, address, description, photograph, and signature of the licensee and the reason given for desiring a license. The original thereof shall be delivered to the licensee and the duplicate shall be retained by the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia and preserved in his office for six years.

SELLING TO MINORS AND OTHERS

No person shall sell any pistol to a person who he has reasonable cause to believe is not of sound mind, or is a drug addict, or is a person who has been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence or, except when the relation of parent and child or guardian and ward exists, is under the age of 18 years.

TRANSFERS REGULATED

SEC. 9. No seller shall deliver a pistol to the purchaser thereof until 48 hours shall have elapsed from the time of the application for the purchase thereof, and when delivered said pistol shall be securely wrapped and shall be unloaded. At the time of applying for the purchase of a pistol the purchaser shall sign in duplicate and deliver to the seller a statement containing his full name, address, occupation, color, place of birth, the date and hour of application, the caliber, make, model, and manufacturer's number of the pistol to be purchased and a statement that he has never been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence. The seller shall within six hours after such application sign and attach his address and forward by registered mail one copy of such statement to the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia and shall retain the other copy for six years. This section shall not apply to sales at wholesale to licensed dealers.

DEALERS TO BE LICENSED

SEC. 10. No retail dealer shall sell or expose for sale or have in his possession with intent to sell any pistol without being licensed as hereinafter provided.

DEALERS' LICENSES, BY WHOM GRANTED AND CONDITIONS THEREOF

SEC. 11. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia may grant licenses and may prescribe the form thereof, effective for not more than one year from date of issue, permitting the licensee to sell pistols at retail within the District of Columbia subject to the following conditions in addition to those specified in section 9 hereof, for breach of any of which the license shall be subject to forfeiture and the licensee subject to punishment as provided in this act:

1. The business shall be carried on only in the building designated in the license.

2. The license or a copy thereof, certified by the issuing authority, shall be displayed on the premises where it can easily be read.

3. No pistol shall be sold (a) if the seller has reasonable cause to believe that the purchaser is not of sound mind or is a drug addict or has been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence or is under the age of 18 years, or (b) unless the purchaser is personally known to the seller or shall present clear evidence of his identity.

4. A true record in duplicate shall be made of every pistol sold, said record to be made in a book kept for the purpose, the form of which may be prescribed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and shall be personally signed by the purchaser and by the person effecting the sale, each in the presence of the other, and shall contain the date of sale, the caliber, make, model, and manufacturer's number of the weapon, the name, address, occupation, color, and place of birth of the purchaser, and a statement signed by the purchaser that he has never been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence. One copy of said record shall, within seven days, be forwarded by mail to the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia and the other copy retained by the seller for six years.

5. No pistol or imitation thereof or placard advertising the sale thereof shall be displayed in any part of said premises where it can readily be seen from the outside. No license to sell at retail shall be granted to anyone except as provided in this section.

FALSE INFORMATION FORBIDDEN

SEC. 12. No person shall, in purchasing a pistol or in applying for a license to carry the same, give false information or offer false evidence of his identity.

ALTERATION OF IDENTIFYING MARKS PROHIBITED

SEC. 13. No person shall change, alter, remove, or obliterate the name of the maker, model, manufacturer's number, or other mark of identification on any pistol. Possession of any pistol upon which any such mark shall have been changed, altered, removed, or obliterated shall be prima facie evidence that the possessor has changed, altered, removed, or obliterated the same.

EXISTING LICENSES REVOKED

SEC. 14. All licenses heretofore issued within the District of Columbia permitting the carrying of pistols shall expire at midnight of September 30, 1928.

EXCEPTIONS

SEC. 15. This act shall not apply to antique pistols unsuitable for use as firearms and possessed as curiosities or ornaments.

PAWNING OF PISTOLS PROHIBITED

SEC. 16. No person shall make any loan secured by mortgage, deposit, or pledge of a pistol.

MACHINE GUNS

SEC. 17. No person shall possess any machine gun within the District of Columbia. This section shall not apply to any foreign government nor to members of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States, or of the National Guard or Organized Reserves when on duty, nor to the Post Office Department or its employees when on duty, nor to duly appointed law-enforcement officers, nor to banking institutions established under the laws of the United States, nor to public carriers who are engaged in the business of transporting mail, money, securities, or other valuables.

POSSESSION OF CERTAIN DANGEROUS WEAPONS

SEC. 18. No person shall within the District of Columbia possess any instrument or weapon of the kind commonly known as a blackjack, slungshot, billy, sandclub, sandbag, or metal knuckles, nor any instrument, attachment, or appliance for causing the firing of any firearm to be silent or intended to lessen or muffle the noise of the firing of any firearm.

PENALTIES

SEC. 19. Any violation of any provision of this act for which no penalty is specifically provided shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

CONSTITUTIONALITY

SEC. 20. If any part of this act is for any reason declared void, such invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act.

CERTAIN ACTS REPEALED

SEC. 21. The following sections of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, 1919 namely, sections 855, 856, and 857, and all other acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 9, line 1, strike out "September 30, 1928," and insert "September 30, 1929."

Page 10, line 14, strike out "1919."

The committee amendments were agreed to and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

NATIONAL STOLEN PROPERTY LAW

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 10287) to prohibit the sending and receipt of stolen property through interstate and foreign commerce.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. BELL. Mr. Speaker, I object.

NAVIGATION ON GREAT LAKES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5095) to amend section 1, rule 3, subdivision (e), of an act to regulate navigation on the Great Lakes and their connecting and tributary waters, enacted February 8, 1895, as amended May 17, 1928.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That rule 3, subdivision (e), of an act entitled "An act to regulate navigation on the Great Lakes and their connecting and tributary waters," enacted February 8, 1895, and being chapter 64, Twenty-eighth States at Large, section 645, as amended May 17, 1928, be amended by substituting the letter "a" in parentheses for the second letter "e" in parentheses in the seventh line thereof.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. LAGUARDIA: Page 1, line 6, after the figure "1928," insert "(U. S. C. title 33, sec. 252.)"

The amendment was agreed to, and the bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

CONSTRUCTION OF INCINERATORS IN DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 16700) authorizing the acquisition of land in the District of Columbia and the construction thereon of two modern, high-temperatured incinerators for the destruction of combustible refuse, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object.

Mr. McFADDEN. Mr. Speaker, I have two amendments that I have discussed with the chairman of the committee, and I will send them to the Clerk's desk and ask that they be read at this time for information.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendments proposed by Mr. McFADDEN: Page 2, line 25, after the word "construct," strike out "loading hoppers, separating plants, ramps, platforms, and," and on—

Page 4, line 19, after the word "engineering," strike out "studies to determine the possible generation or use of available power resulting from incineration of combustible refuse and."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment I would like to bring to the attention of the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. LINTHICUM. Mr. Speaker, I have just sent up to the Clerk's desk an amendment which I ask to have read for information.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the Clerk will read the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Maryland.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment proposed by Mr. LINTHICUM: Page 3, in line 17, after the word "commissioners," strike out the period, insert a colon, and the following: "Provided, however, That nothing in this act shall prohibit or prevent the sale of salvageable material by the owners thereof or by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia."

Mr. LINTHICUM. Mr. Speaker, I should like to know if that is agreeable to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I see no objection to that.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. What does the gentleman mean by "owners thereof"?

Mr. LINTHICUM. Under the provisions of the bill, it would appear that a person having, for instance, an automobile establishment, who wanted to sell old tires or anything of that kind, would not be able to do it; it would have to be burned up.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, the amendment that I desire to bring to the attention of the gentleman from Maryland is on page 2, line 6, to insert this proviso after the word "area":

Provided, That the location of said sites shall be approved by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission before purchase or the institution of proceedings for condemnation thereof.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I would have no objection to that if the bill is considered.

Mr. CRAMTON. With that amendment I have no objection.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I want to point out the experience that we have had in New York City in installing incinerators. Every time the city locates and finds a site for incinerators there is opposition in that neighborhood and resistence. Have any plans been made for the location of these?

I will say further to the gentleman from New York and members of the committee, that while we are bringing this legislation in late, it was only submitted to the committee some 10 days ago. We are advised by the District Commissioners that the present plan for the disposal of waste and refuse is in very bad condition, and it will be necessary to start the construction of this plant if this garbage and other waste material is to be taken care of.

Mr. CRAMTON. If the gentleman will yield, my concern is about the location in Georgetown and the fear that it will interfere with the proper protection of the water front for parkway purposes. I presume that this provision will protect that situation?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I think so.

Mr. CRAMTON. I do not want to see an incinerator on one side of the Potomac and an abattoir—a latter-day name for a slaughterhouse—on the other side, within a few rods of the finest things we have in the Capital.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I agree with the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I would like to have some information. This bill authorizes an appropriation of some $850,000. I notice that page 3 of the committee report indicates that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia have studied this proposition and have submitted estimates which include an estimate of $15,000 for the acquisition of land in southeast Washington. That report was submitted on January 25, 1929, and an estimate of $15,000 was submitted for the incinerator site in southeast Washington.

On the top of page 2 of the committee report, dated February 15, 1929, we find, however, that the committee indicates that this land can not be purchased for $15,000, and the committee increases the amount for the southeast incinerator site by an additional $125,000. Why the change in this brief period of time? Have real-estate speculators entered into this site proposition? I would like to have some information, otherwise I will have to object to the bill.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. If the gentleman will consult his colleague, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. LAMPERT], who was in charge of the subcommittee on playgrounds, he will learn that the gentleman from Wisconsin had a hearing on this bill, and the assistant engineer commissioner appeared before him and stated that there was objection to the original site, and that they had changed the site to the southeast, and that it would cost more money; and the subcommittee voted unanimously to increase the amount by $125,000. This is not an appropriation, but an authorization.

Mr. SCHAFER. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, after carefully studying the proposition, make an estimate including a $15,000 site for southeast Washington, and within a few weeks after the report is filed they state that they need another $125,000 in addition to the $15,000 for this site. I would like to know the facts upon which the increase of $125,000 are based.

Mr. ZIHLMAN. I will say to the gentleman that representatives of the various citizens' associations of the District of Columbia appeared before the committee and urged this other site, and the site involves an additional appropriation.

Mr. SCHAFER. What is the reason?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. The gentleman from New York pointed out a few minutes ago that there is always objection to such a plant being put in a neighborhood. There was a protest by the citizens' associations demanding that the site be changed.

Mr. SCHAFER. Is there any objection to the new site?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. No opposition was manifested before the committee by any citizens' association in that section.

Mr. SCHAFER. Did the citizens' associations have an opportunity to manifest their objection?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. Various citizens' associations of the District were notified, and no opposition has been manifested.

Mr. SCHAFER. Does the gentleman know what is the assessed valuation of this property which we are asked to purchase for $140,000?

Mr. ZIHLMAN. The matter was looked into by the gentleman's colleague [Mr. LAMPERT].

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I ask that this bill be passed over without prejudice, so that I can have an opportunity to make a further investigation.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin asks unanimous consent that this bill be passed over without prejudice. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next bill.

SURVEYS OF THE CIMARRON RIVER SYSTEM

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15893) authorizing surveys and investigations to determine the best method and means of utilizing the waters of the Cimarron River system and its tributaries in southwestern Colfax County, N. Mex.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. GILBERT. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, we have record not only of opposition to exemption of farm lands from taxes but to legislation calculated to double the area of the farm lands of the United States.

Mr. MORROW. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. GILBERT. I will withhold.

Mr. MORROW. The gentleman objects to this on the ground that it is likely to bring into cultivation new lands, and on the ground that the farmer is not now getting proper prices for his products. Let me tell the gentleman that the western reclamation projects are producing the beet sugar largely that the people of the United States are consuming. We are producing in the western country now a large percentage of our beet sugar. The people of the United States are concerned in the production for consumption of something more than 13,000,000,000 pounds of sugar.

We are producing in the United States 18.3 per cent of the entire sugar consumed by the people, and we are producing sugar from beets in excess of two and a half million pounds.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman from New Mexico yield?

Mr. MORROW. I yield.

Mr. CRAMTON. I indorse all the gentleman has said and is going to say, but the report of the department makes it clear that whether this bill passes or not the appropriation is already available and can be used if necessary, and in view of that I am prepared to object.

Mr. MORROW. I do not think the gentleman should object. May I state to the gentleman that it is the desire of the Reclamation Bureau that the legislation be passed; then if they do not reach the legislation that has been passed the other legislation is out. They recommended to me right on the start that it was proper to introduce this legislation and I followed their advice. The Budget Bureau said they did not think there was any necessity of the legislation for the reason that the appropriation was provided and the Reclamation Bureau had the right to use it if it were matched by the locality.

Mr. CRAMTON. If my friend from Pennsylvania [Mr. MCFADDEN] does not object, I will not object.

Mr. MORROW. That is the purpose of the legislation.

Mr. GILBERT. I am not aware of the legislative situation, but realizing the situation that the farmers are in in the United States, I have consistently taken a position of opposition to an increase in the tillable area of the United States, and while I hate to object to the gentleman's bill——

Mr. MORROW. The gentleman does not understand this or he would not object.

Mr. GILBERT. I understand we are going to increase the tillable area of the United States.

Mr. MORROW. That is not true. This land is at present under irrigation, but there are four or five different projects, and the adjustment of the water rights between those projects and getting it all under one project is the purpose of this legislation. There is a sugar-beet factory now constructed in which three of the banks in my county have expended nearly $200,000, and the purpose of this is to get all united under one head, and are asking the Government to assist in the survey so that the irrigation can be brought about in a proper way and it can be consolidated into one proposition. There may be a small increase of irrigable land, but simply for the purpose of producing sugar beets, and we produce no excess of sugar from beets in the United States.

Mr. GILBERT. The bill reads this way:

To ascertain the best methods and means of utilizing the waters of the Cimarron River system and its tributaries in southwestern Colfax County, N. Mex., for irrigation and other purposes.

Why do you irrigate land except for the purpose of producing crops on it?

Mr. MORROW. It will be used for producing sugar beets, and, as I have said, a factory has already been erected there. Let me tell the gentleman that Colorado is to-day one of the leading States in the production of sugar beets; we adjoin Colorado and are starting in on the same method of beet culture. I stated that a factory had been built and it is to bring the Government in the survey in so doing that the irrigation can be placed under one head. The Government may never put a dollar in it beyond this investigation and their report.

Mr. GILBERT. I have the greatest confidence in the gentleman's assertions and I am trying to get at this fact: Will this land be suitable for the production of any other crops except sugar beets?

Mr. MORROW. We can not produce corn because our altitude is too great.

Mr. GILBERT. The gentleman can answer my question.

Mr. MORROW. No; it will not be used to any extent for other crops.

The regular order was demanded.

The SPEAKER. The regular order is: Is there objection?

Mr. GILBERT. Mr. Speaker, I object.

REPATRIATION OF CERTAIN INSANE AMERICAN CITIZENS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16436), to provide for the repatriation of certain insane American citizens.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That upon the application of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to transfer to St. Elizabeths Hospital, in the District of Columbia, for treatment, all American citizens legally adjudged insane in the Dominion of Canada, whose legal residence in one of the States, Territories, or the District of Columbia it has been impossible to establish. Upon the ascertainment of the legal residence of persons so transferred to the hospital, the superintendent of the hospital shall thereupon transfer such persons to their respective places of residence, and the expenses attendant thereon shall be paid from the appropriation for the support of the hospital.

Upon the request of any such patient, his relatives or friends, he shall have a hearing in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia upon his mental condition and the right of the superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital to hold him for treatment.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

BRIDGE ON THE CHEYENNE RIVER IN THE STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16659) to authorize an appropriation to pay one-half of the cost of a bridge on the Cheyenne River in the State of South Dakota.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That $9,000 is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury to the credit of the Cheyenne River Indians of South Dakota not otherwise appropriated, to pay not to exceed one-half the cost of the construction of a bridge and approaches thereto across Cheyenne River at or near the Cherry Creek Indian substation, including the cost of surveys, plans, estimates, and specifications, and other necessary expenses connected herewith, on condition that the State of South Dakota or the county of Ziebach or Haakon, or both, provide the remainder of the cost, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, who shall also approve the plans and specifications therefore: Provided, That before any money is spent hereunder the State or counties shall agree in writing to maintain the bridge and approaches without expense to the said Indians or the United States.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 7, strike out "the Cheyenne River," and insert in lieu thereof "Cherry Creek."

In line 8 strike out "Cherry Creek Indian substation" and insert in lieu thereof "Subagency of that name."

On page 2, in line 2, strike out "or Haakon."

In line 5 strike out "therefore" and insert "therefor."

In line 7, strike out "counties" and insert "county."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

The title was amended.

BRIDGE ON THE CHEYENNE RIVER INDIAN RESERVATION IN SOUTH DAKOTA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16660) to authorize an appropriation to pay one-half the cost of a bridge on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill,

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That $9,000 is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury to the credit of the Cheyenne River Indians of South Dakota not otherwise appropriated, to pay not to exceed one-half the cost of the construction of a bridge and approaches thereto across the Moreau River at or near the White Horse Indian Substation on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation in the State of South Dakota, including the cost of surveys, plans, estimates, and specifications, and other necessary expenses connected herewith, on condition that the State of South Dakota or the county of Dewey provide the remainder of the cost, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, who shall also approve the plans and specifications therefor: Provided, That before any money is spent hereunder, the State or county shall agree in writing to maintain the bridge and approaches without expense to the said Indians or the United States.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 8, strike out the word "substation" and insert the word "subagency."

Page 2, line 2, strike out the word "herewith" and insert the word "therewith."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

COMMEMORATION OF BATTLE OF KINGS MOUNTAIN

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14449) to establish a national military park to commemorate the Battle of Kings Mountain.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I am obliged to object.

Mr. BULWINKLE. Will the gentleman reserve his objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. I want to be courteous to the gentleman. We have a lot of bills, but I will reserve the objection.

Mr. BULWINKLE. I think the gentleman is probably objecting on the grounds of the Secretary of War's report. The Secretary of War made report in a letter to the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. STEVENSON] and myself that the Kings Mountain Battle was so insignificant that it did not need anything but a marker. This was the original report. There has been a monument at Kings Mountain, but I want to say to the gentleman that of all the battles fought on the American Continent Kings Mountain is certainly one among them that deserves special consideration.

Mr. CRAMTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BULWINKLE. Yes.

Mr. CRAMTON. The difficulty is there are so many bills we want to reach that we ought not to have any extended discussion. What complicates the matter with me is that the gentleman is about to leave us, much to the regret of all of us; but if a policy that has been laid down by us is to have any effect we must follow it, and in view of this present report from the department I do not see how we can pass the bill.

Mr. BULWINKLE. I realize the situation with respect to that report.

Mr. CRAMTON. Maybe a different report can be obtained from the department.

Mr. BULWINKLE. The point I want to make with the gentleman is this: If the policy had been rightly adjudged, it would have been all right. An officer from the War College, Colonel Landrum, in making a report upon this matter said that this battle deserves such consideration.

Mr. CRAMTON. Why does not the gentleman have a bill here for a resurvey of the situation?

Mr. BULWINKLE. We had it resurveyed last year.

Mr. CRAMTON. Where is your report?

Mr. BULWINKLE. That report is in the report of the committee.

Mr. CRAMTON. And the department, notwithstanding that, persists in its opposition?

Mr. BULWINKLE. An officer in the Army was one of the members of the committee who made that report, and in addition, let me call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that in this report of Colonel Landrum it is shown that just prior to the time the Battle of Kings Mountain was fought there was a discussion in the Continental Congress, privately, among the Members, to make a treaty of peace with Great Britain by letting Great Britain keep the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida.

Mr. CRAMTON. Let me ask the gentleman how much land must be acquired?

Mr. BULWINKLE. Two hundred acres, 40 acres of which have been given to us.

Mr. CRAMTON. Who is going to pay for this land?

Mr. BULWINKLE. Forty acres of land have been donated.

Mr. CRAMTON. What about the other 160 acres; who pays for that?

Mr. BULWINKLE. The 160 acres will be paid for under this bill.

Mr. CRAMTON. Is there any local contribution at all?

Mr. BULWINKLE. No; but there will be contribution in the matter of building roads.

Mr. STEVENSON. The county is going to build a road to the park.

Mr. BULWINKLE. The State of North Carolina and the State of South Carolina will build the road.

Mr. STEVENSON. There is one item for fencing that could very likely be stricken out.

Mr. CRAMTON. I may say, Mr. Speaker, I do not believe we ought to set aside too lightly policies that are determined upon, but as my own little personal tribute to my friend, Major BULWINKLE, I am going to withdraw any objection I have. [Applause.]

Mr. BULWINKLE. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to commemorate the Battle of Kings Mountain, which was fought on the 7th day of October, 1780, the battle field of Kings Mountain, in the State of South Carolina, is hereby declared to be a national military park, to be known as the Kings Mountain National Military Park, when the land comprising such battle field becomes the property of the United States.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of War shall ascertain on what land the Battle of Kings Mountain was fought and, subject to the provisions of section 355 of the Revised Statutes, shall proceed to acquire title to such land, either by purchase or gift or by condemnation under the provisions of the act entitled "An act to authorize condemnation of land for sites of public buildings, and for other purposes," approved August 1, 1888.

SEC. 3. Such park shall be under the control and direction of the Secretary of War. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe from time to time such regulations for the care and management of such park as he may deem necessary.

SEC. 4. Upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, the Secretary of War is authorized to permit any person occupying any land within the boundaries of such park to continue to occupy such land, but the Secretary may revoke such permit at any time.

SEC. 5. The Secretary of War shall open or repair such roads in such park as may be necessary, and ascertain and mark, with tablets or otherwise as he may determine, all lines of battle of the American troops and British troops engaged in the Battle of Kings Mountain and other historical points of interest pertaining to the battle which are within the boundaries of the park. The Secretary is authorized to employ such labor and services and to obtain such supplies and materials as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

SEC. 6. The authorities of any State which had troops engaged in the Battle of Kings Mountain may enter the Kings Mountain National Military Park for the purpose of ascertaining and marking the lines of battle of such troops; but before any such lines are permanently designated the position of the lines and the proposed methods of marking them by monuments, tablets, or otherwise shall be approved by the Secretary of War. Any State organization or individual may, with the approval of the Secretary of War, erect monuments or place tablets within such park.

SEC. 7. There is authorized to be appropriated the sum of $225,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, in order to carry out the provisions of this act.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote was laid on the table.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. Speaker, on this bill to create a military park at Kings Mountain, H. R. 14449, I want to say to the House that the War Department refused to survey the battle ground under the act of 1926, because they claimed it was sufficiently marked already. Then Congress passed an act directing a survey and report. An Army engineer and three prominent citizens of that region made the survey and report, and we have it here in the report on this bill. The War Department is again here reporting against it. We contend that the report of the commission justified the Military Affairs Committee in its recommendation that the bill be passed, and justifies this House in passing it, and I ask that it shall be passed and sent to the Senate. The splendid history of the battle written by Colonel Landrum, of the War College, under the direction of the War Department, and published in a House document, of which each Member has a copy in the document room, shows the importance of the battle, the strategic value in winning the Revolutionary War, and the saving of the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida to the United States, and also justifies the passage of the bill.

MONUMENTS IN THE STATE OF GEORGIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15656) to provide for the erection of monuments at Dalton, Resaca, Cassville, and New Hope Church, in the State of Georgia, in commemoration of these historic points and battle fields of the Sherman-Johnston campaign in 1864, and to provide for the erection of markers at other points of historic interest along the Sherman-Johnston line of march.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to commemorate the Sherman-Johnston campaign in the spring of 1864 and points of historic interest and battle fields along the Sherman-Johnston line of March in accordance with the plans of the Secretary of War as outlined in his report, transmitted to the Congress on December 12, 1928, Senate Document No. 187, Seventieth Congress, second session, there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $100,000 to defray the cost of monuments at Dalton, Resaca, Cassville, and New Hope Church in accordance with said plan, and the further sum of $2,500 to defray the cost of 50 markers at points of historic interest along said line of march, in accordance with the plan of the Secretary of War as outlined in said report.

SEC. 2. The erection of said monuments and markers shall be subject to supervision and direction of the Secretary of War, and the mileage of Army officers engaged in the discharge of these duties is authorized to be paid out of this appropriation.

SEC. 3. That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to accept on behalf of the United States donations of the lands required under the plan hereinbefore referred to for the erection of said monuments.

SEC. 4. The Secretary of War, subject to the approval of the President, shall have the power to make and shall make all needful rules and regulations for the care of said monuments and markers.

SEC. 5. That upon the completion of the erection of said monuments and markers the same shall be under the control of the Secretary of War.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

OSAGE INDIANS OF OKLAHOMA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 13407) relating to the tribal and individual affairs of the Osage Indians of Oklahoma.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOWARD of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill may be passed over without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

TIME OF HOLDING COURT IN THE STATE OF VERMONT

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3590) to amend section 110 of the Judicial Code.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 110 of the Judicial Code (being sec. 191, title 28, of the U. S. Code) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 191. (Judicial Code, sec. 110, amended.) Vermont: The State of Vermont shall constitute one judicial district to be known as the district of Vermont. Terms of the district court shall be held at Burlington on the second Tuesday in February, at Windsor on the second Tuesday in May, at Rutland on the second Tuesday in October, and at Brattleboro on the second Tuesday in December. Any stated term may, when adjourned, be adjourned to meet at any of the other stated places or at Montpelier or Newport. (Rev. Stat., sec. 531; March 3, 1911, ch. 231, sec. 110; 36 Stat. 1127; February 1, 1912, ch. 26, 37 Stat. 58.)

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMPACT BETWEEN THE STATES OF TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was Senate Joint Resolution (S. J. Res. 196), a resolution authorizing and requesting the President of the United States to take steps in an effort to protect citizens of the United States in their equitable titles to land embraced in territory to be transferred from the State of Oklahoma to the State of Texas and from the State of Texas to the State of Oklahoma as per decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Oklahoma v. Texas (1926, 272 U. S. 21, p. 38), and to give the consent of Congress to said States to enter into a compact with each other and with the United States relating to such subject matter.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

A joint resolution authorizing and requesting the President of the United States to take steps in an effort to protect citizens of the United States in their equitable titles to land embraced in territory to be transferred from the State of Oklahoma to the State of Texas and from the State of Texas to the State of Oklahoma as per decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Oklahoma against Texas (1926, 272 U. S. 21, p. 38), and to give the consent of Congress to said States to enter into a compact with each other and with the United States relating to such subject matter

Whereas on the 8th of December, 1919, the State of Oklahoma filed an original action in the Supreme Court of the United States against the State of Texas to have determined and located the true and correct eastern boundary of the Panhandle of Texas and the main western boundary of the State of Oklahoma; and

Whereas, as the final adjudication of the issue raised in said mentioned case, the Supreme Court of the United States has decreed the following:

"The boundary between the State of Texas and the State of Oklahoma constituting the eastern boundary of the Panhandle of Texas and the main western boundary of Oklahoma, is the line of the true one-hundredth meridian of longitude west from Greenwich, extending north from its intersection with the south bank of the South Fork of Red River to its intersection with the northern boundary line of the State of Texas as surveyed and marked upon the ground of John H. Clark, United States commissioner, under the act of June 5, 1858, chapter 92, or with a line running due east from the eastern terminus of the Clark survey if it is west of the meridian"; and

Whereas the said Supreme Court of the United States has appointed a commissioner to run, locate, and mark the true and correct boundary line between the said State of Texas and the said State of Oklahoma, and to establish permanent monuments along such boundary at appropriate distances, and to submit a report thereon to the court; and

Whereas the line declared by said Supreme Court to be the true and correct boundary between Texas and Oklahoma is located to the east of the line heretofore presumed to be the eastern Texas and western Oklahoma boundary; and

Whereas such new location of such boundary line has, or will, upon the approval of the report of the said locating commissioner, remove a tract of land heretofore presumed to be a part of the said State of Oklahoma and place same in the said State of Texas, and may, in addition, remove a tract of land heretofore presumed to be a part of the said State of Texas and place same in the said State of Oklahoma; and

Whereas the United States never owned or assumed to possess the title to any of the public land of the said State of Texas; and

Whereas the United States has heretofore presumed to own and did assume possession and has made disposition of most, if not all, the said land heretofore presumed to be in the said State of Oklahoma and affected by the said decision of the Supreme Court; and

Whereas in the exercise of the presumed ownership and undisputed possession of said land, the said Supreme Court of the United States, in its opinion, Oklahoma against Texas (1926, 272 U. S. 21, 38), said that it appeared that "prior to May 3, 1920, the United States had disposed of 20,657 acres in the strip in dispute by patents issued on homestead entries and public sales, for which it had collected $8,026; that 3,118 acres had been included in the school and universary grants to Oklahoma; and that there were then 318 acres in pending entries, leaving, it was estimated, 118 acres of vacant land"; and

Whereas, according to the record made and pursuant to the approval by the Supreme Court of the final report of the locating commissioner, it is now evident that a number of persons, with titles to such land possessions, based upon patents issued by the United States or by the said Sate of Oklahoma, will find that their residences and land possessions will have been transferred from said State of Oklahoma to said State of Texas and that the said State of Texas may not recognize the validity of such patents; and

Whereas other persons affected by such final report may find that their residences and land possessions will have been transferred from Texas to Oklahoma with their titles to such land possessions, based upon patents issued by said State of Texas, and which the United States or said State of Oklahoma may not recognize; and

Whereas other persons affected by the final action of said Supreme Court may find that other complications surround their land titles; and

Whereas to the end that persons now residing on, in possession of, or owning the land affected and to be affected by the final action of the Supreme Court may be properly and equitably protected in their vested interests in such land, and to the further end that the United States, the State of Texas, and the State of Oklahoma may be permitted to assume proper obligations and to receive proper remunerations: Therefore be it

Resolved, etc., That the President of the United States be authorized, and he is hereby requested, to confer with the Governor of the State of Oklahoma and with the Governor of the State of Texas to ascertain if negotiations will be entertained, to the end that an agreement may be reached between the United States, the State of Texas, and the State of Oklahoma as to the terms upon which said parties mentioned and in interest will accept the land, if any, transferred or to be transferred to each said party by the authority of the final decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the action styled Oklahoma v. Texas (1926, 272 U. S. 21, 38).

SEC. 2. In the event the Governor of the State of Texas and the Governor of the State of Oklahoma, acting for their respective States, agree to confer with the United States relative to the subject matter mentioned and described in section 1 hereof, the consent of Congress is hereby given to the said State of Texas and to the said State of Oklahoma to negotiate and enter into a compact or agreement respecting the matter in this act mentioned, and the President is herein authorized and requested to proceed with such conference and to formulate and suggets a compact or agreement to be presented to the Congress and to the Legislatures of the State of Texas and the State of Oklahoma for ratification and if, and when, ratified by each said contracting party, then each said party herein mentioned is hereby authorized to proceed to comply with the obligations in said compact or agreement assumed.

SEC. 3. No such compact or agreement shall be binding or obligatory upon either of the parties herein mentioned unless and until it has been ratified by the Congress and by the legislatures of each of the States herein mentioned.

With the following committee amendments:

Strike out all the whereas clauses as they appear on pages 1, 2, 3, and 4.

On page 5, line 19, strike out section 3 of the resolution.

On page 5, line 19, insert sections 3, 4, and 5, as follows:

"SEC. 3. That the President of the United States be authorized, and he is hereby requested, to confer with the Governor of the State of Texas and with the Governor of the State of New Mexico to ascertain if negotiations will be entertained to the end that an agreement may be reached between the United States, the State of Texas, and the State of New Mexico, as to the terms upon which said parties mentioned and in interest will accept the land, if any, transferred or to be transferred to each said party by the authority of the final decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the action styled New Mexico v. Texas. (Vol. 276, p. 557, U. S. Sup. Ct. Repts.)

"SEC. 4. In the event the Governor of the State of Texas and the Governor of the State of New Mexico, acting for their respective States, agree to confer with the United States relative to the subject matter mentioned and described in section 1 hereof, the consent of Congress is hereby given to the said State of Texas and to the said State of New Mexico to negotiate and enter into a compact or agreement respecting the matter in this act mentioned and the President is herein authorized and requested to proceed with such conference and to formulate and suggest a compact or agreement to be presented to the Congress and to the Legislatures of the State of Texas and the State of New Mexico for ratification and if, and when, ratified by each said contracting party, then each said party herein mentioned is hereby authorized to proceed to comply with the obligations in said compact or agreement assumed.

"SEC. 5. No such compact or agreement shall be binding or obligatory upon either of the parties herein mentioned unless and until such compact or agreement has been ratified by the legislatures of each of said States affected and mentioned herein and by the Congress of the United States."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Amend the title to read as follows: "Joint resolution authorizing and requesting the President of the United States to take steps in an effort to protect citizens of the United States in their equitable titles to land embraced in territory to be transferred from the State of Oklahoma to the State of Texas and from the State of Texas to the State of Oklahoma as per decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Oklahoma v. Texas (1926, 272 U. S. 21 p. 38) and from the State of New Mexico to the State of Texas and from the State of Texas to the State of New Mexico as per decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of New Mexico v. Texas (vol. 276, p. 557, U. S. Sup. Ct. Repts.), and to give the consent of Congress to said States to enter into compacts with each other and with the United States relating to such subject matter."

AMENDING CODE OF LAW OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill S. 4125, an act to amend chapter 15 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That chapter 15 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia is hereby amended by striking out the provisions of said chapter in entirety down to subchapter 1 thereof and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

"CHAPTER XV

"CONDEMNATION OF LAND FOR PUBLIC USE

"SEC. 483. Land for District of Columbia: Whenever land in the District is needed by the Commissioners of the District for sites of schoolhouses, fire or police stations, or for a right of way for sewers, or for any other municipal use authorized by Congress, and the same can not be acquired by purchase from the owners thereof at a price satisfactory to the officers of said District authorized to negotiate for the same, application may be made to the Supreme Court of the District by petition in the name of said commissioners for the condemnation of said land or said right of way and the ascertainment of its value.

"SEC. 484. Petition; what to show: Such petition shall contain a particular description of the property selected, with the names of the owners thereof and their residences, so far as the same may be ascertained, together with a plan of the land to be taken.

"SEC. 484a. The jury commission of the District of Columbia shall prepare a special list of persons having the qualifications of jurors, as prescribed by section 215 of this code, and being also freeholders of the District of Columbia. The jury commission shall from time to time as may be necessary write the names contained in said special list on separate and similar pieces of paper, which they shall so fold or roll that the names can not be seen, and shall place the same in a special box to be provided for the purpose, and shall thereupon seal and lock said special box, and after thoroughly shaking the same shall deliver it to the clerk of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia for safekeeping; but the same shall not be unsealed or opened except by said jury commission. From time to time, as ordered by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, or one of the justices thereof holding a special term for the trial for condemnation proceedings, the jury commission shall publicly break the seal of said special box and proceed to draw therefrom by lot and without previous examination the names of such number of persons as the said court may from time to time direct to serve as jurors in condemnation proceedings, and certify the names so drawn to the clerk of said court. At the time of each drawing of condemnation jurors from said special box there shall be in said special box the names of not less than 100 persons possessing the qualifications hereinbefore prescribed. Except as in this section specially provided, sections 198 to 217, inclusive, of this code, so far as the same may be applicable, shall govern the qualifications of said jurors in condemnation cases and the duties and conduct of said jury commissioners under this section. No person shall be eligible to serve as a condemnation juror who has served as such juror within one year.

"SEC. 485. Citation to owners: The said court holding a district court of the United States, shall thereupon cite all the owners and other persons interested to appear in said court, at a time to be fixed by the court, to answer said petition; and if it shall appear to the court that there are any owners or other persons interested who are under disability, the court shall give public notice of the time at which it will proceed with the matter of condemnation; and at such time, if it shall appear that there are any persons under disability who have appeared or who have not appeared, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for each such person, and shall thereupon order the jury commission to draw from the special box the names of as many persons as the court may direct, and from among the persons so drawn the court shall thereupon appoint a jury of five capable and disinterested persons, to which jury the court shall administer an oath or affirmation that they are not interested in any manner in the land to be condemned, and are not related to the parties interested therein, and that they will, without favor or partiality, and to the best of their judgment, appraise the value of the respective interests of all persons concerned in such lands.

"SEC. 486. The court, before accepting the jury, shall hear any objections that may be made to any member thereof, and shall have full power and authority to pass upon any such objection, and to excuse any juror or cause any vacancy in the jury, when empaneled, to be filled; and after the jury shall have been organized and shall have viewed and examined the land and premises affected by the condemnation proceeding, they shall proceed, in the presence of the court, to hear and receive such evidence as may be offered or submitted on behalf of the District of Columbia and by any person or persons having any interest in the proceeding. When the hearing is concluded, the jury, or a majority of them, shall return to the court, in writing, their appraisement of the value of the interests of all persons, respectively, in such land, where said appraisement shall be recorded. In making their decision, the jury shall take into consideration, whenever a part only is taken, the benefit to the remainder of the tract, and shall give their appraisement accordingly.

"SEC. 487. The said court shall hear and determine any objections or exceptions that may be filed to any appraisement of the jury and shall have the power to vacate and set any appraisement aside, in whole or in part, when satisfied that it is unjust or unreasonable, in which event the court shall order the jury commission to draw from the special box the names of as many persons as the court may direct, and from among the persons so drawn the court shall thereupon appoint a new jury of five capable and disinterested persons, who shall proceed as in the case of the first jury: Provided, That if vacated in part the residue of the appraisement as to the land condemned shall not be affected thereby: And provided further, That the objections or exceptions to the appraisement shall be filed within 20 days after the return of the appraisement to the court: And provided further, That the appraisement of the new jury shall be final when confirmed by the court.

"SEC. 488. If the appraisement of the jury should not be objected to by the parties interested it shall be confirmed by the court, or, if the appraisement of the new jury is confirmed by the court, the Commissioners of said District shall pay the amount awarded by the jury out of the appropriation made therefor or deposit the same in the same manner as directed in section 491n of said Code of Law, and thereupon the land condemned shall become and be the property of the District.

"SEC. 489. In every case involving the condemnation of land in the District of Columbia, at the close of the hearing thereof, the court shall fix a time in which the jury shall return its verdict or to report to the court the reasons why said verdict or appraisement can not be returned by the time fixed: Provided, That the court shall have the power, within its discretion, to extend the time for the return of the verdict or appraisement.

"SEC. 490. It shall be optional with the commissioners to abide by the verdict of the jury and occupy the land appraised by them, or, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the court in its order confirming the verdict, to abandon the same, without being liable to damage therefor.

"SEC. 491. Nothing herein contained shall affect any suit or proceeding heretofore begun, now pending, or hereafter to be instituted by or on behalf of the United States for the condemnation of land for any purpose; but all such suits and proceedings shall be conducted in accordance with existing law or such laws as hereafter may be enacted."

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SALE OF POST-OFFICE SITE AT BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17129) to authorize the sale of the Government property acquired for a post-office site in Binghamton, N. Y.

The Clerk read the title to the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. HOOPER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from New York [Mr. CLARKE] requested me to ask unanimous consent that this be passed without prejudice.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

POLICING OF MILITARY ROADS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4461) to provide for the policing of military roads leading out of the District of Columbia.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. SIMMONS. I object.

ADDITIONAL COTTON STATISTICS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4206) authorizing the Director of the Census to collect and publish certain additional cotton statistics.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, at the present time we have a permanent law that requires the Secretary of Agriculture to collect statistics of the grades and staple of cotton, the amount tenderable and untenderable. The agricultural appropriation bill carries an appropriation of $420,000 to gather these statistics for the next fiscal year. I feel that this bill just read from the calendar will only duplicate what already is being done and I shall feel compelled to object. I can see no justification for the additional expenditure.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman reserve his objection?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I will be glad to reserve it.

Mr. RANKIN. If the gentleman from Texas had been with us last year when we went into a thorough investigation of the manipulation of the cotton market he would not object to this bill. The law to which he refers does not cover this point at all. This bill is in the interest of the cotton growers of the South. It is necessary, and the legislation to which he refers does not take care of the situation.

Mr. CRAMTON. I am convinced by the statement of the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I have the highest respect for the judgment and opinion of the gentleman from Mississippi. He is a very able and useful Member of Congress, but I have investigated this matter thoroughly; I know the kind of reports that the Department of Agriculture issues each month. They issue it on the staple, the grades, and the amount that is tenderable and the untenderable, and Congress has appropriated $420,000 for that purpose. I feel as if we ought not to duplicate in the Department of Commerce what the Department of Agriculture is already doing under a mandatory law.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, if we were doing that, if we were protecting these people, it would be a different thing. In order to show the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BLACK] where he is absolutely wrong and where it is impossible to protect the cotton growers and the cotton trade under the present system, last year this very trouble arose because of the fact that these representatives of the Department of Agriculture had put their stamp of approval on cotton that was untenderable and permitted it to be offered on the exchange and drove the price of cotton down, to the economic injury of the cotton farmers.

These untenderable snaps and bollies—and you gentlemen from the spinning districts ought to be interested in this—are piling up into the carry-over, and it is heralded to the world every year that this amount of cotton is on hand, without the information being given that it is snaps and bollies. As a result, only a year or two ago, with this report coming out, the mills of the country took it for granted that that was tenderable cotton; and when finally the facts were known you people from New England paid the penalty of having to purchase your cotton after it had drifted into the hands of these speculators and manipulators, whom we are trying to curb by this legislation.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend in my remarks a portion of a table issued by the Department of Agriculture that does show the amount of cotton that is tenderable and the amount that is untenderable. I do that to show what is being done. I think this table will clearly show that the Department of Agriculture is now doing everything that is necessary to give complete information as to the grades, staple lengths, and other information of cotton ginned.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the RECORD by publishing a table issued by the Department of Agriculture. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, at this point I insert a portion of a table issued by the Department of Agriculture February 15, 1929.

Staple lengths of upland cotton

Staple in inches	Bales	Per cent
Total	13,866,431	99.82
13/16 and under	1,927,047	13.87
7/8	5,832,860	41.99
15/16	3,179,316	22.89
1 and 1 1/32	1,568,674	11.29
1 1/16 and 1 3/32	733,498	5.28
1 1/8 and 1 5/32	439,589	3.16
1 3/16 and 1 7/32	157,637	1.14
1 1/4 and over	27,810	.20

Estimated number of bales tenderable and untenderable on section 5 contracts

	Bales	Per cent
Total upland cotton	13,866,431	99.82
Total tenderable	11,549,363	83.14
Tenderable 7/8-inch to 1 1/32 inches, inclusive	10,211,373	73.51
Tenderable over 1 1/32 inches	1,337,990	9.63
Total untenderable	2,317,068	16.68

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER. This bill requires three objectors.

Mr. HUDSON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks to show that the very people to whom the gentleman from Texas refers passed and stamped——

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I object to the gentleman going into a general debate about my motives. I do not question his in the least. I feel it my duty to object.

Mr. RANKIN. I am not questioning the gentleman's motives, but since he is going to extend his remarks and put into the RECORD representation from the Department of Agriculture, I want to show that the very representatives to whom he refers passed as tenderable cotton, cotton that was untenderable, and helped to wreck the cotton market last year.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the manner indicated. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE OREGON CAVES, SISKIYOU NATIONAL FOREST

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Speaker, I submit a conference report for printing under the rules, on the bill (S. 3162) to authorize the improvement of the Oregon caves in the Siskiyou National Forest, Oreg.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Leave of absence was granted, by unanimous consent, to Mr. HOCH, for two days, on account of illness, at the request of Mr. SPROUL of Kansas.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS MEMORIAL LIGHTHOUSE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 354) authorizing the appropriation of the sum of $871,655 as the contribution of the United States toward the Christopher Columbus Memorial Lighthouse at Santo Domingo.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. LINTHICUM. Mr. Speaker, I should like to have the gentleman from Porto Rico allow this resolution go over without prejudice. This is a great deal of money, $871,655. I want to know what is to take place after this proposed 1,100-foot lighthouse is elected, what the cost of maintenance will be, and who is to pay same, as that is a vital matter to the Government of the United States. I want to know more about whether Columbus's bones are really at Santo Domingo and whether they are to be placed in this memorial tower. I wish time to go into the matter more thoroughly before this large expenditure is made beyond our borders. I, therefore, ask that it go over without prejudice.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Why, this comes from the gentleman's own committee.

Mr. LINTHICUM. I know it comes from my committee, but I excused myself from the vote.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I think this matter ought to be settled now. This putting it over is tantamount to defeating the measure. If the gentleman wants to assume the responsibility for objecting to this bill, simply because it is Christopher Columbus, let him do so.

Mr. LINTHICUM. It is not a question with me whether it is Christopher Columbus or anybody else. I am opposed to spending $871,000 in Santo Domingo unless I know who is going to take care of the memorial and the expense thereof and other information I have mentioned.

Mr. DYER. This comes from the gentleman's committee.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. LINTHICUM. I object.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr HUDDLESTON. Mr. Speaker, I object

Mr. DAVILA. Mr. Speaker, I hope this legislation will pass without further objection. Santo Domingo, the capital of the Dominican Republic, was the city that Christopher Columbus loved above all the places he discovered; the city where he had governed and the scene of his glories and misfortunes, and where in his last request he asked that his remains be buried. His bones are deposited in the mausoleum in the cathedral in Santo Domingo. In my opinion no one who has studied this matter very carefully can have any doubt of the genuineness of the claim of the Dominican people. The great historian Rudolph Cronau, who made a personal investigation and painstaking study of the matter, reached the conclusion that the true remains of Columbus are those found in 1877. This opinion is shared by all students of history who have visited the old cathedral in Santo Domingo and studied this question with impartiality. In spite of the fact that the evidence produced by the Dominican people in support of the genuineness of their claim is most convincing, there still exist in Spain some persons who claim that the true remains of Columbus were actually carried to Cuba upon the Spanish evacuation of the island and ultimately to Spain. In a speech which I delivered before the House on January 17, 1927, on the Columbus Lighthouse, I dealt with this matter very thoroughly. Believing it will be of interest, I will read the following notation which appears next to fragments of bone in exhibition at the Library of Congress:

These lockets contain minute fragments of bone that the late John Boyd Thacher, of Albany, N. Y. (whose collection of incunabula and autographs have been deposited in the Library by Mrs. Thacher), considered worthy of being described as a part of the true remains of Christopher Columbus, the discoverer of America. The documents upon which he based his opinion certify that the fragments were taken in 1877 from a leaden casket, inscribed with the name and title of Columbus, by the engineer Castillo, then in charge of repairs in the cathedral of Santo Domingo. Other equally minute fragments taken from the casket were sent by officials of the city and cathedral to Pope Leo XIII, to the municipality of Genoa, and to the University of Pavia.

As explained above, this notation refers to the remains found in 1877, and which were considered to be the true remains of the discoverer of America.

It was my privilege, Mr. Speaker, to visit the island of Santo Domingo in 1926. I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. William E. Pulliam, who was the originator of the project to erect a memorial lighthouse to Columbus and the members of the National Columbus Committee (Junta Nacional Colombina), Messrs. C. Armando Rodríguez, chairman, former member of the President's cabinet; Manuel de J. Troncoso de la Concha, former member of the President's cabinet; and Federica Llaverías, secretary. I discussed the matter very carefully with Mr. Pulliam, who is also a member of the National Columbus Committee. Accompanied by Messrs. Troncoso, Rodríguez, and Llaverías, I visited the cathedral and other ruins of the city of Santo Domingo.

They furnished me with all data regarding the remains of Columbus and with a copy of a book written by Mr. Emiliano Tejera, considered as the most complete work on the subject. In this book may be found copies of all documents in connection with the burial and exhumation of the remains of Columbus in the Cathedral of Santo Domingo. Mr. Tejera's presentation of the case is so convincing that it removes all doubts that may be entertained by the most critical student as to the final resting place of these remains.

There are no sound arguments to prove that the remains exhumed by Spain in 1795 are genuine. To those who still hold to this belief, I will say that if the remains of Columbus are not in Santo Domingo, there are no remains left of the discoverer of America. Spain can never prove the legitimacy of her claim. There is no evidence to support it. That claim is based only on the official documents written by Hidalgo, the secretary of the proceedings during the exhumation of 1795. It is also based on tradition, but this tradition affords no proof in favor of such claim. According to this tradition, the bones of Columbus were in a leaden casket in the presbitery on the gospel side, beside the wall of the high altar. It is true that the remains exhumed by the Spaniards in 1795 were on the gospel side, but it is also true that the remains exhumed by the Dominicans in 1877 were in the gospel side, where two small vaults were discovered, side by side, separated by a wall of about 6 inches in thickness. The eastern, or the one nearest the altar, was empty. Here was found the remains exhumed in 1795 by the Spaniards. The other vault contained a metallic case with the genuine remains of Columbus.

The document written by Hidalgo, which is the only proof in support of the Spanish claim, is a description of the exhumation, which reads as follows:

On December 20, 1795, a vault was opened located in the sanctuary on the right or gospel side, near the main wall and in the platform before the high altar. The capacity of the vault was about 1 cubic yard. Therein was found some thin sheets of lead about 11 inches long, which had evidently been parts of a box or case of that metal; also some bones of legs and arms and various other parts of some deceased person. These were collected in a large tray, together with all the dust, which, from the fragments of some small bones and its color, were recognized as the remains of the same corpse. The whole was placed in a gilded leaden coffin with an iron lock; this was locked and the key was delivered to the most illustrious archbishop.

Note that Hidalgo, who was officially designated as secretary-recorder of the proceedings at the time of the exhumation in 1795, confined himself to say that "some bones of legs and arms and various other parts of some deceased person were found." He does not say whose the disinterred remains were. He fails to mention in his writings the name of the great admiral. He was scrupulous and accurate in his description, and in the absence of evidence could not record whose these remains were.

To further enlighten the Members of the House on this subject, I wish to read some excerpts from my speech of January 17, 1927, above referred to.

This is the proof offered by those who sustain that the genuine remains of Columbus were disinterred in 1795. Not a single inscription, not a word, not even the smallest sign to show that those were the first admiral's remains—only the vague declaration that there had been found in a vault on the gospel side of the presbytery, among other things, pieces of shin and arm bones and various other parts of some deceased person. The official statement does not say, indeed no one could say, whose the disinterred remains were, but recourse is had in fixing their identity to a tradition which, while correctly holding that Columbus' remains rested on the gospel side of the presbytery, forgets the very important fact that Don Diego's remains were likewise buried in the same presbytery, by the side of his father and ancestor. This vault, whose contents were disinterred in 1795, was found to be empty in the exhumation carried out in 1877. This is affirmed by all who witnessed the ceremony, among them the United States consul, Mr. Paul Jones, who, in a letter written to Mr. W. A. Whitehead, secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society, affirms that—

"On the morning of the 10th of September last, two small vaults were discovered, side by side, separated by a wall of about 6 inches in thickness. The eastern, or one nearest the altar, was empty; the other contained a metallic case."

There were three bodies buried in the old presbytery, three separate vaults contained them, and three remains have been found. How can those who allege that Columbus's remains were exhumed in 1795, and admit that those found on the epistle side are those of his grandson, Don Luis, account satisfactorily for the absence of Don Diego's body?

Is it, perhaps, enough to submit to the study of the investigator the evidence of only two bodies when it is known that, as a matter of fact, three were buried in the old presbytery? The truth, when maimed and incomplete, may lead to deplorable blunders. And in this case it is evident that a grave error has resulted. No one can be blamed, however. Those who exhumed the remains in 1795 based their procedure on the inaccurate data provided by tradition. Perhaps they did not use all the caution and prudence which the transcendency of their act demanded, but undeniably they acted in good faith. Later developments have uncovered their mistake and revealed the truth. Spain will soon recognize this as a fact. Let us trust in the justice and nobility of the Spanish Nation, for that people which, inspired by Columbus's genius, fostered the undertaking which wrested a new world from the bosom of the sea will also know how to wrest the truth from the depths of doubt and error.

John Boyd Thacher, American historian, in volume 3, chapter 134, page 550, of his work entitled "Christopher Columbus," states as follows:

We know by historical records that Christopher Columbus, his son Diego, and his grandson Don Luis were all buried in this capilla mayor. We are told by unbroken tradition that Christopher Columbus was buried at the right of the high altar on the evangel or gospel side; and that opposite, to the left of the high altar, on the epistle side, was buried a member of his family. There is no historical record that another body—other than the three bodies above mentioned—was ever interred in the capilla mayor as originally constructed. There is no tradition that another body was ever interred in the original capilla mayor. That a contrary view has been held by some writers is due to confusing the original presbytery or Capilla Mayor with its enlarged area of 1783, or with its present grand proportions.

Asserting that he confidently believed that the vault discovered in 1877 "contained for more than 300 years the veritable remains of Christopher Columbus," the same author, in chapter 143, page 603, and under the title "The True Remains," has this to say:

We have now before us all the inscriptions connected with the leaden box and the remains. There were no inscriptions or marks whatsoever on the leaden box found in the little vault adjoining the one from which the present box was removed, and which was unearthed in 1783 and which, in 1795, was delivered to General Aristizabel for translation to Habana, and which, in 1899, was deposited in the cathedral at Seville. Here were two vaults lying side by side, one next the wall, the other adjoining on the side farther away from the wall. We will call the first A, the second B. A was next the door leading to the chapter chamber. B was near the door leading to the chapter chamber. The unmarked leaden box, discovered in 1783 on the gospel side of the altar, was described as taken from a vault near the door leading to the chapter chamber, not next it. History tells us that at least two of the Columbus family were buried in the capilla mayor of the cathedral—Don Christopher, the first admiral, and Don Diego, the second admiral. Tradition tells us there were three buried in that capilla mayor—Don Christopher, the first admiral; Don Diego, the second admiral; and Don Luis, the third admiral. Tradition tells us that the first admiral was buried on the right or gospel side of the high altar, and that another of the family was buried on the left or epistle side of the high altar. Some time previous to the repairs to the cathedral in 1783 there was discovered a vault which we will call vault C, on the left or epistle side of the altar in the old capilla mayor, and in it was found a leaden box with an inscription reciting that it contained the remains of Don Luis Columbus, but in describing the discovery the canon of the cathedral called him Don Luis, the brother of Christopher Columbus, meaning the Christopher Columbus who was the first admiral and the discoverer of the New World. There is no evidence that there ever were buried within the sacred precincts of this original capilla mayor any other bodies than those of the Columbus family, and the royal decree of Charles V gave that family the exclusive use of the said original capilla mayor. There never was any evidence that more than three members of the Columbus family were there buried. Those who assert that Don Bartholomew, the Adelantado, was buried in the cathedral, say so on the authority of the synod report of 1683, in which Don Luis is called the brother of Christopher Columbus, referring to the first admiral.

In December, 1795, vault B was opened and its unmarked box and the unidentified contents were transferred to Habana. In May, 1877, vault C was again found and opened, and from the inscriptions on the leaden box within the latter was identified as containing, as its legend recited, the mortal remains of "El Almirante, D. Luis Colon, Duque de Veragua, Marques de—"

On Sunday, September 9, 1877, there was found and opened a vault on the right or gospel side of the high altar, but removed somewhat from the wall. This vault was empty and was recognized as that from which, in 1795, a leaden box containing "parts of some defunct" was removed and transferred to Habana. This is our vault B. On Monday, September 10, 1877, there was found a vault on the right or gospel side of the high altar adjoining the principal wall and between that wall and the empty vault, from which was taken a leaden box with the inscriptions as above given. This is our vault A, and, we confidently believe, contained for more than 300 years the veritable remains of Christopher Columbus. If we approach this leaden box taken from vault A we will read the capital letters from left to right C. C. A., and we naturally interpret these to stand for Cristoval Colon Almirante—Christopher Columbus, Admiral.

Dr. Richard H. Clarke, an American jurist, contributed to Donahoe's Magazine of June, 1893, an article entitled "Where Is Columbus Buried?" From this article I quote the following:

With absolute impartiality I have examined the testimony and voluminous writings on both sides of this controversy, and the facts and arguments. The question is really narrowed down by the established laws of evidence. The historical fact is well established, and it is conceded by the Spanish advocates of Habana that the remains of Columbus had been deposited in the sanctuary of the Cathedral of San Domingo, on the right, or gospel side of the altar. By the rules of evidence, a state of facts or conditions of things once established or admitted is legally presumed to continue until a different one is proved or admitted. Hence it follows that the remains of Columbus are presumed still to repose in the Cathedral of San Domingo, unless the advocates of the Cathedral of Habana can prove incontestably their subsequent removal to Habana. Now, what proof is there of such a removal? The contents of a grave containing human remains were certainly removed in 1795. But there was no leaden case, only fragments of lead showing there may have been one formerly. There was no plate bearing a name or an inscription, and the grave was unmarked. There was nothing to show whose remains they were. Even the official act or document made on the occasion pointedly and significantly refrains from mentioning whose remains they were.

The remains of the great admiral were transported about the year 1541 to the New World he had discovered, and buried on the right-hand, or gospel side of the grand altar of the Cathedral of San Domingo, and there they reposed unquestioned until 1795, when the Spanish Government and the Duke of Veragua immediately and hastily, on the conclusion of the treaty of Basle, and to avoid the complications of leaving them on other than Spanish soil, undertook their removal. In the haste of the removal no other grave in that sanctuary was thought of but that of Columbus, and the first grave found on the gospel side was taken to be his, and the remains were immediately removed to Habana. There was no inscription by which to identify the remains, and yet should other graves be afterwards found under the sanctuary, or should another grave be found on the gospel side and especially under the bishop's chair, what authenticity could attach to the remains removed to Habana? But, still stronger, what if another grave should be found thus located bearing equal evidences of antiquity, and containing five separate and distinct inscriptions stating in unmistakable language that they were the remains of Christopher Columbus? Yet all these were found in 1877. Mr. Greenleaf, in his great work on the laws of evidence, states that the evidence derived from ancient tombs and the inscriptions thereon stands in the very first rank of proof in the court of justice. But see the corroborating circumstances: First, its location just where Columbus had been buried; second, the finding of the grave of Luis Columbus on the epistle side, just where it had been buried; third, the finding of the empty grave of Diego Columbus, just where it had been located, thus completing the identification of the grave of the three Columbuses; fourth, the remnants of corroded leaden plates in the grave of Diego showing that there had also been an inscription there, while the other two graves are clearly identified by appropriate inscriptions of Columbus and Luis Columbus; fifth, the high and unimpeachable character of the archbishop and other officials making the discovery and certifying it to the world; sixth, the witnesses called, in the persons of the consuls of foreign nations, to see and certify to the whole proceeding; seventh, the absence of all proof or identification of the remains removed in 1795 as those of Columbus; eighth, the judgment of learned historians and experts in favor of San Domingo; ninth, the current and living acquiescense of the world, as manifested by the fact that, when antiquarians, students, officials, historians, or tourists start out to visit and pay homage to the illustrious man who discovered American they go directly to San Domingo, and there only.

The Fifth International Conference of American States, held at Santiago de Chile, April 24, 1923, adopted a resolution recommending to the Governments of the American Republics the erection of a monumental lighthouse to be called Columbus on the coast of Santo Domingo, the capital of the Dominican Republic. The island of Santo Domingo was selected to honor the memory of the great discoverer because of its intimate association with his history.

It is obvious that these are bases of unquestionable importance for the erection of the memorial in Santo Domingo. That was the place selected by Columbus for a sepulcher; and the marvelous beauty and resources of the country, its historical associations, and numerous attractions all point to Santo Domingo as the place above all others in America as the site for such a monument. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh happily remarked, when he landed at the port of Santo Domingo City on his good-will flight in the Americas, that such a memorial to Columbus, "who showed the world new routes of travel," would be an inspiration to aviation, which would do so much for the development of the West Indies.

The New York Tribune, in its issue of October 12, 1923, in an editorial discussion of the subject, states:

* * * The one transcendent fact is that it was Columbus who effectively discovered America and opened these continents to European settlement. So the indubitable fact is that Santo Domingo was made by him the first European settlement in this hemisphere and was for years the seat of Spanish government, and it was also the place which he chose for his tomb. It will be a worthy enterprise for the people of every State, from Point Barrow to the Horn, to join in providing this proposed memorial to the man to whose genius all these States owe their existence.

Add to the above the fact that the remains of Columbus are in Santo Domingo and that in this memorial they will permanently rest and you will not escape the wisdom of lending your support to the proposed legislation.

In fact, the tribute so paid to his memory in providing this monumental sepulcher to his ashes should constitute the principal factor in erecting the proposed memorial in Santo Domingo.

PERMANENT BUILDING FOR RED CROSS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 392) to provide for the erection on Government land of permanent buildings for the use of the American National Red Cross.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That authority be and is hereby given to the American National Red Cross to erect upon square No. 172, in the city of Washington, D. C., in replacement of the temporary building or buildings erected thereon under Public Resolution No. 3, Sixty-fifth Congress (S. J. 61), a permanent building for the use of the American National Red Cross in connection with its work in cooperation with the Government of the United States.

SEC. 2. That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $350,000 as a part contribution to the erection of said building, which sum shall not be available until a like sum has been provided out of the funds of the American National Red Cross.

SEC. 3. That the money hereby authorized to be appropriated shall not be paid until the plan of the proposed building shall have been approved by a commission consisting of the chairman of the central committee of the American National Red Cross, the Secretary of War, the chairman of the Senate Committee on the Library, and the chairman of the House Committee on the Library. The plans of said building shall likewise be approved by the Commission of Fine Arts and erection thereof shall be under the supervision of the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital.

SEC. 4. That the cost of the removal of the temporary building or buildings shall be borne by the American National Red Cross without expense to the United States.

SEC. 5. That said permanent building shall remain the property of the United States but under the supervision of the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital, and the American National Red Cross shall at all times be charged with the responsibility, the care, keeping, and maintenance of said building without expense to the United States.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was agreed to was laid on the table.

CONGRESS OF MILITARY MEDICINE AND PHARMACY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 383) to provide for the expenses of delegates of the United States to the Congress of Military Medicine and Pharmacy to be held at London, England.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I object.

CENTRAL BUREAU OF THE INTERNATIONAL MAP OF THE WORLD

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 390) to provide for the annual contribution of the United States toward the support of the Central Bureau of the International Map of the World on the Millionth Scale.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the joint resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, etc., That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, an annual sum of $50 as a contribution on the part of the United States toward the expenses incurred by the Central Bureau of the International Map of the World on the Millionth Scale.

The resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

BRIDGE ACROSS LAKE CHAMPLAIN

The next business on the Consent Calendar was a bill (H. R. 17023) to extend the time for completing the construction of a bridge across Lake Champlain at or near East Alburg, Vt.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill for amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the time for completing the construction of a bridge across Lake Champlain at or near East Alburg, Vt., authorized to be built by the Gulf Coast Properties (Inc.) by the act of Congress approved May 14, 1928, is hereby extended three years from May 14, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 3, strike out the words "time for" and insert "times for commencing and."

On line 7, after the figures "1928," strike out the word "is" and insert the word "are" and after the word "extended" insert the words "one and."

On line 8, after the word "years," on line 7, insert the word "respectively."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendments.

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across Lake Champlain at or near East Alburg, Vt."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

REPORTS MADE TO CONGRESS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5621) to repeal paragraphs 127 and 128 of the act entitled "An act to discontinue certain reports now required by law to be made to Congress," approved May 29, 1928.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOOPER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman from Massachusetts what is the purpose for this bill?

Mr. DALLINGER. Mr. Speaker, earlier in the session the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments reported a law concerning the making of certain reports, and it was stated that that act applies only to reports that were typewritten. But it seems the general law requires the acts and proceedings and resolves of the Legislatures of the Philippine Islands and Porto Rico to be made to Congress. They are not typewritten reports. It was the intention of the committee to do away with that provision of law, because under the law the acts and proceedings of the Legislatures of Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands have to have the approval of Congress, and they are made in printed form and sent to the Speaker in the form of printed volumes of the acts and resolves.

Mr. HOOPER. I am satisfied that it is all right, and I have no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That paragraphs 127 and 128 of the act entitled "An act to discontinue certain reports now required by law to be made to Congress," approved May 29, 1928, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. The reports of the acts of the Philippine Legislature, referred to in paragraph 127 of such act of May 29, 1928, and the acts and resolutions of the Legislature of Porto Rico, referred to in paragraph 128 of such act of May 29, 1928, shall be continued as if such act of May 29, 1928, had not been enacted.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

BATTLE FIELDS IN THE VICINITY OF RICHMOND, VA.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15655) to provide for the study, investigation, and survey, for commemorative purposes, of battle fields in the vicinity of Richmond, Va.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to have made studies, investigations, and surveys of the battle fields in the vicinity of Richmond, in the Commonwealth of Virginia, including the battle field of Cold Harbor, Va., for the purpose of preparing and submitting to Congress a general plan and such detailed project as may be required for properly commemorating such battle fields and other adjacent points of historical and military interest.

SEC. 2. To enable the Secretary of War to carry out the provisions of this act, including the payment of mileage of officers of the Army and actual expenses of civilian employees traveling on duty in connection with the studies, investigations, and surveys there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $6,800, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be expended for the purposes of this act.

With a committee amendment as follows:

Page 2, line 2, after the word "interest," insert "in accordance with the classification set forth in House Report numbered 1071, Sixty-ninth Congress, first session."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSOURI RIVER AT OMAHA, NEBR.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15011) authorizing Charles B. Morearty, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Omaha, Nebr.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA, Mr. BEEDY, and Mr. SCHAFER objected.

Mr. DENISON. Will the gentleman from New York withhold his objection until I can explain it?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I do not think it would change my attitude. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard. The Clerk will report the next bill.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSOURI RIVER AT SOUTH OMAHA, NEBR.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 15012) authorizing Charles B. Morearty, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Missouri River at or near South Omaha, Nebr.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA, Mr. SCHAFER, and Mr. BEEDY objected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard. The Clerk will report the next bill.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE WABASH RIVER IN ILLINOIS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4451), an act entitled "An act authorizing Roy Clippinger, Ulys Pyle, Edgar Leathers, Groves K. Flescher, Carmen Flescher, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Wabash River at or near McGregors Ferry in White County, Ill.," approved May 1, 1928, is amended by striking out the words "at or near McGregors Ferry in White County, Ill., and a point in Posey County, Ind.," and inserting in lieu thereof "at or near New Harmony in Posey County, Ind., and a point in White County, Ill."

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill for the reasons set out in the department's letter, as printed in the committee's report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TILSON). Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 1 of the act entitled "An act authorizing Roy Clippinger, Ulys Pyle, Edgar Leathers, Groves K. Flescher, Carmen Flescher, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Wabash River at or near McGregors Ferry in White County, Ill.," approved May 1, 1928, is amended by striking out the words "at or near McGregors Ferry in White County, Ill., and a point in Posey County, Ind.," and inserting in lieu thereof "at or near New Harmony in Posey County, Ind., and a point in White County, Ill."

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

DEER AND VIRGIN ISLANDS, IN WHEELER LAKE, WIS.

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17062) to provide for the conveyance of Deer and Virgin Islands, in Wheeler Lake, Oconto County, Wis., to the county of Oconto, State of Wisconsin, for public-park purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I shall not object if the following amendment is accepted:

That the instrument of conveyance shall recite such reversionary right.

The purpose of that is that if later on the county should dispose of this land any purchaser would have notice of the reversionary right of the United States.

Mr. SCHNEIDER. Under the bill the county can not dispose of it.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Exactly; but I want that to be recited in the instrument of conveyance.

Mr. SCHNEIDER. I have no objection to the amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed, upon payment of $1.25 per acre, to transfer and convey to the county of Oconto, State of Wisconsin, the islands known as Deer Island, having an area of 0.82 acre, and Virgin Island, having an area of 1.77 acres, being situated in Wheeler Lake in section 22, township 33 N., range 16 E., fourth principal meridian, Oconto County, Wis., the same to be held and made available permanently by said county as a public park under such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper for use thereof by the public: Provided, That should the county of Oconto, State of Wisconsin, fail to keep and hold the said land for park purposes or devote it to any use inconsistent with said purposes, then title to said land shall revert to and be reinstated in the United States.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 9, strike out the word "reinstated" and insert the word "revested."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York offers an amendment which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. LAGUARDIA: Page 2, line 9, strike out the period, insert a comma, and add the following: "and the instrument of conveyance shall recite such reversionary right."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

TETON NATIONAL PARK IN THE STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4385) to establish the Teton National Park in the State of South Dakota, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I should like to offer a couple of amendments to this bill and with those amendments accepted I should not have any objection. In the first place the committee amendment provides:

That when a quantum, satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, of the privately owned lands lying within the area hereinafter described shall have been acquired—

And so forth. I do not believe we should authorize this monument until all of the privately owned lands within the area have been acquired. Therefore I suggest the striking out of lines 18 and 19 the words "a quantum, satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior." I think that is important. On page 10 there is a proviso which I do not understand. The proviso reads:

Provided, That in advance of the fulfillment of the conditions herein the Secretary of the Interior may grant franchises for hotel and for lodge accommodations under the provisions of this section.

I do not believe the Interior Department ought to be granting permits until this act becomes effective. I do not understand how that would operate and hence I suggest that the proviso go out.

Mr. COLTON. I will say, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from South Dakota is temporarily absent from the Chamber and he has been looking after this measure.

Mr. CRAMTON. Would the gentleman like to pass it over or pass it with those amendments and then see what the Senate does with it?

Mr. HUDSON. Mr. Speaker, I move that the bill be passed over without prejudice.

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Speaker, I will accept the amendments rather than to see the bill go over.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HUDSON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I wish the gentleman from Michigan might explain to the House why we should pass this bill creating a national park when a few minutes ago we refused to create a national park.

Mr. COLTON. This is not a national park. This bill as it now stands provides for the creation of this territory as a national monument and not a national park.

Mr. HUDSON. That is all right, but a layman looking at this bill would be misled.

Mr. CRAMTON. However, each bill should be considered on its merits.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is: Is there objection?

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to hear the suggestions which have been made by the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CRAMTON. I will state to the gentleman from South Dakota that I am suggesting that on page 5, lines 18 and 19, these words be stricken out, "a quantum, satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, of", so that before this bill becomes a law it would be necessary to acquire all of the privately owned land. That has been our policy with regard to all the parks recently created.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I will say to the gentleman in that connection that there is only a very small body of privately owned land within the new boundaries of this proposed monument and it seems to me hardly fair to require that all of the land be purchased, because the Government is not putting one cent into this proposed monument, but the State of South Dakota is building at least 30 miles of very difficult road in this area. For that reason I think the language of the bill ought to remain because it would seriously hamper us if it were taken out for the reason that there might be small tracts of land that it would be difficult for us to obtain.

Mr. CRAMTON. We are having difficulty in the administration of every national park and national monument with respect to privately owned land. In the Great Smoky National Park they have had to spend $10,000,000 to get land.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is: Is there objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I would be obliged to object unless those amendments are accepted.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. I will accept the amendments under those conditions, but they will ruin the bill.

Mr. CRAMTON. No; I do not think so.

Mr. COLTON. Mr. Speaker, I will accept the amendments.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the amendments proposed by the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRAMTON. Then, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That when 90 per cent of the privately owned lands within the areas hereinafter described shall have been acquired and transferred to the United States for park purposes, without expense to the Federal Treasury, such areas shall be, and are hereby, dedicated and set apart as a public park for the benefit and enjoyment of the people, under the name of the Teton National Park: Provided, That the State of South Dakota shall have first constructed the highways hereinafter described.

SEC. 2. That the areas to be included in said Teton National Park are situated in the State of South Dakota and lie within the boundaries particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of section 13, township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian; thence west 4 miles, thence north 1 mile, thence west 8 miles, to the southwest corner of section 6, same township and range; thence north 2 miles, thence west 2 miles, thence north 1 mile, thence west 1 mile, thence north 2 miles, to the northeast corner of section 16, township 2 south, range 16 east, Black Hills meridian; thence west 7 miles, thence south 1 mile, thence west 3 miles, to the northwest corner of section 24, township 2 south, range 14 east, Black Hills meridian; thence south 3 miles, thence east 1 mile, to the southeast corner of section 36, same township and range; thence south 3¾ miles, thence east 2 miles, thence north three-fourths mile, to the southwest corner of section 16, township 3 south, range 15 east, Black Hills meridian; thence east 2 miles, thence north 3 miles, thence east 6½ miles, thence south 2 miles, thence east one-half mile, to the northwest corner of section 13, township 3 south, range 16 east, Black Hills meridian; thence south 1 mile, thence east 1 mile, thence south one-half mile, thence east 1 mile, thence south one-half mile, to the southwest corner of section 20, township 3 south, range 17 east, Black Hills meridian; thence east 4 miles, thence south 1 mile, to the northwest corner of section 36, same township and range; thence east 6 miles to the northwest corner of section 36, township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian; thence south 1 mile, thence east 1 mile, thence north 1 mile, thence east one-half mile, thence north 3 miles, thence west one-half mile, to the point of beginning, and also the following-described tract of land:

Beginning at the northeast corner of section 8, township 4 south, range 13 east, Black Hills meridian, thence west 1 mile, thence south 4 miles, to the southwest corner of section 29; thence east 2¼ miles, thence north 2 miles, thence west three-fourths mile, thence north 1½ miles, to the center of section 9; thence west one-half mile, thence north one-half mile to the point of beginning.

That all of the publicly owned lands within the areas described are hereby dedicated and set aside for the purposes aforesaid, and the Secretary of the Interior, in his discretion, is hereby authorized to exchange alienated lands within said areas for unappropriated and unreserved public lands of approximately equal value in the State of South Dakota outside of said areas.

SEC. 3. That the establishment of said park is conditioned upon the State of South Dakota first constructing the following highways in accordance with specifications to be determined and provided by the Bureau of Public Roads in the Department of Agriculture: A highway commencing at the north boundary of the park in township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian, and extending down through Cedar Pass to Interior, thence northwesterly up Big Foot Pass, thence along the top of the rim within the park boundary to a point 9 miles south of Wall, there to join with a second highway to be constructed by said State from Wall through Scenic to a point within the park 10 miles south of Scenic, having a total length of approximately 40 miles.

SEC. 4. That the administration, protection, and promotion of said Teton National Park shall be exercised under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior by the National Park Service, subject to the provisions of the act of August 25, 1916, entitled "An act to establish a national park service, and for other purposes," as amended by the act of June 2, 1920. (41 Stat. L. 732.)

SEC. 5. That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit examinations, excavations, and gathering of objects of interest within said park by any person or persons whom he may deem properly qualified to conduct such examinations, excavations, or gatherings, subject to such rules and regulations as he may prescribe: Provided, That the examinations, excavations, and gatherings are undertaken only for the benefit of some reputable museum, university, college, or other recognized scientific or educational institution, with a view to increasing the knowledge of such objects and aiding the general advancement of geological and zoological sciences.

SEC. 6. That this act shall become effective if and when all of the above conditions shall have been fully complied with to the satisfaction of the President of the United States, who shall then issue a proclamation declaring that the conditions precedent herein required have been complied with, and said proclamation shall formally dedicate and set aside the areas herein described in accordance with the provisions of section 1 hereof.

With the following committee amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"That when a quantum, satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior, of the privately owned lands lying within the area hereinafter described shall have been acquired and transferred to the United States for monument purposes, without expense to the Federal Treasury, such areas shall be, and are hereby, dedicated and set apart as a national monument for the benefit and enjoyment of the people, under the name of the Badlands National Monument: Provided, That the State of South Dakota shall have first constructed the highways hereinafter described.

"SEC. 2. That the areas to be included in said Badlands National Monument are situated in the State of South Dakota and lie within the boundaries particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner section 13, township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian; thence west one-fourth mile; thence south 1 mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence west 1 mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north 1 mile; thence west 1¼ miles; thence north one-half mile; thence west 3 miles, to the northwest corner section 18, township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence north one-fourth mile; thence west one-half mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west three-fourths mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west three-fourths mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence west one-half mile; thence south one-half mile; thence west 1 mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west 1¼ miles; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north three-fourths mile; thence west 1¼ miles; thence north one-half mile, to the northeast corner section 2, township 3 south, range 16 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence west one-half mile; thence north 1 mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-half mile; thence west three-fourths mile; thence north one-half mile; thence west one-half mile; thence north 2 miles; thence west 8 miles; thence south one-half mile; thence west 1 mile; thence north one-half mile, to the northeast corner section 13, township 2 south, range 14 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence west 1 mile; thence south 1 mile; thence east one-half mile; thence south one-half mile; thence west one-half mile; thence south 2½ miles; thence east 1¼ miles; thence south 1 mile; thence east three-fourths mile, to the northeast corner section 7, township 3 south, range 15 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-half mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence west 1 mile; thence south 1¾ miles; thence east 1 mile; thence north three-fourths mile; thence east 2 miles; thence north one-half mile; thence east three-fourths mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence east one-half mile; thence north three-fourths mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north three-fourths mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence north one-half mile; thence east 1 mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east 1¾ miles; thence north one-half mile; thence west one-half mile; thence north one-half mile, to the northwest corner section 31, township 2 south, range 16 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence east one-half mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east 1 mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east 1¾ miles; thence south three-fourths mile; thence east three-fourths mile; thence south three-fourths mile; thence east one-half mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-half mile; thence south 1¼ miles; thence east three-fourths mile; thence north one-half mile; thence east one-fourth mile, to the northeast corner section 19, township 3 south, range 17 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence north one-half mile; thence east three-fourths mile; thence south 2 miles; thence east 1½ miles; thence north 1½ miles; thence east 2 miles; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-half mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-half mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-half mile, to the northeast corner section 30, township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence south three-fourths mile; thence east one-fourth mile; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east one-half mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence east 1¼ miles; thence south one-fourth mile; thence east 3 miles, to the northeast corner of section 36, township 3 south, range 18 east, Black Hills meridian.

"Thence north 1 mile; thence east 1 mile; thence north one-half mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north one-fourth mile; thence west one-fourth mile; thence north 1¼ miles; thence west one-half mile to the point of beginning.

"SEC. 3. That the establishment of said monument is conditioned upon the State of South Dakota first constructing the following highway in a manner satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior: A highway commencing at the corporation limits of the town of Interior, thence going in a northwesterly direction to and over Big Foot Pass, and through the region known as The Pinnacles; thence in a westerly direction to Sage Creek, being a total distance of about 30 miles.

"SEC. 4. That the administration, protection, and promotion of said Badlands National Monument shall be exercised under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior by the National Park Service, subject to the provisions of the act of August 25, 1916, entitled 'An act to establish a National Park Service, and for other purposes,' as amended by the act of June 2, 1920 (41 U. S. Stat. L. 732): Provided, That in advance of the fulfillment of the conditions herein the Secretary of the Interior may grant franchises for hotel and for lodge accommodations under the provisions of this section.

"SEC. 5. That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit examinations, excavations, and gathering of objects of interest within said monument by any person or persons whom he may deem properly qualified to conduct such examinations, excavations, or gatherings, subject to such rules and regulations as he may prescribe: Provided, That the examinations, excavations, and gatherings are undertaken only for the benefit of some reputable museum, university, college, or other recognized scientific or educational institution, with a view to increasing the knowledge of such objects and aiding the general advancement of geological and zoological science.

"SEC. 6. That this act shall become effective if and when all of the above conditions shall have been fully complied with to the satisfaction of the President of the United States, who shall then issue a proclamation declaring that the conditions precedent herein required have been complied with, and said proclamation shall formally dedicate and set aside the areas herein described in accordance with the provisions of section 1 hereof."

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to amend page 5 by striking out the words "a quantum satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior of."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CRAMTON to the committee amendment: On page 5, line 18, after the word "when," strike out the words "a quantum satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior of."

The amendment to the committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CRAMTON. And, on page 10, strike out the proviso in lines 8 to 11.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment by Mr. CRAMTON to the committee amendment: Page 10, strike out the proviso beginning on line 8, down to and including line 11.

The amendment to the committee amendment was agreed to.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SUBSTITUTE CLERKS IN THE POSTAL SERVICE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 4981) to include in the credit for time served allowed substitute clerks in first and second class post offices and letter carriers in the City Delivery Service time served as special-delivery messengers.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the second proviso of section 4 of the act entitled "An act reclassifying salaries of postmasters and employees of the Postal Service, readjusting their salaries and compensations on an equitable basis, increasing postal rates to provide for such readjustment, and for other purposes," approved February 28, 1925 (43 Stat. L. 1059; U. S. C., title 39, sec. 108), is amended to read as follows:

"That hereafter substitute clerks in first and second class post offices and substitute letter carriers in the City Delivery Service when appointed regular clerks or carriers shall have credit for actual time served, including time served as special-delivery messengers, on a basis of one year for each 306 days of 8 hours served as substitute or messenger, and shall be appointed to the grade to which such clerk or carrier would have progressed had his original appointment as substitute been to grade 1."

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, Calendar No. 1348 is a Senate bill that has been considered, and I ask unanimous consent that the corresponding House bill (H. R. 16305) be laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN NATIONAL PARK

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17101) to accept the cession by the State of Colorado of exclusive jurisdiction over the lands embraced within the Rocky Mountain National Park, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the State of Colorado, approved February —, 1929, ceding to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over the territory embraced and included within the Rocky Mountain National Park, are hereby accepted, and sole and exclusive jurisdiction is hereby assumed by the United States over such territory, saving, however, to the State of Colorado the right to serve civil or criminal process within the limits of the aforesaid park in suits or prosecutions for or on account of rights acquired, obligations incurred, or crimes committed outside of said park; and saving further to the said State the right to tax persons and corporations, their franchises and property on the lands included in said tract; and saving also to the persons residing in said park now or hereafter the right to vote at all elections held within the county or counties in which said tracts are situated; and saving to all persons residing within said park upon lands now privately owned within said park access to and from such lands, and all rights and privileges as citizens of the State of Colorado; and saving to the people of Colorado all vested, appropriated, and existing water rights and rights of way connected therewith, including all existing irrigation conduits and ditches. All the laws applicable to places under the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States shall have force and effect in said park. All fugitives from justice taking refuge in said park shall be subject to the same laws as refugees from justice found in the State of Colorado.

SEC. 2. That said park shall constitute a part of the United States judicial district for the State of Colorado, and the district court of the United States in and for said district shall have jurisdiction of all offenses committed within said boundaries.

SEC. 3. That if any offense shall be committed in the Rocky Mountain National Park, which offense is not prohibited or the punishment for which is not specifically provided for by any law of the United States, the offender shall be subject to the same punishment as the laws of the State of Colorado in force at the time of the commission of the offense may provide for a like offense in said State; and no subsequent repeal of any such law of the State of Colorado shall affect any prosecution for said offense committed within said park.

SEC. 4. That all hunting or the killing, wounding, or capturing at any time of any wild bird or animal, except dangerous animals when it is necessary to prevent them from destroying human lives or inflicting personal injury, is prohibited within the limits of said park; nor shall any fish be taken out of the waters of the park in any other way than by hook and line, and then only at such seasons and in such times and manner as may be directed by the Secretary of the Interior. That the Secretary of the Interior shall make and publish such general rules and regulations as he may deem necessary and proper for the management and care of the park and for the protection of the property therein, especially for the preservation from injury or spoliation of the ruins and other works and relics of prehistoric or primitive man, all timber, natural curiosities, of wonderful objects within said park, and for the protection of the animals and birds in the park from capture or destruction, and to prevent their being frightened or driven from the park; and he shall make rules and regulations governing the taking of fish from the streams or lakes in the park. Possession within said park or the dead bodies, or any part thereof, of any wild bird or animal shall be prima facie evidence that the person or persons having the same are guilty of violating this act. Any person or persons, or stage or express company, or railway company, who knows or has reason to believe that they were taken or killed contrary to the provisions of this act and who receives for transportation any of said animals, birds, or fish so killed, caught, or taken, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this act or any rule or regulation that may be promulgated by the Secretary of the Interior with reference to the management and care of the park or for the protection of the property therein, for the preservation from injury or spoliation of the ruins and other works and relics of prehistoric or primitive man, and timber, natural curiosities, or wonderful objects within said park, or for the protection of the animals, birds, or fish in the park, or who shall within said park commit any damage, injury, or spoliation to or upon any building, fence, hedge, gate, guidepost, tree, wood, underwood, timber, garden, crops, vegetables, plants, land, springs, natural curiosities, or other matter or thing growing or being thereon or situated therein shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, and be adjudged to pay all costs of the proceedings.

SEC. 5. That all guns, traps, teams, horses, or means of transportation of every nature or description used by any person or persons within said park limits when engaged in killing, trapping, ensnaring, or capturing such wild beasts, birds, or animals shall be forfeited to the United States and may be seized by the officers in said park and held pending the prosecution of any person or persons arrested under charge of violating the provisions of this act, and upon conviction under this act of such person or persons using said guns, traps, teams, horses, or other means of transportation, such forfeiture shall be adjudicated as a penalty in addition to the other punishment provided in this act. Such forfeited property shall be disposed of and accounted for by and under the authority of the Secretary of the Interior.

SEC. 6. That the United States District Court for the State of Colorado shall appoint a commissioner who shall reside in the park and who shall have jurisdiction to hear and act upon all complaints made of any violations of law or of the rules and regulations made by the Secretary of the Interior for the government of the park and for the protection of the animals, birds, and fish, and objects of interest therein, and for other purposes authorized by this act.

Such commissioner shall have power, upon sworn information, to issue process in the name of the United States for the arrest of any person charged with the commission of any misdemeanor, or charged with a violation of the rules and regulations, or with a violation of any of the provisions of this act prescribed for the government of said park and for the protection of the animals, birds, and fish in said park, and to try the person so charged, and, if found guilty, to impose punishment and to adjudge the forfeiture prescribed.

In all cases of conviction an appeal shall lie from the judgment of said commissioner to the United States District Court for the State of Colorado, and the United States district court in said district shall prescribe the rules of procedure and practice for said commissioner in the trial of cases and for appeal to said United States district court.

SEC. 7. That such commissioner shall also have power to issue process as hereinbefore provided for the arrest of any person charged with the commission within said boundaries of any criminal offense not covered by the provisions of section 4 of this act to hear the evidence introduced, and if he is of opinion that probable cause is shown for holding the person so charged for trial shall cause such person to be safely conveyed to a secure place of confinement within the jurisdiction of the United States District Court for the State of Colorado, and certify a transcript of the record of his proceedings and the testimony in the case to said court, which court shall have jurisdiction of the case: Provided, That the said commissioner shall grant bail in all cases bailable under the laws of the United States or of said State.

SEC. 8. That all process issued by the commissioner shall be directed to the marshal of the United States for the district of Colorado, but nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent the arrest by any officer or employee of the Government or any person employed by the United States in the policing of said reservation within said boundaries without process of any person taken in the act of violating the law or this act or the regulations prescribed by the said Secretary as aforesaid.

SEC. 9. That the commissioner provided for in this act shall be paid an annual salary as appropriated for by Congress, payable quarterly: Provided, That the said commissioner shall reside within the exterior boundaries of said Rocky Mountain National Park, at a place to be designated by the court making such appointment: And provided further, That all fees, costs, and expenses collected by the commissioner shall be disposed of as provided in section 11 of this act.

SEC. 10. That all fees, costs, and expenses arising in cases under this act and properly chargeable to the United States shall be certified, approved, and paid as are like fees, costs, and expenses in the courts of the United States.

SEC. 11. That all fines and costs imposed and collected shall be deposited by said commissioner of the United States, or the marshal of the United States collecting the same, with the clerk of the United States District Court for the State of Colorado.

SEC. 12. That the Secretary of the Interior shall notify, in writing, the Governor of the State of Colorado of the passage and approval of this act.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 3, line 24, strike out the words "the ruins and other works and relics of prehistoric or primitive man"; and on page 3, line 25, strike out the word "of" and insert the word "or"; page 4, line 19, strike out the words "the ruins and other works and relics of prehistoric or primitive man."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

Mr. TAYLOR of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Colorado offers an amendment which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment by Mr. TAYLOR of Colorado: Page 1, line 4, after the word "February" insert the figure "19."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BRIDGE BILLS

Mr. DENISON. Mr. Speaker, all of the bills on the next page of the calendar, Nos. 1351 to 1360, inclusive, are bridge bills, all of them being in the regular form, and most of them are merely consents for extension of time.

I ask unanimous consent that all of these bills in their order may be considered as having been read, the committee amendments agreed to, and the bills passed, and then insert the bills in the RECORD.

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object, Calendar No. 1352 authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to grant a right of way for a levee through the Carville Marine Hospital Reservation. That does not appear to be a bridge bill.

Mr. DENISON. I was mistaken. That is not a bridge bill. I had in mind bills reported by the subcommittee on bridges. We have jurisdiction over that matter, and the bill is merely to authorize the building of a new levee through this reservation, and there is a unanimous report from the committee.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Further reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I want to state that I am opposed to some of these bills for the reasons stated in the communication of the Department of Agriculture in the committee's report. I understand a majority of the House are in favor of these bills, so I shall not object to the request made by the gentleman from Illinois, because I know I am helpless in the matter.

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object, I want to state that I am opposed to most of these bills. I realize, however, that a majority of the Members of the House are in favor of the bills. I shall therefore not take it upon myself to obstruct the will of the majority, so I shall not object to the request, but I shall vote against all of the bills after the unanimous-consent stage has passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Clerk will report the bills by number.

There was no objection.

The Clerk reported the bills by number, as follows:

H. R. 16612, H. R. 16726, H. R. 16988, S. 4778, H. R. 15850, H. R. 16954, H R. 16955, H. R. 16959, H. R. 17007, H. R. 17075.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the committee amendments will be agreed to, the House bills ordered to be engrossed and read a third time and passed, and the Senate bill ordered to be read a third time, read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

The bills are as follows:

A bill (H. R. 16612) granting the consent of Congress for the construction of dam or dams in Neches River, Tex.

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress is hereby granted to the Neches Canal Co., Neches Water Co., Beaumont Irrigating Co., the city of Beaumont, Tex., or the city of Port Arthur, Tex., or any one or more of them, to construct a dam or dams across the Neches River, at points suitable to the interests of navigation, above the city of Beaumont, Tex.: Provided, That the work on such dam or dams shall not be commenced until the plans therefor have been filed with and approved by the Secretary of War and the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army: And provided further, That this act shall not be construed to authorize the use of such dam to develop water power or generate hydroelectric energy.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 16726) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to grant a right of way for a levee through the Carville Marine Hospital Reservation, La.

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to grant the board of commissioners for the Pontchartrain Levee district, an authorized agency of the State of Louisiana, or the State of Louisiana, a right of way through the Carville Marine Hospital Reservation, parish of Iberville, State of Louisiana, in such location as may be designated by him, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a new levee to replace the existing main-line levee in front of said reservation along the Mississippi River.

A bill (H. R. 16988) to legalize the sewer outlet in the Allegheny River at Thirty-second Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Be it enacted, etc., That the sewer outlet constructed in the Allegheny River at Thirty-second Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., by the city of Pittsburgh, be, and the same is hereby, legalized to the same extent and with like effect as to all existing or future laws and regulations of the United States as if the permit required by the existing laws of the United States in such cases made and provided had been regularly obtained prior to the construction of said sewer outlet.

SEC. 2. That any changes in said sewer outlet which the Secretary of War may deem necessary and order in the interest of navigation shall be promptly made by the owner thereof.

SEC. 3. That the right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

An act (S. 4778) authorizing the Moundsville Bridge Co. to construct a bridge across the Ohio River at or near the city of Moundsville, W. Va.

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes the Moundsville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Ohio River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near the city of Moundsville, W. Va., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. There is hereby conferred upon the Moundsville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

SEC. 3. The said Moundsville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, is hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

SEC. 4. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of West Virginia, the State of Ohio, any public agency or political subdivision of either of such States, within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 10 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 5. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the States or public agencies or political subdivisions thereof, or by either of them, as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 6. The said Moundsville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge file with the Secretary of War, and with the highway departments of the States of West Virginia and Ohio, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and upon request of the highway department of either of such States shall, at any time within three years, after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge. For the purpose of such investigation the said Moundsville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 7. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the Moundsville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 8. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000, shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the States in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required, and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway departments of the States in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with.

SEC. 9. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 15850) authorizing the Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce, a corporation, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across Agate Pass connecting Bainbridge Island with the mainland in Kitsap County, State of Washington

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, to improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce, a corporation, its successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across Agate Pass connecting Bainbridge Island with the mainland in Kitsap County, State of Washington, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Washington, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 10 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Washington, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to, provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. The Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce, a corporation, its successors and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Department of the State of Washington, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Washington shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge. For the purpose of such investigation the said Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce, a corporation, its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce, a corporation, its successors and assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000 shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the State in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with.

SEC. 7. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 16954) granting the consent of Congress to the Camp Manufacturing Co. to construct, maintain, and operate a railroad bridge across the Chowan River, in Gates and Hertford Counties, N. C.

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress is hereby granted to the Camp Manufacturing Co., a corporation of the State of Virginia, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a railroad bridge and approaches thereto across the Chowan River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at a point distant in a southerly direction along the center of said river about 1 7/8 miles from the Virginia-North Carolina line, in Gates and Hertford Counties, in the State of North Carolina, in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled

"An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906.

SEC. 2. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the Camp Manufacturing Co., a corporation of the State of Virginia, its successors and assigns; and any corporation to which, or any person to whom, such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or which shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation.

SEC. 3. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 16955) granting the consent of Congress to the Camp Manufacturing Co. to construct, maintain, and operate a railroad bridge across the Meherrin River, in Hertford County, N. C.

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress is hereby granted to the Camp Manufacturing Co., a corporation of the State of Virginia, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a railroad bridge and approaches thereto across the Meherrin River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at a point distant in a northwesterly direction along the center of said river about 4.6 miles from the confluence of said Meherrin River with the Chowan River, in Hertford County, in the State of North Carolina, in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906.

SEC. 2. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the Camp Manufacturing Co., a corporation of the State of Virginia, its successors and assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or which shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation.

SEC. 3. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 16959) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Tiptonville, Tenn.

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of the bridge across the Mississippi River, at or near Tiptonville, Tenn., authorized to be built by J. T. Burnett, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, by the act of Congress approved May 14, 1928, are hereby extended one and three years, respectively, from May 14, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 17007) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Hickman, Ky.

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Hickman, Ky., authorized to be built by A. Robbins, of Hickman, Ky., his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, by the act of Congress approved March 16, 1928, are hereby extended one and three years, respectively, from March 16, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 17075) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Red River of the North at or near Fargo, N. Dak.

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Red River of the North between Fargo, N. Dak., and Moorhead, Minn., authorized to be built by the State of North Dakota, the State of Minnesota, the county of Cass, N. Dak., the county of Clay, Minn., the city of Fargo, N. Dak., and the city of Moorhead, Minn., or any one or more of them, by an act of Congress approved May 1, 1928, are hereby extended one and three years, respectively, from May 1, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

BRIDGE BILLS

Mr. DENISON. Mr. Speaker, all the bills on the next page are bridge bills, with the exception of Calendar No. 1566 and Calendar No. 1569. They were reported by the same committee but are not bridge bills. I ask unanimous consent that the other bills on that page be considered as having been read, the committee amendments agreed to the House bills engrossed and passed, and the Senate bill read a third time, and passed.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I want to state that I am opposed to some of these bills for the reasons given in the objections by the Department of Agriculture contained in the report of the committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the numbers of the bills and they will be printed in the RECORD.

The Clerk read the numbers, as follows:

H. R. 17127, H. R. 17140, H. R. 17141, H. R. 16838, H. R. 16982, H. R. 13687, H. R. 13705, H. R. 17185.

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The House bills were ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, were read the third time, and passed.

The Senate bills were ordered to be read the third time and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The bills above mentioned are as follows:

A bill (H. R. 17127) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Des Moines River at or near Croton, Iowa

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of the bridge across the Des Moines River at or near Croton, Iowa, authorized to be built by Henry Horsey, Winfield Scott, A. L. Ballegoin, and Frank Schee, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, by the act of Congress approved May 22, 1928, are hereby extended one and three years, respectively, from May 22, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 17140) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mahoning River at or near Warren, Trumbull County, Ohio

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mahoning River at or near the city of Warren, Trumbull County, Ohio, authorized to be built by the board of county commissioners of Trumbull County, Ohio, by an act of Congress approved March 12, 1928, are hereby extended one and three years, respectively, from March 12, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 17141) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of an overhead viaduct across the Mahoning River at or near Niles, Trumbull County, Ohio

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of an overhead viaduct across the Mahoning River at or near Niles, Trumbull County, Ohio, authorized to be built by the board of county commissioners of Trumbull County, Ohio, by an act of Congress approved July 1, 1926, heretofore extended by an act of Congress approved May 26, 1928, are hereby further extended one and three years, respectively, from May 26, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

A bill (H. R. 16838) granting the consent of Congress to Llewellyn Evans, J. F. Hickey, and B. A. Lewis, their survivors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across Puget Sound, within the county of Pierce, State of Washington, at or near a point commonly known as the Narrows

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, Llewellyn Evans, J. F. Hickey, and B. A. Lewis (and in case of the death of any thereof, the survivors or survivor thereof), hereinafter called the grantees, and their assigns, be, and they are hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across Puget Sound, within the county of Pierce, State of Washington, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near a point commonly known as the Narrows, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Washington, or any municipality or political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interest in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interest in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Washington, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are charged for the use thereof, the rates of tolls shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of tolls shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. The grantees and their assigns shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War, and with the Highway Department of the State of Washington, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Washington shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge. For the purpose of such investigation the said grantees and their assigns shall make available all records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the grantees and their assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 5, strike out the words "(and in"; same page, strike out all of line 6; also same page, line 7, strike out the word "thereof)"; and after the word "their" insert the words "heirs, legal representatives, and."

Page 2, line 20, strike out the word "twenty" and insert the word "five" in lieu thereof.

Page 3, line 12, after the word "are," insert the word "thereafter."

Page 5, after line 14, add the following as a new section:

"SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act, and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000, shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the States in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with."

Page 5, line 15, correct "Sec. 6" to read "Sec. 7."

The title was amended.

A bill (H. R. 16982) authorizing J. E. Robinson, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Tombigbee River at or near Coffeeville, Ala.

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, J. E. Robinson, his successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Tombigbee River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation at or near Coffeeville, Clarke County, Ala., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Alabama, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interest in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Alabama or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are charged for the use thereof, the rates of tolls shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient to pay the cost of acquiring the bridge and its approaches shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of tolls shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. J. E. Robinson, his successors and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge file with the Secretary of War, and with the Highway Department of the State of Alabama, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Alabama shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said J. E. Robinson, his successors and assigns, shall make available all records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to J. E. Robinson, his successors and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendments:

Amend the bill as follows:

Page 1, line 5, strike out the word "successors" and insert the words "heirs, legal representatives," in lieu thereof.

Page 2, line 15, strike out the word "twenty" and insert the word "five" in lieu thereof.

Page 3, line 6, after the word "are," insert the word "thereafter."

Line 11, after the word "therefor," insert a comma and the words "including reasonable interest and financing cost,".

Line 14, strike out the words "to pay the".

Line 15, strike out the words "cost of acquiring the bridge and its approaches" and insert the words "for such amortization" in lieu thereof.

Line 21, after the word "for," insert the words "acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for".

Page 4, line 1, strike out the word "successors" and insert the words "heirs, legal representatives," in lieu thereof.

Line 16, strike out the word "successors" and insert the words "heirs, legal representatives," in lieu thereof.

Page 5, line 1, strike out the word "successors" and insert the words "heirs, legal representatives," in lieu thereof.

After line 7 add the following as a new section:

"SEC. 6. All contracts made in connection with the construction of the bridge authorized by this act and which shall involve the expenditure of more than $5,000, shall be let by competitive bidding. Such contracts shall be advertised for a reasonable time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the State in which the bridge is located and in the vicinity thereof; sealed bids shall be required and the contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Verified copies or abstracts of all bids received and of the bid or bids accepted shall be promptly furnished to the highway department of the State in which such bridge is located. A failure to comply in good faith with the provisions of this section shall render null and void any contract made in violation thereof, and the Secretary of War may, after hearings, order the suspension of all work upon such bridge until the provisions of this section shall have been fully complied with.

Page 5, line 8, correct "Sec. 6" to read "Sec. 7."

A bill (H. R. 13687) authorizing H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Black River at or near Jonesville, La.

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Black River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Jonesville, La., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Louisiana, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Louisiana, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Department of the State of Louisiana a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Louisiana shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall make available all of his records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge, shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 4, line 20, strike out the word "its" and insert the word "his" in lieu thereof.

A bill (H. R. 13705) authorizing H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Ouachita River at or near Harrisonburg, La.

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Ouachita River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Harrisonburg, La., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

SEC. 2. After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Louisiana, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

SEC. 3. If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Louisiana, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge and its approaches under economical management, of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

SEC. 4. H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Department of the State of Louisiana, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Highway Department of the State of Louisiana shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

SEC. 5. The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

SEC. 6. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 4, line 20, strike out the word "its" and insert the word "his" in lieu thereof.

A bill (H. R. 17185) to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Cairo, Ill.

Be it enacted, etc., That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Cairo, Ill., authorized to be built by the Cairo Association of Commerce, by the act of Congress approved March 6, 1928, are hereby extended one and three years, respectively, from March 6, 1929.

SEC. 2. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

RESTRICTING FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

The next business on the Consent Calendar was Senate joint resolution (S. J. Res. 201) restricting the Federal Power Commission from issuing or approving any permits or licenses affecting the Colorado River or any of its tributaries, except the Gila River.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Senate joint resolution (S. J. Res. 201) restricting the Federal Power Commission from issuing or approving any permits or licenses affecting the Colorado River or any of its tributaries, except the Gila River

Resolved, etc., That the Federal Power Commission is hereby directed not to issue or approve any permits or licenses under the provision of the act of Congress approved June 10, 1920 (41 Stat. 1063, known as the Federal water power act), upon or affecting the Colorado River or any of its tributaries, except the Gila River and its tributaries, in the States of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona, and California, unless and until the act approved December 21, 1928, known as the Boulder Canyon project act becomes effective as therein provided.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 1, line 10, after the word "California," strike out "unless and until," and in lieu thereof insert "until the 5th day of March, 1930, unless prior thereto."

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was read the third time and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMISSIONED PERSONNEL OF COAST GUARD

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 17060) to readjust the commissioned personnel of the Coast Guard, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HUDDLESTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, this is a worthy bill, in my judgment, with the exception of section 4, which is not really germane to the other purposes of the bill. I think it is entirely proper to pass the bill, but I think that section 4 should be stricken out.

Mr. PARKER. I will accept an amendment to that effect.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That on and after July 1, 1929, the total number of commissioned officers on the active list, regular and temporary combined (exclusive of the commandant and commissioned warrant officers and additional numbers that have been authorized by law), authorized in the Coast Guard shall be 588, consisting of 526 line officers distributed in the proportion of 4 in the grade of captain, to 8 in the grade of commander, to 15 in the grade of lieutenant commander, to 30 in the grade of lieutenant, to 43 in the grades of lieutenant (junior grade) and ensign, inclusive, and of 1 engineer in chief, 8 captains (engineering), 16 commanders (engineering), and 18 lieutenant commanders (engineering), and of 5 constructors and 14 district commanders: Provided, That the number of temporary commissioned officers, not above the rank of lieutenant, within the total of commissioned officers herein authorized shall be as the President shall determine: And provided further, That notwithstanding the number of officers herein authorized in the grades of captain (engineering) and commander (engineering), respectively, an engineer officer may be promoted, subject to examination as provided by law, to either of these grades at the same time as a line officer of the same length of total service in the Coast Guard is promoted to either of the corresponding grades in the line.

SEC. 2. That each vacancy occurring at the bottom of the list of commissioned engineer officers on the active list after July 1, 1929, shall operate to reduce by one the total number of engineer officers and to increase by one the total number of line officers authorized by section 1 of this act.

SEC. 3. In making any computation required or authorized by or pursuant to this act there shall be excluded from consideration those officers carried by law as additional numbers, and whenever a final fraction of one-half or more occurs the whole number next above shall be regarded as the authorized number.

SEC. 4. That hereafter the commandant of the Coast Guard shall, while so serving, have corresponding rank and shall receive the same pay and allowances as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by or in pursuance of law for chiefs of bureaus of the Navy Department; and hereafter a captain detailed by the Secretary of the Treasury as assistant commandant shall have, while serving as assistant commandant, the rank, pay, and allowances of a rear admiral (lower half) of the Navy.

SEC. 5. That the Secretary of the Treasury, in his discretion, is hereby authorized to furnish an escort, not to exceed one person, to the place of burial for the body of an officer or enlisted man who has lost his life in the Coast Guard. Such expenses as are incurred for this purpose shall be paid from the proper appropriation.

SEC. 6. That nothing contained in this act shall be construed to reduce the rank, pay, or allowances of any commissioned officer of the Coast Guard as now provided by law.

SEC. 7. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Mr. HUDDLESTON. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HUDDLESTON: Page 3, beginning with line 5, strike out all of section 4 down to and including line 13 on page 3.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be authorized to renumber the sections.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

RATING OF FLYING SCHOOLS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5350), to amend the air commerce act of 1926 with reference to the examination and rating of schools giving instruction in flying.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 3 (d) of the air commerce act of 1926 is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and adding a semicolon and the following: "and provide for the necessary examination and rating of civilian schools giving instruction in flying, as to the adequacy of the course of instruction, as to the suitability and airworthiness of the equipment, and as to the competency of the instructors.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 6, strike out the word "necessary."

Page 1, line 10, insert: "The examinations and ratings provided for in this paragraph shall only be made upon request of the owners of representatives of the air navigation facilities or schools."

The committee amendments were agreed to and the bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

SALE OF INTEREST OF UNITED STATES IN COLUMBIA ARSENAL PROPERTY, TENNESSEE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16214) authorizing the sale of all of the interest and rights of the United States of America in the Columbia Arsenal property, situated in the ninth civil district of Maury County, Tenn., and providing that the net fund be deposited in the military post construction fund, and for the repeal of Public Law No. 542 (H. R. 12479), Seventieth Congress.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. ESLICK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I withhold my objection. It is based upon the adverse report of the department which states that the appraisal of the property shows that it is worth $30,000, and the effect of this bill would be to sell it for $10,000 instead of the appraised value. I am frank to say that I have not made a thorough study such as I would like to, because things are coming here so fast that it is not possible to do it. Without further study or information, I could not give my consent to the passage of the bill.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I think the gentleman is under a misapprehension.

Mr. ESLICK. If the gentleman will permit me to make a little explanation I think he will be satisfied. The life of a magnificent military school is involved in this matter.

The Government of the United States has only a contingent interest in the matter, the right of visitation by the Secretary of War, the right to prescribe the curriculum. In case it is not continued as a military school it reverts to the Government. The appraisal is of the fee to the land and not of the contingent interest. There is ample testimony showing that the consideration of it is full and fair.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. To put it in a nutshell, the land in fee simple is worth $30,000. All the interest the United States has is the contingent remainder.

Mr. ESLICK. This started from the bare walls of an arsenal, and it is now a school of 200 pupils.

Mr. CRAMTON. Suppose a year after it is sold, it is devoted to another purpose.

Mr. ESLICK. Its purpose is to realize money to build and extend the school. The lands were given to the Government. The funds were raised by the citizens of Columbia. The citizens of Columbia have spent more than a hundred thousand dollars in improving the property.

Mr. CRAMTON. How is the property owned? Is it a private corporation with an element of profit.

Mr. ESLICK. No; it is a school corporation.

Mr. CRAMTON. And with no element of profit involved?

Mr. ESLICK. No; there is no element of profit in it.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to sell to and to make proper deed of conveyance to the Columbia Military Academy, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Tennessee, all of the title, interest, limitations, conditions, restrictions, reservations, and rights owned and held by the United States of America as defined in Public Act No. 152 of the second session of the Fifty-eighth Congress and in the deed of the United States of America to the lands conveyed therein to the Columbia Military Academy of record in book 105, volume 4, page 495, in the register's office of Maury County, Tenn. Said limitations, conditions, restrictions, reservations, and rights are defined in said public act and deed as follows:

That the Secretary of War shall be a visitor to said school, and have and exercise full rights of visitation, and he shall have the right and authority in his discretion, as the public interest requires, to prescribe the military curriculum of said school, and to enforce compliance therewith, and upon refusal or failure of the authorities of said school to comply with the rules and regulations so prescribed by the Secretary of War, or the terms of the act, he is authorized to declare that the estate of the grantee has terminated and the property shall revert to the United States, and the Secretary of War is authorized thereupon to take possession of said property in behalf of the United States, and shall further reserve to the United States the right to use such lands for military purposes at any time upon demand of the President of the United States.

Said lands to which said limitations, conditions, restrictions, reservations, and rights attach are described as situated in the ninth civil district of Maury County, Tenn., and were formerly used as an arsenal and known as the Columbia Arsenal property, the same comprising about 67 acres, more or less, and generally bounded by the Hampshire Pike, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, the Mount Pleasant Pike, and a public road connecting the two pikes above named.

All of said limitations, conditions, restrictions, reservations, and rights of the United States of America, whether legal or equitable, vested or contingent, in and to said lands as specified and defined in said public law and deed and belonging to the United States of America will pass to the purchaser under the sale herein authorized.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of War shall accept the bid of the Columbia Military Academy (Inc.) to purchase the rights of the United States of America in and to said property hereinabove defined, said bid being for the sum of $10,000, and to be paid in cash.

SEC. 3. That the proceeds of said sale shall be deposited in the Treasury to the fund known as the military post construction fund, after first paying the expenses, if any, of said sale.

SEC. 4. Public Law No. 542, Seventieth Congress (H. R. 12479), is hereby repealed.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 4, strike out the word "the" and insert "The".

Page 3, line 15, strike out "the" and insert "The" and strike out the "Incorporated" and insert "a body corporate".

The committee amendments were agreed to and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

RENTAL OF NEW ORLEANS ARMY SUPPLY BASE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16701) to provide for the payment of rental to the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans of the property known as the New Orleans Army Supply Base, New Orleans, La.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. BLACK of New York. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I want to know if my friend from Louisiana, [Mr. O'CONNOR] took this up with General Jackson. [Laughter.]

Mr. O'CONNOR of Louisiana. Yes. It has the approval of the hero of Chalmette. [Applause.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, rental in the sum of $38,638.40 for the use and occupancy of the property known as the New Orleans Army Supply Base, New Orleans, La., said rental being for the period from August 1, 1924, on which date the United States ceased to pay rental for the said property, to August 26, 1927, on which date the United States tendered a check in payment for the purchase of the said property to the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, from which the same was purchased, said rental being at the rates provided for in contracts between the United States of America and the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, dated May 29, 1918, and June 19, 1918.

SEC. 2. That the sum of $38,638.40 is hereby authorized to be appropriated for the purposes set forth in section 1 out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

With a committee amendment as follows:

Page 1, line 5, strike out "$38,638.40" and insert in lieu thereof "$39,686.54."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

AMENDMENT OF THE WORLD WAR VETERANS' ACT, 1924

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16845) to amend the World War veterans' act, 1924.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota and Mr. CRAMTON reserved the right to object.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, in my study of the bill I note that a bill that I had pending before the committee for a long time—it is not of far-reaching importance—is not included in this bill. I will be glad to know if it would be objectionable to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. RANKIN] to include bronchiactisis. It covers a worthy case, a pitiable case, that has been called to my attention. It would come in on page 3, in line 22, and also at a later place, add the word bronchiactisis.

Mr. RANKIN. I will be glad to do that.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, this is the first pension legislation that has been brought up affecting veterans of the World War. I do not like to object to it, because I would like to have the entire matter considered by the House. This bill would provide a cash pension of $100 per month for men who received no injuries in the war, but who in civil life since the war became permanently disabled by disease prior to January 31, 1929, and with the hospitalization provided by the act, which costs the Government $4 per day, it would provide a total pension in non-service-connected disability cases of $220 a month. It is very discriminatory, inasmuch as it takes care only of those who are disabled by particular diseases, and it does not provide for those who happened to incur their injuries by accident.

If no objection is made, I shall not object to the consideration of the bill, but before such an act is passed without committee hearings—and there were none on this bill—without any estimate of cost from any Government department—and there was no estimate of cost in this bill—I shall insist that a quorum shall be present.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield there?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Yes.

Mr. SCHAFER. Under the provisions of this bill a man who received wounds at the Battle of Paris would receive a pension of $220 a month?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. The gentleman is correct in saying that any member of the military or naval forces would under certain conditions receive a total flat pension of $220.

Mr. SCHAFER. Even if he got that disability after the war?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Yes.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Yes.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Does this take care of men who are blind as the result of venereal disease?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Certainly; if the disease was incurred before the 1st of January, 1929.

There is one other thing to which I wish to call the attention of the House. The House passed a rule in January of this year providing that in a committee report there must be shown in the report the changes proposed in existing law. This is a bill affecting section 200 of the World War veterans' act and a proposed law of four pages. It is in absolute contravention of that rule of the House which was recently adopted. I shall make no objection if this House and if this Congress wishes to pass a pension program which admittedly on its face will cost billions of dollars, and of which the House admittedly has no knowledge, but I shall certainly call for a quorum and have the Members present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. WOOD. I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

Mr. RANKIN. Will the gentleman from Indiana withhold his objection for a moment?

Mr. WOOD. Yes. But we ought to know the cost. We have passed many of these bills without knowing the cost.

Mr. RANKIN. The gentleman from South Dakota has not stated correctly what this bill does. Some of his statements are absurd. It is unfair to permit him to go ahead and make a record of that kind, which puts this bill in an entirely wrong light in order to enable him to tie it up and induce some one to object to its consideration.

This is no more of a pension bill than are the other compensation bills we have passed. If there is any bill that ought to be passed for the benefit of ex-service men this is one of them. It is to take care of a small number of ex-service men who are totally and permanently disabled and who are not being taken care of now.

Mr. SIMMONS. This is to increase the pensions of men who are now receiving pensions. Will the gentleman explain about that?

Mr. RANKIN. I will state for the benefit of the gentleman from Nebraska that we have a great many men who attempted to carry on after the war closed. Some of them received their disabilities in the war. Many of them did not know how to make application for compensation. As a result, in the course of time they broke down. There are not very many of them, but there are a few who are now lying flat on their backs, drawing no compensation. Because of the technical rulings laid down by the Veterans' Bureau, because they did wait and did not press their claims just as soon as they were discharged, they are now deprived of compensation. This bill would take care of them.

Mr. SIMMONS. This bill waives the question of service-connected origin, does it not?

Mr. RANKIN. It presumes service origin.

Mr. SIMMONS. So, under this bill, if a man were injured in an automobile wreck or totally disabled as the result of any kind of an accident, like falling off a house, before January 1, 1929, and can prove total permanent disability, he would get $100 a month, would he not?

Mr. RANKIN. No; the gentleman has misread the amendment. That was the original provisions of the bill. That was in the bill to begin with, but at the suggestion of the representatives of the disabled veterans we amended it to read now.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Will the gentleman right there read the bill?

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, I call for the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The regular order is demanded.

Mr. O'CONNELL. This is the regular order. We are interested in this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Indiana has objected to the consideration of the bill.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for five minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent to proceed for five minutes. Is there objection?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I do not intend to object, but I wish to couple with that the request that after the gentleman proceeds for five minutes I be allowed to proceed for five minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SIMMONS. As I understand, the bill has been objected to and is off the Calendar.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill is objected to and has gone off the calendar. The gentleman from Mississippi makes his request which is added to by the gentleman from South Dakota, and the Chair hears no objection to the two requests.

Mr. RANKIN. The gentleman from Indiana, as I understand it, withheld his objection.

Mr. WOOD. No; I have objected.

Mr. RANKIN. Of course, if the gentleman will not withhold his objection I can at least answer the question of the gentleman from Nebraska, who I know is interested in these disabled ex-service men who are not being properly taken care of now. He will find, on page 4, that the amendment provides as follows:

That any honorably discharged disabled veteran who became permanently and totally disabled, in fact, prior to January 1, 1929, as a result of a chronic or constitutional disease, regardless of its origin.

Mr. SIMMONS. I will have to take out the accident part of my question, but, to speak plainly, venereal diseases would come within the class the gentleman has described, would they not? This bill merely amends the present law by adding the provision:

That any honorably discharged disabled veteran who became permanently and totally disabled, in fact, prior to January 1, 1929, as a result of a chronic or constitutional disease, regardless of its origin.

Mr. RANKIN. I understand the gentleman from Nebraska: If he wants to offer an amendment to eliminate those men coming within the class to which he refers, I shall not object. We are trying to take care of these men who are now helpless and dying because they are not taken care of under the present law.

Mr. SIMMONS. If there is any process of law by which we can reach out and take care of men who have service-incurred disabilities, and if there is anything by way of red tape standing in the way, that is all right, but to say to a man who incurred a chronic or constitutional disease 10 years after the war was over that you will give him as much as you give to a man who incurred total disability in battle I do not think is fair.

Mr. RANKIN. I will say to the gentleman from Nebraska that if he wants to put a limitation on the amount to be paid these men, I will not object to it, but I do object to going on and permitting men who are lying flat on their backs, who can get no compensation at all, to remain uncared for. We have been unable, and will be unable, to get any other legislation to take care of them. I will be willing to accept any reasonable amendment, but I repeat that under the present law and under the present decisions of the Veterans' Bureau they are not taken care of and never will be taken care of until the laws or the regulations are changed.

Mr. SCHAFER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. Yes.

Mr. SCHAFER. The bill as reported by the committee will not take care of cases where a man is temporarily totally disabled as the result of gunshot wounds received in actual battle.

Mr. RANKIN. He is taken care of under the present law. The gentleman from Wisconsin has not had the burden of this Veterans' Committee; but I will say to him now that if he has any amendment that will give these boys reasonable compensation and properly take care of them I will have no objection to it; but I can not in good conscience stand by and permit them to lie there in this condition or permit them to die and deny to them their compensation simply because in a great many instances they did not know of their disabilities or did not press their claims in time, because they tried to carry on and avoid asking for help.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. Yes; I yield to the gentleman from Hawaii.

Mr. HOUSTON of Hawaii. The gentleman will remember that I had a bill here to take care of veterans who were unfortunately afflicted with leprosy. I do not find that their cases are taken care of in here.

Mr. RANKIN. I will accept that amendment if the gentleman will offer it. But I think this bill would take care of them without an amendment.

Mr. HOWARD of Oklahoma. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. Yes.

Mr. HOWARD of Oklahoma. Is it not the experience of the gentleman also that all over the country there are boys who were examined right after the war and the doctors did not keep the kind of records of their cases that the bureau now demands, and that their diseases are actually service connected, but they are barred from establishing service connection by this red tape?

Mr. RANKIN. Oh, yes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Mississippi has expired.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in the further discussion of this bill I would like to call the attention of the House to the minority views submitted on this measure which were filed by myself, and in which many Members of the committee concurred; but it was so manifestly impossible for the bill to pass at this session of Congress that I did not request others to join with me.

This is the result of legislation reported from a committee without one vestige of a hearing, without one sign of a report from any responsible governmental authority as to its cost or as to its effect.

The bill as it appears in its amended form I never saw and never heard of until it appeared reported in this form. There is dispute as to whether or not the original bill was amended in the committee, but I do not want to raise the question because every one has acted in perfect good faith; but I have never seen this bill in committee and other members of the committee have no recollection of seeing it in its present form. Its wording should be carefully considered in connection with the discussion, as it states that pension payments shall be made "as a result of a chronic or constitutional disease regardless of its origin."

Now, there is no one in the world that can say definitely what would be a chronic or a constitutional disease, and if we should pass this bill there is no Member of this House who could have any idea as to what its practical effect would be or what classes of men would be included under it.

Back of the argument as to its uncertainty, back of the fact that there were no hearings and that it has never been considered as to cost or as to expediency, we must not forget it will grant to a man who had a disease such as diabetes a month ago a pension of $220 a month, when it can not even be imagined that his disability was secured in war service.

It is general pension legislation and nothing else, and it should be considered by the House, knowing it will cost the Government of the United States $1,000,000,000 and that it will increase the tax rate. The people of the country are entitled to know these facts.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Yes.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Would the gentleman be willing to disclose by what vote of the committee the bill was reported?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I would be perfectly willing to do that, but the gentleman knows that the rules of the House do not permit that information.

Mr. SIMMONS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Yes.

Mr. SIMMONS. If, as the gentleman from South Dakota states, this is pension legislation at more than $100 a month, would not that put the World War veteran on a pensionable status above the status given to veterans of the Spanish War or the Civil War?

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Certainly, and more than that, it would put the man who secured some disease due to his own misconduct last year on the same status as a man who was shot all to pieces in France.

Mr. SIMMONS. And probably above him.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill may retain its place on the calendar.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection has already been made by which the bill has gone off of the calendar.

Mr. RANKIN. I thought I could have it put at the foot of the calendar anyway.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. I object.

VACATING ACTION ON H. R. 13687 AND 13705

Mr. WILSON of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the action of the House with reference to two bridge bills, Calendar Nos. 1367 and 1368, bills which were passed giving the licensee, H. M. Wheeler, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns authority to construct a bridge across the Black River at or near Jonesville, La., and a bridge across the Ouachita River at or near Harrisonburg, La., may be vacated because bills have been already passed giving the Louisiana highway authorities authority to build exactly the same bridges.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Louisiana asks unanimous consent to vacate proceedings whereby the two bills H. R. 13687 and H. R. 13705 were passed. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

COST OF PAVING AND CURBING AT THE MOUNTAIN BRANCH NATIONAL HOME FOR DISABLED VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16449) authorizing an appropriation with which to pay part of the cost of paving and curbing an approach to the Mountain Branch National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers where the approach abuts on the grounds of the home.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. Reserving the right to object, we have never made appropriations to pay for paving. It is a very dangerous practice.

Mr. REECE. Will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. This bill is to pay for an assessment for paving. We have never done that, and, as I say, it would set a very dangerous precedent. I object.

CESSION OF LAND ON NEW DORP LANE, CITY OF NEW YORK

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16036) to authorize the cession to the city of New York of land on the northerly side of New Dorp Lane in exchange for permission to connect Miller Field with the said city's public-sewer system.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Reserving the right to object, has the gentleman carefully compared the description of the property?

Mr. PRALL. I will say that that has been done by the corporation counsel of New York City.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill as follows:

A bill (H. R. 16036) to authorize the cession to the city of New York of land on the northerly side of New Dorp Lane in exchange for permission to connect Miller Field with the said city's public sewer system

Be it enacted, etc., That upon receipt by the authorities representing the Government of the United States in charge of Miller Field in the Borough of Richmond, City of New York, and State of New York, of proper authorization from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York of the State of New York, granting permission to the said authorities of the United States Government in charge of Miller Field in said borough to connect with the public-sewer system of the city of New York, and upon the city of New York bearing all expenses incident to the moving of transformer station and transmission lines; moving three meter kits and providing new service connections; moving and rebuilding nonclimbable fence, including three gates on the new southerly boundary of the reservation; rebuilding approximately 500 feet of retaining wall along new reservation boundary, southwest of the radio station, and rebuilding of breakwater on the new reservation boundary line at the southeasterly corner of the reservation; all the right, title, and interest of the United States of America in and to the following-described premises—

Beginning at a point in the northeasterly line of New Dorp Lane, as shown on a map entitled "Map of New Dorp Lane from Tenth Street to the Lower New York Bay," dated January 18, 1923, adopted by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York on June 29, 1923, and approved by the mayor of the city of New York on July 11, 1923, said point being distant three hundred and two and sixty-nine one-hundredths feet southeasterly from the intersection of the northeasterly line of New Dorp Lane and the southeasterly line of Hylan Boulevard (Southfield Boulevard), the coordinates of which, in the system established by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey for the Borough of Richmond, are south thirty-two thousand and fifty-five and five hundred and thirty-seven one-thousandths feet, west eighteen thousand two hundred and seventy-eight and eight hundred and forty-seven one-thousandths feet; thence along the northeasterly line of New Dorp Lane, as adopted on the above map, (1) south fifty-five degrees one minute fifty-eight seconds, east seven hundred and thirty and forty-three one-hundredths feet; thence (2) south fifty-eight degrees, seventeen minutes, forty-five seconds, east one thousand one hundred and thirty-eight and forty-eight one-hundredths feet; thence (3) south fifty-seven degrees thirty-one minutes seventeen seconds, east four hundred and forty-three and seventeen one-hundredths feet; thence (4) south fifty-seven degrees thirty minutes fourteen seconds, east six hundred and forty-nine and thirty-five one-hundredths feet; thence (5) south fifty-seven degrees twenty-seven minutes thirty-two seconds, east two thousand two hundred and forty-one and fifty-eight one-hundredths feet, to the exterior line of the water grant to George W. Vanderbilt by the State of New York on September 4, 1888, recorded in book of patents numbered 44, page 323; thence (6) still along the exterior line of the above water grant south twenty-nine degrees fifteen minutes eight seconds, west forty and eighty-seven one-hundredths feet; thence (7) along the southwesterly line of the above water grant, north fifty-seven degrees thirteen minutes, twenty-four seconds, west five hundred and forty-five and fifty-eight one-hundredths feet, to the mean high-water line as the same existed in October, 1918; thence (8) along the above-mentioned mean high-water line, south twenty-five degrees fifty minutes fifteen seconds, west seventy-two one-hundredths foot, to the northeasterly line of New Dorp Lane as dedicated and in use; thence along the northeasterly line of New Dorp Lane as dedicated and in use the following fourteen courses: (9) north fifty-six degrees twenty-four minutes, west one hundred and fifty and fifty-two one-hundredths feet; thence (10) north fifty-seven degrees twenty-nine minutes thirty seconds, west four hundred and fourteen and forty-five one-hundredths feet; thence (11) north fifty-seven degrees seven minutes fifty-six seconds west four hundred feet; thence (12) north fifty-eight degrees seventeen minutes thirty-five seconds, west two hundred and five one-hundredths feet; thence (13) north fifty-seven degrees seventeen minutes fifteen seconds, west nine hundred feet; thence (14) north fifty-six degrees forty minutes forty seconds, west three hundred and one one-hundredths feet; thence (15) north fifty-six degrees fifty-two minutes four seconds, west three hundred feet; thence (16) north fifty-six degrees fifty-six minutes forty seconds, west four hundred and one one-hundredths feet; thence (17) north fifty-seven degrees twenty-eight minutes fifty-two seconds, west three hundred and sixty-nine and nineteen one-hundredths feet; thence (18) north sixty degrees forty-five minutes ten seconds, west two hundred and thirty-one and twenty-seven one-hundredths feet; thence (19) north sixty-one degrees one minute ten seconds, west eighty-four and eighty-nine one-hundredths feet; thence (20) north sixty-one degrees forty-seven minutes twenty seconds, west one hundred and five and fifty-seven one-hundredths feet; thence (21) north fifty-four degrees fifty-nine minutes forty-one seconds, west one hundred and thirteen and sixty-two one-hundredths feet; thence (22) still along the northeasterly line of New Dorp Lane as dedicated and in use north fifty-four degrees twenty-two minutes eight seconds, west six hundred and ninety-three and sixty one-hundredths feet; to the westerly corner of property conveyed by the Vanderbilt estate to the United States of America by deed dated March 12, 1919, and recorded in Richmond County clerk's office in liber No. 491, page 34; thence (23) along the northeasterly line of the above-mentioned property north thirty-seven degrees fifty minutes twelve seconds, east twenty-one and sixty-eight one-hundredths feet, to the point or place of beginning, containing three and one hundred and ninety-three one-thousandths acres of upland and four hundred and ninety-eight one-thousandths acres of land under water—are hereby granted and conveyed to the city of New York, its successors or assigns, forever.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EQUIPMENT FOR THE KIOWA INDIAN HOSPITAL

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16822) to authorize the expenditure of $91,000 to enlarge and buy equipment for the Kiowa Indian Hospital located at the Fort Sill School Reservation, in Comanche County, Okla.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. CRAMTON. Reserving the right to object, is this hospital used for the benefit of the Kiowa and Comanche Indians?

Mr. JOHNSON of Oklahoma. Yes; and the Apaches.

Mr. CRAMTON. They have about a million dollars to their credit. The Interior Department bill carried an appropriation for the enlargment of their hospital as desired by them. They objected to using their money. This bill proposes hospital facilities for them out of the Treasury of the United States. Is that the situation?

Mr. JOHNSON of Oklahoma. That is not altogether the situation. If the gentleman will withhold his objection, I think I can explain the situation to his entire satisfaction.

Mr. CRAMTON. I object.

Mr. JOHNSON of Oklahoma. The Fort Sill Indian hospital is probably large enough at this time if only the Comanches, Apaches, and Kiowas were permitted to use it, but there are several other tribes down there, and nearly all the tribes have patients in that hospital.

I am sure the distinguished gentleman from Michigan would not want to be unfair and I submit that it is most unfair to say that 3 tribes of Indians should build and maintain a hospital for the use and benefit of the 14 tribes of Indians who reside in southwest Oklahoma.

Might I be permitted to further add that this bill was introduced after a special committee at the request of the Indian Bureau, recently made an inspection and report on the situation down there and that it has the approval of the Interior Department, the Director of the Budget, and was reported unanimously by the Committee on Indian Affairs. I certainly trust that the gentleman from Michigan may be able to see his way clear to withdraw his objections. I assure him and members of the committee that there is a real, urgent need for the improvement and enlargement of this Indian hospital.

Mr. CRAMTON. I will say that I do not know any necessity for passing the bill for enlarging the hospital. There is authority now for appropriations for that purpose. I will have to object to this bill.

TREATY BETWEEN UNITED STATES AND LOYAL SHAWNEE INDIANS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 5127) to carry into effect the twelfth article of the treaty between the United States and the Loyal Shawnee Indians proclaimed October 14, 1868.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker I object.

MENOMINEE TRIBE OF INDIANS OF WISCONSIN

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16569) authorizing a per capita payment of $100 each to the members of the Menominee Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin from funds on deposit to their credit in the Treasury of the United States.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, an amendment was placed on the deficiency appropriation bill for such a purpose. If this is taken to be the same per capita amendment as the deficiency appropriation bill carries, I might have no objection, but a duplicate payment I would object to.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Would it be necessary to pass this bill at all?

Mr. CRAMTON. It is not necessary if the deficiency bill becomes a law.

Mr. O'CONNELL. Is not this an authorization?

Mr. CRAMTON. This is an authorization, but inasmuch as it is in the deficiency appropriation bill on an amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. SCHNEIDER], I think we should object to this. Mr. Speaker, I object.

UNITED STATES COURT FOR CHINA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16167) to amend an act entitled "An act creating the United States Court for China and prescribing the jurisdiction thereof" (Public, No. 403, 59th Cong.), and an act entitled "An act making appropriations for the Diplomatic and Consular Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921" (Public, No. 238, 66th Cong.).

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 6 of an act entitled "An act creating the United States Court for China and prescribing the jurisdiction thereof" is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 6. There shall be a district attorney, a marshal, and a clerk of said court, with authority possessed by the corresponding officers of the district courts in the United States as far as may be consistent with the conditions of the laws of the United States and said treaties. The district attorney, who shall be a lawyer of good standing and experience, marshal, and clerk shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall receive as salary, respectively, the sums of $6,000 per annum for said district attorney, $4,000 per annum for said marshal, $4,000 per annum for said clerk; and the said judge may, with the approval of the Secretary of State, and within such appropriations as may be made by Congress, appoint such clerical assistants and such other employees and incur such expenses as may be necessary to the proper conduct of the court.

"The judge of said court shall, when the sessions of the court are held at cities other than Shanghai, receive in addition to his salary his actual and necessary expenses during such sessions, and during the time necessarily consumed in going to and returning from the cities where such sessions may be held, not to exceed $10 per day. And the district attorney, marshal, deputy marshal, clerk, assistant clerk, court reporter, and the court's stenographer, when required by order of the court to attend its sessions at cities other than Shanghai, shall receive in addition to their salaries their actual and necessary expenses during such sessions and, while going to and returning from such sessions, not to exceed $8 per day: Provided, That in lieu of the allowances for expenses, as hereinbefore provided, such officers and employees, in rendering their expense accounts to the Government, may, charge a per diem of $7 for the time between their arrival at and departure from the place at which the session of court may be held."

SEC. 2. The United States commissioner at Shanghai, China, shall hereafter receive an annual salary of $5,000 in lieu of compensation fixed by the Secretary of State; and the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the Diplomatic and Consular Service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, is amended accordingly.

SEC. 3. When, in the judgment of the President of the United States, the judge of the United States Court for China, or any other officer of the court, is temporarily unable to perform the duties of his office, because of absence from China, or any other cause, or, when, in the President's judgment, it would be improper for the judge of the United States Court for China, or any other officer of the court, to participate in the conduct of any particular case, the President may designate a qualified person or persons to perform the duties of the judge or any other officer of the court in the conduct of a particular case or during the temporary inability of the judge or other officer of the court to perform his official duties.

Any person designated pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be given the regular designation of the office, the duties of which he is authorized temporarily to perform, preceded by the word "temporary."

Each temporary officer designated pursuant to the provisions of this section shall, during the period of his temporary service, have and exercise all the rights, privileges, powers, and authority now or hereafter to be possessed and exercised under the laws of the United States by the regular incumbent of the office whose duties he temporarily performs. He shall receive compensation for the actual period of his service at the rate of compensation paid the regular incumbent of the office, and shall be entitled to the same allowances for official travel and subsistence expenses as are now or may hereafter be enjoyed by the regular incumbent. Nothing herein contained shall affect the right of the regular incumbent of the office to receive the compensation and allowances of his office during the period of his appointment.

Persons designated under this section as temporary clerk or temporary marshal shall be required to furnish bond for the faithful performance of their duties, in sums and with sureties to be fixed and approved by the judge or temporary judge of the court.

Unless sooner revoked by the President, each temporary designation made pursuant to this section shall terminate upon the completion of the particular duties for the performance of which the designation was made or, in cases when the temporary officer was designated to perform temporarily all the duties of an officer of the court, upon the resumption by the regular incumbent of the office of his official duties: Provided, That the President may, in his discretion, continue the temporary designation in force to enable the temporary officer to complete any work remaining unfinished when the regular incumbent resumes his duties.

Notwithstanding the provisions of any other act, the President may, in his discretion, designate, under the provisions of this section, any qualified person holding an office under the United States, but any such person so designated shall not receive any compensation or salary while such designation continues in force other than that provided for in this act.

With the following committee amendments:

Page 1, line 5, after the word "thereof" insert "(section 197, title 22, United States Code)."

Page 3, line 15, strike out "1921" and insert "1921 (section 198, title 22, United States Code)."

The committee amendments were agreed to and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

UNITED STATES CODE

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 11801) to amend sections 726 and 727 of title 18, United States Code, with reference to Federal probation officers, and to add a new section thereto.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I think we ought to have some explanation of this.

Mr. STOBBS. Mr. Speaker, this bill authorizes the readjustment of the probation officers with the discretion of judges to appoint new probation officers, provided the salaries are approved by the Attorney General. It puts it under the head of the Attorney General to supervise the whole matter of the probation system in the courts.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. The gentleman knows that my objection is to doing away with civil-service examinations. I do not think it ought to pass in this way.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. I object.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. CHINDBLOM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the remaining bills on the calendar may be called, notwithstanding the fact that they have not been on the calendar a sufficient length of time under the rule. I think we should observe the rules, but that unanimous consent be given to have these other bills called as this is the last opportunity for the consideration of this calendar.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, Members have a right to know what business is to be considered. I submit it would not be doing justice to the membership of the House to consider bills not on the calendar.

Mr. CHINDBLOM. I am not interested in any of these bills, but I do think that as this is the last opportunity to consider this calendar we ought to go through it.

Mr. RANKIN. I withdraw my objection. I thought the gentleman referred to bills that were not on the calendar.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

STOREKEEPER-GAUGERS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill H. R. 16393) to include henceforth, under the designation "storekeeper-gaugers," all positions which have heretofore been designated as those of storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers, to make storekeeper-gaugers full-time employees, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That henceforth all storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers shall be designated as storekeeper-gaugers; and henceforth all storekeeper-gaugers shall not be per diem employees, but shall be full-time employees, paid upon a per annum basis, and, when not employed upon their regular duties, may be assigned to such duties as the Commissioner of Prohibition shall designate. No person who is employed as a storekeeper-gauger at the time this act takes effect shall be paid at a rate less than the rate upon which his per diem compensation is based at such time; and no person entering upon such employment after such time shall be paid at a rate less than the minimum rate upon which per diem compensation of storekeeper-gaugers is based at the time this act takes effect.

SEC. 2. The act entitled "An act granting cumulative annual leave of absence to storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers, with pay," approved June 23, 1910, is hereby repealed, and the general provisions of law relating to annual leave of absence and sick leave of employees in the executive departments shall henceforth apply to storekeeper-gaugers. For the purpose of computing leave of absence to which storekeeper-gaugers are entitled during the calendar year in which this act is enacted, this section shall be held and considered to take effect as of January 1 of such calendar year.

SEC. 3. The Commissioner of Prohibition shall designate for each storekeeper-gauger a principal station, which shall be held to be the designated post of duty of such employee for the purposes of the subsistence expense act of 1926, and which shall, wherever practicable, be at or near the place of bona fide residence of such employee. Such principal station may be changed from time to time by the commissioner, as circumstances may require. A storekeeper-gauger, when on detail in emergency cases or assignments in the administrative district wherein he is regularly commissioned, shall be allowed subsistence, as well as when detailed for special duty in any other or outside district.

SEC. 4. The Commissioner of Prohibition, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary or proper to carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect on the first day of the month following the month during which it is enacted.

SEC. 6. All laws, or parts of laws, inconsistent or in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

Mr. WILLIAM E. HULL. Mr. Speaker; I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD upon the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. WILLIAM E. HULL. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill to include henceforth, under the designation "storekeeper-gaugers," all positions which have heretofore been designated as those of storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers, to make storekeeper-gaugers full-time employees, and for other purposes.

I can speak intelligently upon this subject because I was a Government gauger for four years myself. I know the difficulties we had in the better days of Government gauging. We were constantly in fear of being laid off; sometimes as much as three months in the year, and always an average of one month without pay. In those days we were obliged to make a certain amount of gallons in order to secure $5 per day as a Government gauger. Many times the distilleries, when they were closed down, did not produce the necessary gallonage to give full pay and the withdrawals sometimes were not equal to the requirements. Since the distilleries have been closed the storekeeper-gauger has been combined so that they can do the work of other positions, but the difficulties are many, and they are not receiving what I would consider enough pay to justify them keeping the positions they hold, and still these men have been in this business from 20 to 35 years. They are old, in a great many instances, and if they were to retire from these positions, would hardly be able to secure a position in keeping with their mentality and ability.

There is no reason I can see why the Government should underpay these men, and, therefore, I hope every Member of Congress will see their way clear to vote for this bill, because it is just to these men to continue their services until their retirement, and on a salary that will enable them to support their families.

Mr. THATCHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks on this bill and to insert at this point in the RECORD certain quotations from the report and the hearings.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. THATCHER. Mr. Speaker, this measure (H. R. 16393), entitled "A bill to include henceforth, under the designation of 'storekeeper-gaugers' all positions which have heretofore been designated as those of storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers; to make storekeeper-gaugers full-time employees, and for other purposes," is highly meritorious. Its purpose is to do justice to a small number of employees of the Treasury Department now serving under the Bureau of Prohibition. I have been very glad to introduce and press for enactment this measure. No finer body of men than those affected by it are to be found in the entire Federal service. Not only will this enactment bring long-delayed consideration to the present storekeeper-gauger force, but it will also insure in the future the selection of the most efficient and trustworthy type of men for the very important work which devolves on this branch of the prohibition-enforcement work. The bill has the hearty indorsement of the Treasury Department.

Ever since I have been a Member of Congress—realizing the inequities and injustices involved as regards these particular Federal officers and employees because of the antiquated statutory provisions under which they were employed—it has been my pleasure to do everything within my power to remedy the situation. I believe that I have been helpful in securing better classification for them as to rates of compensation, and in introducing this bill I have sought to procure, through the required legislation, the correction of those prejudicial matters which could not be reached in an administrative way.

A hearing was had on the bill by the House Judiciary Committee—to which committee it was referred, and which favorably reported the measure. There appeared at this hearing, in addition to myself, Mr. R. A. Kipp, assistant head of the technical division, Prohibition Bureau, Treasury Department; and Mr. George C. Billard, chief of personnel and appointments, Bureau of Prohibition, Treasury Department. Under leave granted me to do so, and in explanation of the bill, I quote from my statement made before the committee the following, including the favorable report of the Secretary of the Treasury:

Mr. THATCHER. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, this bill has for its purpose the giving of a more equitable status to certain employees of the Internal Revenue system, now in the Prohibition Bureau, who have heretofore been classified as storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers, whose duty it is to deal with the gauging of distilled spirits, and who have custodial relationships to concentrated warehouses handling these spirits, and who also discharge other related duties.

These positions were created about the time of the close of the Civil War and most of the statutory law relating to those positions was enacted at that time, or within that general period.

Through all these years they have been on a per diem basis; whereas practically all other employees of the Federal Government have been on an annual-salary basis. They have been operating under these old statutory provisions, and as a result they have been paid only for the actual service rendered; that is, for the actual number of days of service rendered. Sometimes they were employed and sometimes they were not employed. Until recently the per diem rate of pay, based on the rates prescribed more than a generation ago, was ridiculously low, especially so when there is taken into account the fact that full-time employment was not provided.

They did not have the benefit of annual leave that other employees of the Treasury have received. The thousands of other Treasury employees—the great body of them, practically all of them—have received the benefit of annual leave of 30 days, as well as the benefit of sick leave which may run, annually, to another 30 days. The only leave which these men have received has been 1¼ days for each month of actual service during the year; whereas the other Treasury employees receive 30 days of general leave, and sick leave not exceeding 30 days.

These men are under the civil service; they are capable men, and most of them have been in the service for years. They are under bond of $5,000 each. They possess high integrity and efficiency, and they perform a very responsible character of service; yet they are on this per diem basis, with limited rights as to general leave, and with no rights as to sick leave.

The result has been and is that, being thus employed, they can not take outside employment, because they may be called for service at any moment. Yet their employment is not on an all-time basis. Therefore, it is not an equitable arrangement. There are only about 260 of these men, all told, in the country.

Mr. WEAVER. I thought that those positions had become obsolete.

Mr. THATCHER. No; there are concentration warehouses over the country, and these custodial relationships still exist. This bill provides for the performance of additional duties by these men.

Mr. WEAVER. You mean these bonded warehouses throughout the country?

Mr. THATCHER. Yes; and the denaturing plants; places of that sort.

This work requires not only a high type of integrity on the part of the employee, but it takes a high degree of technical skill to perform this service. They were originally getting $4 and $5 a day under those conditions. Finally, the Treasury Department administratively put them in what is called C. A. F.–5; that is, clerical, administrative, and fiscal grade 5, with a salary range of $2,000 to $2,500 a year, based on their per diem service. They are now being paid for the actual days of their service, based on the figures just named.

On the other hand, prohibition agents who enter the enforcement service have a range of $2,300 to $2,800 a year; and until recently they have not been under the civil service. As you know, in the past they have been recruited just as raw material all over the country. They are, of course, on a straight salary basis; and thus, heretofore, inexperienced, noncivil service enforcement agents have received greater compensation than these storekeeper-gaugers, who have years of experience in their work, and who have been, and are, bonded civil-service employees.

This bill has been worked out in collaboration with the Prohibition Unit. I took the matter up with Doctor Doran, the prohibition commissioner, and with his associates, and this is an agreed bill as to what will be fair and equitable under the circumstances. Compared with other branches of the Treasury service, the provisions of the measure are very conservative.

It is proposed in the bill, in addition to putting these men on a straight annual pay basis (permitting the administrative arrangement to continue as to the allocation for salary range, that being done administratively, as it is a more flexible arrangement), to assign them additional duties so as to keep them employed all the time.

There are certain features of the clerical and technical office work which, under this measure, they may perform for prohibition administrators throughout the country; and there are other duties that they can perform, under the authority of the bill, in addition to those under existing law which are required. Thus they can be placed on an all-year employment and pay basis. Thereby the Government will lose nothing and gain much. The Government will get their full-time service by simply putting them on that basis. In addition long-delayed justice to those faithful, capable employees will be accorded.

These men really have been the under dogs of the Treasury Department, because they have been operating under these old, obsolete laws of 35 and 40 years ago, which have never been brought down to date, although the provisions touching almost all other Federal officers and employees have been liberalized.

They have suffered greatly; and whereas raises have been given everywhere else, to employees who have been on a regular annual pay basis, these men, being on a per diem basis, have been limited in the pay they received to the actual number of days they served, and they have not had the benefits of sick leave, nor the ample benefits accorded to others as regards annual leave. As I say, through all these years, when these other employees were getting these great benefits, these men have stood still.

The Treasury Department, when this matter was referred to it, wrote a letter which I will ask be made a part of the record. The Secretary of the Treasury has given his warm approval to the bill and has admirably stated the case. He also shows that the enactment of the measure will not be in conflict with the President's financial program.

Mr. HERSEY. I have the original letter from the Secretary of the Treasury with reference to this bill. [Reading:]

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, February 9, 1929.

Hon. GEORGE S. GRAHAM,
Chairman Committee on the Judiciary,
House of Representatives.

MY DEAR CONGRESSMAN GRAHAM: Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of January 19, 1929, submitting a copy of H. R. 16393, relative to the title, compensation, subsistence, and annual and sick leave, etc., of Internal Revenue officers known as storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers.

In reply I beg to state that since the advent of constitutional prohibition and the concentration of distilled spirits under the act of February 17, 1922 (42 Stat. 375), into a comparatively small number of warehouses, the number of storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers necessary to perform the duties in connection therewith has been reduced until at the present time there are about 260 in the entire country who are steadily employed. It is deemed advisable to provide for steady and permanent employment of only such number as may be actually necessary under the dual title of storekeeper-gauger. Such an officer may perform any and all duties necessary under the law and it is the desire of this department to keep them steadily employed. Periods of unemployment such as have occurred in the past is not conducive to the welfare of the officers or the best interest of the Government.

It is desirable to legally place these officers on an annual salary basis, grant to them the usual sick and annual leave which the Government employees enjoy in the departments at Washington, and to afford certain relief as to subsistence allowances.

It is contemplated that the Commissioner of Prohibition, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may issue regulations for the allowance of subsistence of such an officer in the district in which he may be regularly commissioned, when specially detailed for duty in his home district, or that in which regularly commissioned in emergency cases, which can not now be done, but is not intended to grant an allowance for subsistence to such officers on regular assignments in their home districts, which is ordinarily their regular post of duty. It is not contemplated that this proposed law will change the travel and subsistence expenses of this class of officers when detailed for special duty in other than their home districts.

It is believed that this legislation if enacted will enable the department to obtain the services of a better class of men and thus afford better administration of both the revenue and prohibition laws.

For the foregoing reasons it is believed that the proposed bill is meritorious and if enacted will result in benefits to both the officers involved and to the Government and with but little additional cost.

It may be added that the Director of the Bureau of the Budget advises that this report, which is favorable to the passage of the bill, is not in conflict with the financial program of the President.

Very truly yours,

A. W. MELLON,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. THATCHER. With reference to the matter of subsistence, the law is defective now in its provisions with reference to these men.

This bill has been drawn, as I say, in collaboration with the Prohibition Unit and the Treasury Department officials, so that an equitable arrangement may be had.

For instance, if one of these men lives in Louisville, Ky., and is assigned to Lexington, Ky., he goes there on a regular tour and gets only his traveling expenses to Lexington and back at the close of his service, six months, or two months, as the case may be; but if he is sent to Lexington on a special trip for a week's time, to relieve some man who is sick, or something of that sort, an emergency service, under this bill that can be properly taken care of by providing for subsistence. There is no regulation at present that permits that. The purpose of this bill is to put these men on an equal footing with the other employees of the Treasury Department whose duties are generally comparable in character and importance with the duties that these men perform; to put them on all fours with other Treasury employees in the matter of sick leave and annual leave and regular employment.

Mr. HERSEY. The bill has for its purpose making the department more efficient, as I understand it.

Mr. THATCHER. Yes, sir; and thus to enable the department to get the best men in the future. These are all civil-service positions. Under present-day conditions you can not get the best type of men to take these positions if they are on a per diem basis. They will say, "I will take a position that gives me straight employment and an all-year salary, because I have to give up every other employment in order to be ready for a call to service."

Gentlemen of the committee, the Commissioner of Prohibition, Doctor Doran, with whom I talked yesterday, was unable himself to come up this morning, as he wished to do, to speak in behalf of the bill and to answer any questions that might be asked of him; but he sent from his bureau two gentlemen holding responsible positions in his office, Mr. Billard, who is at the head of the personnel division, and Mr. Kipp, who is assistant head of the technical division. He thought that they might make statements concerning the administrative and other features of this bill and answer any questions which might be asked of them.

I quote from the statement of Mr. Kipp made at the committee hearing, the following:

Mr. KIPP. Mr. Billard and I are appearing here to-day under the direction of Dr. James M. Doran, Prohibition Commissioner. I heard the statements of Congressman THATCHER, just made to the commmittee, and I am in full accord with them. It is believed that this bill will put this small number of employees on an equitable basis and will, also, in the future attract the most efficient men to this branch of the service. As a matter of convenience the bill provides for a single designation for these men, namely, storekeeper-gaugers. At present, as Mr. THATCHER pointed out, the compensation of these employees is being determined administratively, and they have been assigned to class C A F 5, in the Treasury Department. The bill does not disturb this method of fixing the compensation, except to provide for annual salary, instead of payment on a per diem basis. Of course, the payment of compensation on an annual basis will carry with it regular all-year service on the part of these men.

These men are charged with responsible and important duties, requiring a very high degree of integrity and efficiency, and most of them who are now engaged in this work have been connected therewith for many years and have given most faithful and effective service. Their record has been unusually free from delinquency.

In the manufacture of alcohol at the legalized plants of the country these employees are responsible for the control and safeguarding of the manufacture of the alcoholic spirits there and must be depended on to prevent the diversion of these spirits at these sources. Hence they perform a very important part of the prohibition enforcement work.

The following is from the statement of Mr. Billard made before the committee:

Mr. HERSEY. We should be pleased to hear from you if you have anything new to offer besides what the Secretary of the Treasury has stated in his letter.

Mr. BILLARD. I may say that the bureau, with a view of obtaining a much higher type of employee, prevailed upon the Civil Service Commission to conduct a special examination, the requirements of which are, I might say, semitechnical, and which will undoubtedly attract a higher grade of employee to the service; and that fact, in addition to the carrying out of the purposes of this bill, in giving these storekeeper-gaugers the same rights as to annual and sick leave and as to subsistence, will, as a whole, benefit the whole service a great deal.

With a higher class of employees, there will be less need for frequent changes in assignment, and in that respect the expense will not be materially increased.

* * * * * * *

Mr. BILLARD. In conclusion I would like to add that the Prohibition Bureau is heartily in accord with the purposes of this bill. If enacted it will serve to correct inequalities and injustices to which this class of employees has been subjected for many years, and will place them on a more equitable footing as regards the benefits received by the great army of Treasury Department employees. The matter of the increased cost involved on account of leave benefits is to a certain extent theoretical, and would only amount to the figure estimated in the event that every employee affected receive the full benefits of such leave. However, it is not believed that any question of increased cost on this score should affect the bill adversely, because as a matter of common justice the benefits should be accorded these particular employees just as they are accorded to the other employees of the Treasury Department.

I fully concur in what Mr. THATCHER and Mr. Kipp have stated in regard to the grave responsibility imposed on these employees, and the important duties performed by them.

The provisions of this bill have had the most careful consideration of the Treasury Department, and particularly of the Prohibition Commissioner, Dr. James M. Doran, and his administrative associates.

Mr. HERSEY. Have you anything further to offer, Mr. THATCHER?

Mr. THATCHER. I just want to say, in conclusion, I do not know of a more meritorious bill, so far as employees of the Government are concerned, than this one. Only a handful of men are affected and I earnestly hope that the measure may be favorably reported and enacted into law.

There is likewise quoted the following portion of the House Judiciary Committee's favorable report on the measure:

A hearing was had on this measure at which appeared in its behalf the author, Representative THATCHER of Kentucky, together with R. A. Kipp, assistant head of the technical division, and George C. Billard, chief of personnel and appointments, Bureau of Prohibition, Treasury Department.

In addition, upon due reference of the bill there was received from the Secretary of the Treasury, Hon. A. W. Mellon, a letter favoring the enactment of the bill; which letter is set forth later in this report. In the judgment of the committee, the bill is of a highly meritorious character. It has several purposes in view, namely:

(a) The designation (sec. 1) under the single title of storekeeper-gaugers, Treasury employees, heretofore carried under the designations of storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers. This single designation makes for convenience of administration.

(b) The placing (sec. 1) of these men on the annual-salary basis, with full-time employment, in place of the present system of per diem compensation for per diem service. There are only about 260 of these employees, and their work is of a most important and responsible character. They have to be in charge and must supervise the gauging of distilled spirits in the warehouse plants where these spirits are concentrated; and they also have very important duties to render at denaturing plants. Much of their work is technical in character, and all of it requires a high degree of integrity for its proper performance. Under present conditions, as these men are subject to call whenever their services may be needed by the Government, they are unable to accept other employment in periods of idleness, and are unable to engage in private business which may require their time. The hardships of such a situation are obvious. The provisions of the bill will place them on an annual-employment basis, and will permit new and additional duties, which their experience fits them to discharge, to be assigned them by the Commissioner of Prohibition, so that their full time may be utilized, just as is the case with the great body of employees of the Federal Government.

(c) The placing (sec. 2) of these employees on all fours with the great body of Treasury Department employees concerning annual leave and sick leave. At present these particular employees, under existing law, are only entitled to receive leave of absence of 1¼ days for each 26 days of actual service; and they have no sick-leave benefits. Section 2 of the bill will cure this long-existing inequality, and will give these men the benefits which other employees of the Treasury and other departments receive touching the question of leave—that is to say, 30 days' annual leave and not exceeding 30 days' sick leave per year. The sick leave actually averages about seven days per year for Treasury employees.

(d) Providing (sec. 3) a more equitable arrangement than that now obtaining concerning subsistence and expense for these employees. This provision is largely clarifying in character.

(e) Section 4 gives to the Commissioner of Prohibition, under whose immediate supervision these employees work, power to prescribe, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry out the provisions of the measure. Formerly, these employees were under the supervision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, but in 1927 they were transferred to the Bureau of Prohibition. Since then they have been officers and employees of that bureau. All of them are under civil service. Each of them must execute a bond in the sum of $5,000 for the faithful performance of his duties; and most of these employees now serving have been thus engaged for many years, and are men of long experience and fine integrity. Their per diem compensation at present is fixed administratively and they have been placed in classification C A F 5; that is to say, clerical, administrative, and fiscal service, No. 5. This has been done under general provisions of law concerning classification of employees. The bill does not change this method of fixing the grade and range of compensation of these employees, but does provide that they shall be employed and paid on an annual, rather than on a per diem, basis. The salary range in C A F 5 is from $2,000 to $2,500; and these employees are now receiving per diem compensation based on that rate. As they only receive pay for the actual number of days worked, the actual compensation received may fall considerably below the annual rate. It is to be noted that prohibition agents in the field receive compensation under a salary range of $2,300 to $2,800 per year on all-time salary basis.

Another strong reason why, in the judgment of the committee, this bill should be enacted, is the fact, as pointed out by the Secretary of the Treasury, the operation of its provisions will prove beneficial to the Treasury and prohibition-bureau service, since the features of all-time employment and equitable leaves will attract thereto a better type of employees in the future than might otherwise be secured. Those desiring to enter the Federal service naturally prefer to enter those branches which provide for all-year employment, and with full benefits as to sick and annual leave. Hence, in maintaining in an efficient way the storekeeper-gauger force, it is very important, and deemed very necessary, that the provisions of the present statutes be liberalized in the manner set forth in this bill so that the best type of employees may be secured for this very important branch of prohibition-enforcement work.

It appears that there may be some additional cost in according these employees the same benefits as to annual and sick leave now accorded to other Treasury employees; but, aside from the considerations of justice involved, this additional cost will not be large and will probably be offset by the advantage to the service which will be gained by giving to these men the same rights and benefits which other Treasury employees now receive touching these matters.

WHITE RIVER UINTAH, AND OTHER TRIBES OF INDIANS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16985) authorizing the Uintah, Uncompahgre, and the White River Bands of the Ute Indians in Utah and Colorado and the Southern Ute and the Ute Mountain Bands of Ute Indians in Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico to sue in the Court of Claims.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That jurisdiction be, and is hereby, conferred upon the Court of Claims, with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States by either party as in other cases, to hear, examine, and adjudicate and render judgment in any and all legal and equitable claims arising under or growing out of the acts of Congress of May 27, 1902 (32 Stats. 263), and March 3, 1905 (33 Stats. 1069), or arising under or growing out of any subsequent act of Congress or Executive order or arising under any treaty or agreement which said Uintah, Uncompahgre, and White River Bands of Ute Indians in Utah and Colorado may have against the United States, and arising under or growing out of the act of February 20, 1895 (28 Stat. 677), and subsequent acts of Congress and proclamations of the President relating thereto, setting apart as a separate reservation for the Southern Ute and the Ute Mountain Bands of Ute Indians in Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico a tract of approximately 1,056,000 acres of land, which claims have not heretofore been determined and adjudicated on their merits by the Court of Claims or the Supreme Court of the United States. Said court shall determine the value of all lands which have been set apart and reserved from the ceded Ute Indian lands as forest reservations or for other public uses under existing laws and proclamations of the President as if disposed of under the public-land laws of the United States: Provided, That the value of coal-bearing lands shall not be fixed at a sum in excess of $15 per acre. The court shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the several as well as the joint rights of the parties plaintiff and render judgment accordingly.

SEC. 2. Any and all claims against the United States within the purview of this act shall be forever barred unless suit be instituted or petition filed as herein provided in the Court of Claims within two years from the approval of this act; and such suit or suits shall make the Uintah, Uncompahgre, and White River Bands of the Ute Indians parties plaintiff and the United States party defendant. A separate petition shall be filed on behalf of the Southern Ute and the Ute Mountain Bands of Ute Indians in Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico, which petition shall make said Indians parties plaintiff and the United States party defendant: Provided, That the Uintah, Uncompahgre, and White River Bands of the Ute Indians may be joined should this be necessary to adjudicate any rights which they may have in the matter sought to be litigated. The petition or petitions shall be verified by the attorney or attorneys employed to prosecute such claim or claims under contract with said Indians approved in accordance with existing law and shall set forth all the facts on which the claims for recovery are based. A copy of the petition or petitions in such suit or suits shall be served upon the Attorney General of the United States, and he, or some attorney from the Department of Justice to be designated by him as heretofore directed, shall appear and defend the interests of the United States.

SEC. 3. In said suit or suits the court shall hear, examine, and adjudicate any claims which the United States may have against said Uintah, Uncompahgre, and White River Bands of the Ute Indians and the Southern Ute and the Ute Mountain Bands of Ute Indians, but any payment including gratuities, which the United States may have made to said Indians, shall not operate as an estoppel but may be pleaded as an offset in such suit.

SEC. 4. If it be determined by the court that the United States, in violation of the terms and provisions of any law, treaty, Executive order, or agreement as provided in section 1 hereof, has unlawfully appropriated or disposed of any property belonging to said Indians, the damage therefor shall be confined to the value of such property at the time of such appropriation or the disposal thereof except as otherwise provided in section 1 of this act; and with reference to all claims which may be the subject matter of the suit or suits herein authorized, the decree of the court shall be in full settlement of all damages, if any, committed by the Government of the United States and shall annul and cancel all claim, right, and title of said Indians in and to such property.

SEC. 5. The Court of Claims shall have full authority by proper order and process to bring in and make party to such suit or suits any other tribe or band of Indians deemed by it necessary or proper to the final determination of the matters in controversy. Said court shall determine and render separate judgment for any amount found due to the Confederated Bands of Ute Indians under the terms of the jurisdictional act approved March 3, 1909 (35 Stat. 788).

SEC. 6. Upon final determination of such suit or suits the Court of Claims shall have jurisdiction to fix and determine a reasonable fee, not to exceed 10 per cent of the recovery, based upon actual services rendered, together with all necessary and proper expenses incurred in preparation and prosecution of the suit or suits, to be paid to the attorney or attorneys employed by said tribes or bands of Indians, and the same shall be included in the decree and shall be paid out of any sum or sums found to be due said tribes or bands: Provided, That said court shall enter a separate judgment under the provisions and limitations above set out for the attorney or attorneys representing the Southern Ute and the Ute Mountain Bands of Ute Indians in Utah, Colorado, and New Mexico, based upon the amount of recovery for said Indians, which recovery shall also be entered as a separate judgment: Provided further, That if the Court of Claims shall find that any attorney or attorneys rendered any services to the Uintah, Uncompahgre, and White River Bands of Ute Indians under a contract executed September 24, 1921, by said Indians, which contract was not approved as provided by section 2103 of the Revised Statutes prior to December 20, 1927, the court shall fix such compensation on the quantum meruit basis as to it shall seem reasonable, to be paid out of any sum found to be due such tribes. The total sum of attorneys' fees in no event shall exceed the limitation herein provided.

SEC. 7. The proceeds of all amounts, if any, recovered for said Indians, less attorneys' fees and expenses, shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the Indians decreed by said court to be entitled thereto and shall draw interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum from the date of the judgment or decree.

Such proceeds shall be thereafter subject to appropriations by Congress for educational, health, and industrial and other purposes for the benefit of the said Indians, including the purchase of lands and building of homes, and no part of said judgment shall be paid out in per capita payments to said Indians.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 6, strike out "or" and insert "and."

The committee amendment was agreed to and the bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

COMPACTS BETWEEN THE STATES OF WYOMING AND IDAHO

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 16771) granting the consent of Congress to compacts or agreements between the States of Wyoming and Idaho with respect to the boundary line between said States.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the consent of Congress is hereby given to the States of Wyoming and Idaho to negotiate and enter into compacts or agreements with respect to the boundary line between said States.

SEC. 2. Such consent is given upon condition that a representative of the United States from the Department of the Interior, to be appointed by the President, shall participate in the negotiations and shall make report to Congress of the proceedings and of any compact or agreement entered into. Other than the compensation and expenses of such representative the United States shall not be liable for any expenses in connection with such negotiations, compact, or agreement.

SEC. 3. No such compact or agreement shall be binding or obligatory upon either of such States unless and until it has been approved by the legislature of each of such States and by the Congress of the United States.

SEC. 4. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is herewith expressly reserved.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next bill.

RETIREMENT OF FEDERAL JUDGES

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 2206) to amend section 260 of the Judicial Code, as amended.

The title of the bill was read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, what is the purpose of the bill?

Mr. GRAHAM. Where a judge has served five years in a United States court and has served in another branch of the Federal service for five additional years, under this bill he will come within the provisions of the retirement act.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. What does this bill do? It came up suddenly before we had time to read the report. I would like to know what the purpose of the bill is. I have not had time to read the bill or the report.

Mr. GRAHAM. It has been reported twice favorably by the Committee on the Judiciary. If the judge of the United States serves for five years in one United States court and then serves for five years additional in another United States court, where there is not a continuity of service, it would have the same effect as if there were continuity of 10 years for retirement purposes?

Mr. BLACK of Texas. Under the present law, for example, if he were a district judge he would have to serve 10 years before he was retired?

Mr. GRAHAM. Yes.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. If he was a circuit judge and served five years as circuit judge and five years as district judge, he would come under the retirement act? Is that the purpose of the bill?

Mr. GRAHAM. If he is 70 years of age.

Mr. STOBBS. A man must be 70 years of age before he retires. He may have served 20 years or 30 years, but he must be 70 years old before he retires. This bill makes it possible for a man to be retired who has served eight years, when perhaps his service was not continuous—he might have left the service for one or two years.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. How many men will it affect?

Mr. GRAHAM. It is recommended by the Attorney General and by the President and has been twice reported favorably from our committee.

Mr. BLACK of Texas. I shall not object.

Mr. CRAMTON. Mr. Speaker, if this is going to occupy a long time, I suggest that——

Mr. SCHAFER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BLACK] asked a question and did not receive an answer. How many judges will this affect?

Mr. GRAHAM. I can not make a definite statement, but I think it would affect 4 or 5 or, perhaps, 6 men.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. SPROUL of Kansas. I object.

Mr. STOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to return to Calendar No. 1381. I think the gentleman from New York will withdraw his objection.

Mr. CRAMTON. What bill is it?

Mr. STOBBS. It is a bill about probation officers.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, the objection to the other bill about the continuous service of judges is withdrawn, as I understand.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate bill was considered and ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

AMENDMENT OF THE PROBATION LAW

Mr. STOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to turn back to the Calendar No. 1381 and consider the bill H. R. 11801. The gentleman from New York withdraws the objection he made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the gentleman's request to return to the bill?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill [H. R. 11801] to amend sections 726 and 727 of title 18, United States Code, with reference to Federal probation officers, and to add a new section thereto.

Be it enacted, etc., That sections 726 and 727 of title 18, United States Code, be, and the same are hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 726. The judge or judges of any United States court or courts having original jurisdiction of criminal actions, except in the District of Columbia, may appoint one or more suitable persons to serve as probation officers within the jurisdiction and under the direction of the judge or judges making such appointments or of their successors. All such probation officers shall serve without compensation except that in case it shall appear to any such judge or judges that the needs of the service require that there should be salaried probation officers, such judge or judges may appoint such officers. The Attorney General shall fix the salaries to be paid probation officers and shall provide for the necessary expenses of probation officers, including clerical service, and expenses for traveling when approved by the court. Probation officers who are to receive salaries shall be appointed after competitive examination held in accordance with the laws and regulations of the civil service of the United States. Such judge or judges may in their discretion remove any probation officer serving in their respective courts. The appointment of a probation officer shall be in writing and shall be entered on the records of the court or courts of the judge or judges making such appointment, and a copy of the order of appointment shall be delivered to the officer so appointed and a copy sent to the Attorney General. Whenever such judge or judges shall have appointed more than one probation officer he or they may designate one of such officers chief probation officer. Such chief probation officer shall direct the work of all probation officers serving in the court or courts of such judge or judges.

"SEC. 727. It shall be the duty of a probation officer to investigate any case referred to him for investigation by the court in which he is serving and to report thereon to the court. The probation officer shall furnish to each person released on probation under his supervision a written statement of the conditions of probation and shall instruct him regarding the same. Such officer shall keep informed concerning the conduct and condition of each person on probation under his supervision and shall report thereon to the court placing such person on probation. Such officer shall use all suitable methods, not inconsistent with the conditions imposed by the court, to aid persons on probation and to bring about improvements in their conduct and condition. Each officer shall keep records of his work; shall keep accurate and complete accounts of all moneys collected from persons under his supervision; shall give receipts therefor, and shall make at least monthly returns thereof; shall make such reports to the Attorney General as he may at any time require; and shall perform such other duties as the court may direct. Such officer shall perform such duties with respect to persons on parole as the Attorney General shall request. A probation officer shall have the power of arrest that is now exercised by a deputy marshal."

SEC. 2. That a new section be, and is hereby, enacted to follow section 727 of title 18, United States Code, to read as follows:

"SEC. 728. The Attorney General shall appoint a probation director in the Department of Justice and shall fix the salary of such director. Such probation director shall, subject to the direction of the Attorney General, exercise general supervision over the administration of the probation system in all United States courts. He shall investigate the work of the probation officers and make recommendations concerning the same to the respective judges and shall have access to the records of all probation officers. He shall collect for publication statistical and other information concerning the work of the probation officers. He shall prescribe record forms and statistics to be kept by the probation officers and shall formulate general rules for the proper conduct of the probation work. He shall endeavor by all suitable means to promote the efficient administration of the probation system and the enforcement of the probation laws in all United States courts. He shall make an annual report to the Attorney General concerning the operation of the probation system in such courts."

SEC. 3. That this act shall take effect immediately.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, my opposition to this bill is predicated upon the first committee amendment on page 2, which strikes out of the bill that these probation officers shall be appointed in accordance with the laws and regulations of the civil service of the United States. As I stated all my reasons in the minority report, I ask unanimous consent that I may extend my views as part of that statement.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the gentleman's request?

There was no objection.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, this is what I said in reporting my minority views:

I can not concur in the recommendation of the majority on H. R. 11801. My objection is based solely on the committee amendment which would exempt the position of probation officer from the provisions of the civil service law. The purpose of this bill is to extend the probationary system in the Federal courts, to provide professional probation officers—that is, salaried probation officers—and also to create a probation bureau, or rather a probation director in the office of the Attorney General. The bill was introduced on March 6, 1928, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House. It was then referred to a Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee and hearings held on April 13, 1928. These hearings have been printed and are available in the House Committee on the Judiciary (serial 24). The subcommittee reported the bill to the full committee and the full committee agreed on a favorable report to the House recommending the passage of the bill with certain amendments. The amendments suggested by the committee prompt me at this time to make this statement and present all of the facts. The committee recommended the elimination of the civil-service requirement provided in the existing law as well as in this particular bill. I thereupon served notice on the committee that I was opposed to the committee's amendment and would file a minority report. In fact, I prepared a minority report and presented it to the committee for filing with the committee's report. The committee later rescinded its previous action and held the bill in committee for further action at the next session.

The action of the committee in withdrawing favorable report recommending elimination of the civil-service requirements, of course, is far better than the original action of the committee recommending the bill with that change. It seems strange to me, and I say so frankly, that this meritorious measure should be held in committee rather than being reported favorably in its original form.

The committee amended the bill by striking out the competitive and civil-service requirements under which probation officers shall be appointed. The action of the committee would change the civil-service policy of the Government not only of the present but of past administrations for over 30 years. No one dares publicly proclaim the desire of returning to the spoils system, yet the constant attempts to exempt grades and classes of employees from civil-service requirements indicates a tendency on the part of some to destroy and abolish entirely the civil-service system.

Probation work is by no means in the experimental stage. A reading of the hearings on this bill will show the progress and success of probation in many of the States. The probation system was applied to the Federal courts only a few years ago. The original law then provided that "probation officers who are to receive salaries shall be appointed after competitive examination held in accordance with the laws and regulations of the civil service of the United States (Mar. 4, 1925)." An elimination striking out the civil-service provisions from this bill destroys the protective features of civil service and takes these highly technical and professional appointees away from the requirements of proper tests and standards of qualification and throws them into the pot of political patronage.

The United States Civil Service Commission has heretofore held examinations and established the standard and qualifications of Federal probation officers. There is now in existence a list of duly qualified and eligible candidates for appointment. The United States Civil Service Commission approved of the bill as originally introduced. It had no notice that the committee intended eliminating the civil-service requirements of the existing law. The United States Civil Service Commission had no opportunity to appear before the committee in opposition to the proposed committee amendment. The first knowledge the Civil Service Commission had was when the committee's action was called to their attention. The following letter from the commission speaks for itself:

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,
Washington, D. C., May 19, 1928.

Hon. FIORELLO H. LAGUARDIA,
House of Representatives.

MY DEAR MR. LAGUARDIA: The act of March 4, 1925, establishing a probation system in the United States court, except in the District of Columbia, provides that—

"Probation officers who are to receive salaries shall be appointed after competitive examination held in accordance with the laws and regulations of the civil service of the United States."

It is understood that there is now before the Judiciary Committee of the House a proposal to amend the law respecting probation by removing therefrom the provision quoted above.

Probation presents a serious responsibility and calls for a high degree of intelligence if it is to be made to function properly and usefully. While it is true that the probation system as such is no longer an experiment as applied to the Federal service, it is in the formative stage and for proper development needs to be placed in the hands and under the supervision and direction of persons whose training will insure intelligence and efficient service. To make the system a useful instrument in the administration of criminal justice in the Federal courts, definite qualifications as to ability and training, as well as character, must be required of those who seek to become probation officers.

The experience of this commission, extending over a period of nearly a half century, has demonstrated fully that the merit system of appointments, based upon open competitive examinations, affords a far more satisfactory method of appointment and insures a better and more efficient class of employees than where no system of personnel control is employed and appointments are subject to personal and political influence.

Aside from the objections raised by those who desire to effect the appointments of individuals because of personal or political reasons, the main opposition to the application of the civil-service examinations to the employment of probation officers is based on the requirement of personal qualifications which, it is said, can not be tested adequately by examination. Such belief is unfounded and contrary to facts.

The problem of testing personal characteristics was solved some time ago by the commission, and there has been incorporated in the examination for probation officers, and made an essential part thereof, an oral test which has for its purpose the determination of the applicant's personal characteristics and address, adaptability, keenness and quickness of understanding, observation, judgment, and discretion; in general, his personal fitness for the performance of the duties of the position.

No claim has been made that the persons certified by the commission lack the necessary qualifications to perform properly the duties of probation officers. One Federal judge has referred to a probation officer who was appointed from the commission's examination as "the bright jewel in our court." Such praise reflects truly the efficacy of the system which made his appointment possible. Other eligibles appointed through the commission's examinations were men of experience and doubtless their knowledge of the technique of the work will aid materially in making the Federal probation system an effective means for dealing with criminals, especially first offenders.

No substitute has been found for the examination system of testing applicants for appointment as probation officers, as evidenced by requirement of examination in States in which probation is used extensively, such as New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Wisconsin, and California. The practical application of the merit system in appointments of probation officers has been demonstrated in these States, and there appears to be no reason why the system should not be applied with equal success to the Federal service.

In this connection it may be stated that two examinations for probation officer have been held, the commission's register containing the following number of eligibles:

Arkansas	2
California	2
Connecticut	1
District of Columbia	1
Florida	1
Georgia	4
Illinois	12
Indiana	2
Iowa	1
Kentucky	4
Massachusetts	1
Michigan	5
Minnesota	4
Mississippi	1
Missouri	6
New York	13
New Jersey	3
Ohio	2
Oregon	1
Pennsylvania	14
South Dakota	1
Tennessee	1
Virginia	2
Washington	3
Wisconsin	3

Attention is invited to the copy of letter from the Hon. Herbert C. Parsons, commissioner of probation of the State of Massachusetts, in which the opinion is expressed that probation officers might well be appointed under civil-service rules, provided the examinations are broad enough to take into account those personal qualifications which are peculiarly essential in such officer. As noted above, the commission's examination meets these requirements.

The commission regards it as vital to the success of the probation system that there shall be adequate tests of fitness for probation officers, embracing personal characteristics.

By direction of the commission:

Very respectfully,

JOHN T. DOYLE, Secretary.

The National Probation Association, an organization made up of nationally known men and women throughout the United States who took up the study of probation work years ago, developed it to its present use in many of the States of the Union. This association has made a study of probationary work and from a sentimental idea has perfected it to a sociological science.

The National Probation Association approved of this bill in its original form. Like the Civil Service Commission, it had no idea that this model measure would be changed in committee. The National Probation Association says:

NATIONAL PROBATION ASSOCIATION (INC.),
New York City, May 18, 1928.

Re: H. R. 11801, concerning probation.

Hon. FIORELLO LAGUARDIA,
Member of Congress, Washington, D. C.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN: The United States Civil Service Commission advises me that you would like to have certain information regarding the use of civil-service examinations for probation officers in various States and the results of the same.

The following States have placed probation officers under the classified civil service: New York, New Jersey, Ohio, California, and Wisconsin (Milwaukee County). The National Probation Association has approved putting probation officers under civil service because, as we have observed it, this has resulted in improving the personnel of the service, in removing these important positions from political control to a considerable extent, in enforcing higher standards of education and training, and in securing better people all around for the work.

The New York State Probation Commission, years ago, led the fight to classify probation officers throughout New York State under the civil service. It has certainly worked well in New York State, and now there are very few judges or others who have the interests of the service at heart who would go back to the old method of giving judges a free hand in selecting probation officers. It was argued that probation officers were peculiarly personal and confidential appointees of judges and, therefore, the judges should not be hampered in selecting them. It is now seen that this conception of the probation officer was entirely erroneous. The probation officer is an official of the court who has his own distinct work, that of making social investigations and supervising persons on probation.

In this work he should not be hampered by personal or political considerations. He should be required to come up to certain standards of education and training. We have found that many judges, especially when the service is just being established as is the case in the Federal courts, do not fully appreciate the type of training and experience probation officers should have. Therefore they make bad selections. We believe that placing these positions under civil service has been of great benefit both in the States where it has been adopted and in the Federal service.

Six paid probation officers have been appointed in as many districts, all qualifying as a result of the civil-service examination. These officers are of good quality, and I believe that the judges in each district are well satisfied with the officers secured. The two examinations which have been held have been very practical and have resulted in securing good candidates. There is opposition on the part of certain judges to the civil service, which is due in part to the fact that they would like to make personal appointments and take into consideration political indorsements, which would result in very poor appointments being made. We believe that the civil service has been very beneficial in maintaining the quality of appointments so far, and we believe that it will be increasingly so in the future when larger appropriations are secured for appointing probation officers in the United States district courts. We therefore believe that the provision in the present probation law placing the probation officers under civil service should be maintained.

The bill as introduced contains important provisions for strengthening the probation law which are badly needed at the present time. The most important provision is that authorizing the appointment of a probation director to supervise the extension of the work in the Department of Justice. We hope very much that the bill will have your support and that you will assist in having the bill reported from the Judiciary Committee immediately with the civil-service provision reinstated.

Very sincerely yours,

CHARLES L. CHUTE,
General Secretary.

Probation work has been a success in the State of New York. In New York City official and salaried probation officers are assigned to the magistrates courts, city courts, court of special sessions, and the court of general sessions. The probation work of the court of general sessions is under the direction of Prof. Edwin J. Cooley, who holds a chair at Fordham University. He is a recognized authority on the probation system, and his views of the necessity of the civil-service requirements in this work are authoritative:

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS,
PROBATION DEPARTMENT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK,
32 Franklin Street, New York, May 16, 1928.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN LAGUARDIA: The success or failure of the probation system depends fundamentally upon the wise and careful selection of probation officers. It is now generally recognized that the duties of probation officers can only be intrusted to persons qualified for the work by reason of their character, temperament, special training, ability, and interest.

Probation officers ought to be selected without regard to politics. Their appointment should be based solely upon their particular fitness for their work. The process of selecting probation officers is, therefore, a matter of primary importance.

In the State of New York practical experience for approximately two decades has proven that individuals with the qualities essential in probation officers can be selected through the right kind of civil-service examinations.

In New York State civil-service examinations for probation officers include a written examination on powers and duties, a consideration of educational qualifications, experience, character, and personal fitness.

As all civil-service examinations must be practical in their character and relate to such matters as will fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of the person examined to discharge the duties of the position sought, the written examination given the candidates for probation officer is made up of practical questions regarding the laws relating to probation work, the duties and functions of probation officers, and the questions pertaining to the technique of probation work.

In the oral interview, which is part of every examination, the training, personality, experience, and education of the candidate are evaluated.

Civil-service examinations can insure that the probation officers shall be well-trained social workers of good personality. The fact that entirely disqualified persons have served as probation officers in jurisdictions which do not have civil-service examinations is the chief cause when probation fails to reduce delinquency.

I am sending you herewith a copy of the civil-service announcements for the examination of probation officer of the court of general sessions, to be held in July.

With assurances of my desire to cooperate with you in every way possible, and my cordial good wishes always, I am,

Yours faithfully,

EDWIN J. COOLEY,
Chief Probation Officer, Court of General Sessions.

"Probation officer, court of general sessions, New York County: Rule I, of the court of general sessions provides that probationers be assigned to the probation custody of a probation officer of the same sex, and, whenever practicable, of the same religious faith, as the probationer. The eligible list established as the result of the examination held December 4, 1926, having been exhausted for male certification, this examination is being held to supply the need of men to handle the cases of male offenders, which at present constitute over 90 per cent of the offenders before the court of general sessions. Several immediate appointments expected at $3,000. Minimum age, 21 years. The duties include performing all of the probation work of the court, and, when called upon to do so, performing the probation work of the criminal part of the supreme court of the first judicial district of New York County. Candidates must have had a high-school education or equivalent education and must have had in addition one of the following: (a) Either one year or acceptable experience (whole-time basis) in social-case work with a social agency of good standing, or (b) have had a college education, or (c) must have had at least one year of satisfactory training in a recognized school of social service or in lieu thereof acceptable courses of study, reading, or training in the social sciences. Candidates will be required to submit evidence, or they may be required to show evidence through special examination. Subjects of examination: Written examination, including questions on the work of probation officers, duties of the position and methods of work, relative weight, 5; training, experience, and general qualifications, relative weight, 5. An interview may be required."

It is but natural that the National Civil Service Reform League, which is constantly fighting attempts to return to the spoils system, does not desire to see the Federal courts made a dumping ground for political hacks, protests against the committee's amendment in no uncertain terms:

NATIONAL CIVIL SERVICE REFORM LEAGUE,
New York, May 18, 1928.

Hon. FIORELLO H. LAGUARDIA,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR CONGRESSMAN LAGUARDIA: It has come to my attention that the Judiciary Committee of the House has agreed to strike out of H. R. 11801 the provision for the appointment of probation officers in the Federal courts after competitive examination.

The advisability of appointing probation officers only after competitive examination has been demonstrated in many jurisdictions, particularly in New York State, where, as you probably know, all probation officers are under the merit system. In connection with the reorganization of the probation system in both the New York State service and in connection with the criminal courts of New York City, the legislature specifically provided for the appointment of not only probation officers but even the director of the State probation division after competitive examinations. So that there is not a single position either in the State probation bureau or in the bureaus attached to the criminal courts of New York City that is not under the merit system.

The application of the merit system to these positions by the legislature was made after mature consideration of the practicability of competitive civil-service examinations for such places. Experience has shown that where probation officers are appointed without examination it invariably results in the appointment and retention of mediocre and incompetent officers. The position of probation officer requires the services of a trained technical expert. Only after an intensive investigation of the education, training, and experience of candidates for such positions, based on examinations conducted by the Civil Service Commission, can we be assured of the appointment of qualified persons.

To permit their appointment without the aid of the Civil Service Commission inevitably invites political or personal considerations to dictate appointments; at least, it subjects the appointing authority to certain pressure from which he ought to be relieved as a matter of fairness to him.

I hope that you may be successful in urging the Judiciary Committee to reconsider its decision to eliminate from the bill the provision for the appointment of probation officers after competitive examination. I shall write to the other members of the committee conveying our views.

If there is any other information you may desire, will you please call on me?

Very truly yours,

H. ELIOT KAPLAN, Secretary.

One of the best-informed witnesses who appeared before the committee was Mr. Herbert C. Parsons, commissioner of probation of the State of Massachusetts. His testimony before the committee is not only interesting but most instructive. Every member of the subcommittee will admit that Mr. Parsons's statement was very impressive. He appeared before the committee in favor of the bill but when he approved of the bill the civil-service requirement had not been eliminated. Mr. Parsons speaks for himself in the following telegram:

BOSTON, MASS., May 22, 1928.

Hon. F. H. LAGUARDIA,

House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.:

Your wire was first intimation of removal from civil service being feature of probation bill not mentioned in hearing. Massachusetts experience is with unrestricted appointment by judges; it is clearly debatable ground in any new field. I hope it will be considered all by itself.

HERBERT C. PARSONS.

As far back as 1919, when the United States Civil Service was first considering the placing of Federal prohibition officers under civil service, it consulted with the best men in the country on the subject. Even then Mr. Parsons approved of the civil-service system and stated:

"The commission of probation [in Massachusetts] has recorded itself in favor of the placing of appointments under civil service * * *."

Mr. Herbert C. Parsons's letter of 1919 is most timely now:

MAY 22, 1919.

Mr. HAROLD N. SAXTON,

Chief Examiner State of New York

Civil Service Commission, Albany, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Replying to your inquiry under date of May 17, I am glad to give you the opinion which is held by those who are directly connected with the probation service of this State, so far as it has ever found expression. It is that the appointments to the probation service might well be under civil-service rules, provided that the examinations be broad enough to take into account those personal qualifications which are peculiarly essential in such an officer.

Appointments in this State are not made under civil-service regulations. The theory which has been followed in our statutes is that the probation officer is the personal representative of the judge of the court, an extension, so to speak, of the court out into the community for the double purpose of: (1) Inquiry as to the social bearings of the case, and the conditions of the accused person's life and employment, health, and mentality; and (2) the supervision of such persons when found guilty of the offense charged, with a view to holding them to a right line of conduct, and, more emphatically, to bring about a rehabilitation and an improved attitude toward society in general. That being the purpose, the appointment has been left entirely in the hands of the court.

In the police, district, juvenile, and municipal courts, which constitute our system of courts with primary jurisdiction, the justice of the court appoints the probation officer and may remove him at pleasure. The law provides no check upon the appointment. In the superior court, which is our court of appeals for the rehearing of a case on its merits, and the court where jury trials are provided, the appointments are practically made by a committee of three justices called the committee on probation of the superior court, selected by the chief justice of the superior court. They are formally made by a justice sitting in the county in which the officer is appointed. As in the other courts the appointment by the court is final.

The commission on probation has recorded itself in favor of the placing of appointments under the civil service, providing it could be done with broad regulations, including an oral examination. The chief justice of the Boston municipal court, our largest court of its kind, and the writer some time ago presented to the Civil Service Commission an opinion that the probation service in this State would be improved by this change in the method of appointment. We have studied the New York system, both in the reports of the probation commission of your State and in the less formal information given by its secretary, Mr. Chute, and we have held this up as the model which we believe Massachusetts should adopt.

The alternative frequently suggested here is to make the appointments by the justices subject to the approval of the commission on probation, or to have them made from lists prepared by the commission. But this alternative is not especially attractive, for the reason that it undertakes practically a civil-service form while simply changing to another board than the State civil service commission the application of the same principle as controls civil-service appointments.

Practically, the substitute which in a measure has come to be adopted in this State is an active seeking by the commission on probation of a share in the consideration of candidates for probation positions. In the superior court, all appointments are made after careful investigation by this office of the merits of the candidates. In the lower courts the justices frequently consult the commission as to the appointments. But you will appreciate the fact that no such rule has any legal force as its observance depends upon the inclination of the judges. In this way some appointments are made without resort to the commission's advice, and appointments which are not up to a recent standard. It works advantageously when it works at all and it generally is ample, but it can not be relied upon or advocated as a sufficient substitute for the use of civil-service examinations.

I realize that I am giving you only opinions, without the basis of experience in the work of civil-service regulations as applied to the Massachusetts probation service. But they are opinions which are intelligently formed and stoutly held on the part of those who most strongly desire that the probation service should come to a high standard in a State where it is so largely used as here.

Yours very truly,

HERBERT C. PARSONS,
Deputy Commissioner.

There can be no sound argument presented in favor of the committee's amendment making these important court employees the subject of political or personal appointments. There are, perhaps, some personal and selfish reasons here and there with apparent sufficient influence to destroy the civil-service policy of the country, to ignore experience of the past, and to depart from the best practice in probationary work. It must be these personal desires and not the best interest of the work that suggested the proposed committee amendment.

One case that has come to the attention of the Civil Service Commission is that of a Federal judge, who, when the law went into effect, sought to appoint a probationary officer under salary. He selected the appointee, a young lady of his judicial district, and proceeded to make the appointment. When he was confronted with the civil-service requirement of the existing law, his honor, the judge, protested. Not only did his honor, the judge, protest, but he sought first to evade the law by making the appointment and then refused to make the appointment unless he could appoint the particular young lady he had in mind. Splendid example of law obedience and restraint on the part of a Federal judge.

Here is another reason for exempting these positions, taken right from the hearings, page 67. One of the gentlemen on the subcommittee frankly stated:

"In my district we have a man who has been serving ever since this law went into effect. He is a volunteer, and he has passed the age when he could take the examination. And there is no better man in the country. He is devoted to that work, but he could not take the civil-service examination. The judge does not want anybody else, and he says he will not have anybody else."

Again his honor, the judge, brazenly and openly states that he refuses to obey the law.

Is it not still fresh in the memory of every member of the Committee on the Judiciary that in a very recent case requiring the attention of the committee there was the uncontradicted and uncontroverted proof of a Federal judge appointing to a confidential position first his daughter, then his wife, and then another daughter? Is this judge to be intrusted with the selection and appointment of probation officers charged with most important work?

In the consideration of this bill the past experience of this important work the present practice in most of the States and the views of recognized authorities on the subject must be taken into consideration, rather than the desire of an individual here and there for the appointment of any particular person. Rather than permit the passage of the bill, weakened and distorted by the elimination of a necessary protective feature, it should be defeated. The bill in its original form carrying the civil-service provisions of existing law is an excellent piece of necessary legislation and in its original form should be passed by Congress.

F. LAGUARDIA.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the first committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 2, line 10, strike out: "Probation officers who are to receive salaries shall be appointed after competitive examinations held in accordance with the laws and regulations of the civil service of the United States."

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a vote on the first committee amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the first committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the other committee amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 4, line 1, strike out: "The Attorney General shall appoint a probation director in the Department of Justice and shall fix the salary of such director. Such probation director shall, subject to the direction of The," and insert in line 4, before the word "Attorney," the word "The."

Page 4, line 5, insert the words "or his authorized agent, shall" before the word "exercise."

Page 4, line 18, strike out the words "make an" and insert the words "incorporate in his." In the same line, strike out the words "to the Attorney General" and insert the words "a statement."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. ROBSION of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit a unanimous-consent request to the House, that to-morrow, after the reading of the Journal and the disposition of matters on the Speaker's table, I may be permitted to address the House for 30 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky asks unanimous consent that to-morrow, after the reading of the Journal and disposition of business on the Speaker's table, he may be permitted to address the House for 30 minutes. Is there objection?

Mr. ALLGOOD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, on what subject?

Mr. ROBSION of Kentucky. On the subject of education.

Mr. BLACK of New York. On the subject of the Federal education bill?

Mr. ROBSION of Kentucky. Yes. I do not think the gentleman ought to object.

Mr. BLACK of New York. I will not object as the gentleman is on the committee with me, and he takes the other view.

Mr. GARRETT of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, without any reference to the subject matter, I do not know what the state of the business will be to-morrow, but I make this statement: One or two gentlemen on this side of the Chamber have spoken to me of a desire to obtain a few moments before adjournment in which to address the House. I conferred with the majority leader and I violate no confidence, I am sure, in stating that he expressed to me the opinion that there would be no difficulty about securing that time before the conclusion of the session but he would not care to agree in advance until he could see further about the state of the business of the House.

I recognize that as a very reasonable proposal and I have withheld my request in behalf of the gentlemen who approached me asking for time in which to address the House. I have no objection myself to the request of the gentleman, but I do not know what the state of the public business is going to be to-morrow.

Mr. ROBSION of Kentucky. I will say to the gentleman that, in view of the little time I consume of this House, I hope there will be no objection to this request.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. MAPES. Mr. Speaker, at the request of the majority leader, who is now occupying the chair, I ask unanimous consent that on Tuesday, February 26, 1929, at any time before 6 p. m., it may be in order to take a recess until 8 o'clock p. m., and at the evening session, until 11 p. m., only bills on the Private Calendar, to which no objection is made, shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, the call of the calendar to begin where the last call left off.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request made by the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

ELECTION OF A MEMBER TO THE COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY

Mr. NEWTON. Mr. Speaker, at the suggestion of the floor leader, I submit a resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 342

Resolved, That FRANCIS D. CULKIN, of New York, be, and he is hereby, elected a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

The resolution was agreed to.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. GARRETT of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that on Wednesday, following the reading of the Journal and disposition of business on the Speaker's table, the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. NORTON] may be permitted to address the House for not exceeding 15 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Tennessee asks unanimous consent that on Wednesday, after the reading of the Journal and disposition of business on the Speaker's table, the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. NORTON] may address the House for not to exceed 15 minutes. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. CHINDBLOM. Mr. Speaker, in view of the agreement made a moment ago upon the request of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. MAPES], is the present occupant of the chair able to state now whether an effort will be made to have a session of the House to-morrow evening?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The request for an evening session to-morrow has just been granted.

Mr. CHINDBLOM. The request was that it shall be in order to take a recess, but as I understand it is the purpose to take a recess and have an evening session?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is the purpose.

The floor leader has been requested by quite a number of Members to have an evening session as early as possible for the consideration of bills on the Private Calendar.

Mr. HASTINGS. Mr. Speaker, I see there is no program posted in the Hall. Would the Chair kindly indicate to the House what is going to be considered in the House to-morrow or what is now on the program?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. So far as the Chair knows, there will be considered to-morrow certain special rules from the Committee on Rules. In just what order they will come up, the Chair is not quite sure.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. NEWTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD by inserting an article of the New York World pertaining to the Federal judiciary.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

Mr. MICHENER. I object.

RECLAMATION FOR SUGAR-BEET PRODUCTION

Mr. MORROW. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD upon the bill H. R. 15893, objected to to-day, and to furnish certain statistics concerning irrigation and the production of sugar beets and the necessity thereof, and also to show that the production of sugar beets and alfalfa does not interfere with the farming districts of the United States.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Mexico?

There was no objection.

Mr. MORROW. Mr. Speaker, regarding H. R. 15893, this bill was objected to upon the ground that it was opening up new land for competition with farm areas already in cultivation, thus creating a surplus of agricultural products for consumption within the United States. This is an erroneous viewpoint and shows a lack of knowledge as to the products raised in the reclamation districts of the Nation.

Reclamation is expensive and to get a proper return upon the investment it is necessary to raise the farm product which will yield and sell for a sufficient figure to justify the investment. Taking into consideration the cost of the land, water supply, and overhead expense—and add to that the cost of operation—we can see that the crop produced must show yield and value to justify the outlay. Wheat, corn, and cotton will not yield a sufficient surplus upon the plateau of the western part of our country. It is upon wheat, corn, and cotton that the farmers of the Nation are asking marketing facilities to overcome the surplus and permit the farmer to continue to operate farms and pay a fair return for the labor and investment of the farmer.

In 1924, according to the census report, there were 1,032,057 wheat farms in the United States; in the same year there were 4,760,457 corn farms and 931,307 cotton farms in this country. Let us note the production figures for 1928 for the three commodities—wheat, corn, and cotton.

Acres in production, 1928:

Wheat:
Acres	57,724,000
Bushels produced	902,749,000
Value per acre	$15.20
Corn:
Acres	100,761,000
Bushels produced	2,839,959,000
Value per acre	$21.17
Cotton:
Harvested acres	45,326,000
Bales (500 pounds gross to the bale)	14,373,000
Value per acre	$28.50

Now, note the net exports for the fiscal year 1926:

Wheat: 205,994,000 bushels. Except for 1923 and 1925, when lower, exports of wheat are approximately 30 per cent to 35 per cent of the crop produced.

Corn: 18,669,000 bushels. Less than 1 per cent of the crop produced is exported.

Cotton: 10,900,000 bales exported.

Very little of the land under cultivation by reclamation can be profitably employed in the production of wheat or corn. Some of the land is employed in the production of cotton in southern New Mexico and in Arizona.

The great bulk of the agricultural land in most of the Western and Northwestern States of the United States must produce, in order to be successfully operated under irrigation, certain specific crops which will both yield the quantity and have a sufficient value to pay a return upon the investment and labor connected therewith.

There is a spirit and determination among some Members to check this legislation. They feel, and yet have not the knowledge nor have they made the proper investigation, that many of the new reclamation projects are increasing the tillable land and thus increasing the food supply and creating a surplus of farm products.

This, with few exceptions, is a false alarm. Some ex-bankers and politicians openly admit that their constituents charge them with being neglectful in not objecting to all of these reclamation projects, whether they be Government or private. In thus objecting to reclamation bills some Members are rehabilitating themselves once more in the bosom of their own district people.

This method of sandbagging legislation, without any knowledge of the same, is a very wrong policy, in my opinion. Reclamation of the West will never, to any great extent, cultivate wheat, corn, or cotton as a factor to create a surplus in the Nation. Instead, with the grazing areas and the production of alfalfa, the cattle and sheep industries will thrive and consume the corn of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa, and Illinois, as well as the cotton cake and meal of Texas and Oklahoma. The alfalfa must be grown by irrigation in order to feed the cattle and sheep upon the grazing lands adjoining the irrigation districts. This livestock, in turn, goes to the agricultural States heretofore mentioned, to consume the surplus corn.

I have presented the data regarding the agricultural products—wheat, corn, and cotton—on which a surplus is produced; I have also presented the fact that the livestock produced upon the grazing areas adjoining the reclamation districts of the West consume the alfalfa, and in turn the livestock is shipped out to the corn-growing districts. I refer to the States of Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa, and Illinois. Much of the cotton cake and meal of Texas and Oklahoma is also consumed in the reclamation areas by the livestock interests.

The reclamation side of the picture presents the following data to prove how erroneous the opposition is: Under reclamation, in the altitudes of the West above 4,500 feet, corn and cotton can not be produced on account of climatic conditions, and wheat is not of sufficient value to utilize the lands for that purpose. It is conclusively shown that the average value of wheat per acre is $15.20.

Reclamation must employ crops which will bring value; this is largely the production of sugar beets. In order to present specifically the matter, I am inserting herein data compiled by the Department of Agriculture for 1928. This refers to the question of sugar in the United States. The figures from the department show that the disappearance of sugar in the United States for 1928, including imports and production (with exports deducted) is 13,136,000,000 pounds. That is over 100 pounds for each individual in this country. Of this amount there is produced in the United States proper but 18.3 per cent of the sugar consumed.

In the production of cane sugar in the United States, which in certain localities is an important item, we find the acreage in 1928 was 138,000 acres, and cane sugar produced was 330,781,795 pounds. The total acres in sugar beets in the United States in 1928 were 646,000 acres. The production in short tons was 1,036,000, or 2,072,000,000 pounds of beet sugar. This makes a total production of beet and cane sugar within the confines of the United States proper 2,402,781,795 pounds.

The Government report further shows conclusively that the total acreage in both cane and beet sugar cultivation in the United States for 1928 was 784,000 acres. That the average yield per acre for sugar for 10 years—1918–1927—was 1.4 short tons, or 2,800 pounds of sugar.

The acreage of sugar beets necessary to produce sufficient sugar to supply the present consumption of sugar in the United States under existing population, as estimated by the Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, is 4,700,000 acres. It is apparent with the growth of our population in this country, and if we are to supply any considerable portion of the sugar to our population, that it must come from the production of sugar beets under reclamation in that part of the United States best suited for the successful cultivation of sugar beets.

One of the leading States in the production of sugar beets is Colorado. This State produced in 1927 some 5,548,000,000 pounds of sugar beets. The total value from this crop, based on the seasonal farm price, was $21,758,000, or some $99 per acre. Where the farmer and his family perform the labor themselves the entire return, less the proper interest charge and taxes on the land, goes to the farmer. The average value of the land per acre in the State of Colorado cultivated in sugar beets is $191. The average cost, other than the land, is $30 per acre. Interest on the value of the land is $16.10 per acre. Deducting $46.10—average cost and interest on value of the land—from $99, the value per acre of the crop there is left as profit $52.90. From the last sum the farmer would still have to deduct his taxes. The lands embraced in my bill will yield larger returns than the returns on the average Colorado land in sugar-beet production.

New Mexico has similar climate and soil conditions to Colorado, except that it has a trifle more days of sunshine per year, and therefore will produce a trifle larger percentage of saccharin in the beet. New Mexico is just starting in the cultivation of sugar beets, which under reclamation will be extremely successful.

In 1928 the irrigated lands of the West produced 10,004,000,000 pounds of beets. The data for 1927 in reclaimed lands of the West shows the cultivation of sugar beets for that year to have been 65,000 acres, and the production to have been 743,000 short tons of sugar, or 1,486,000,000 pounds of sugar, at a value of $5,842,980, or a little over $89 per acre.

This shows that lands utilized under reclamation in 11 of the Western States are producing more than 50 per cent of the entire sugar produced in the United States.

Members of Congress, do you think that the utilizing of land in New Mexico, as is proposed in H. R. 15893, an area at an elevation of 6,000 feet, will in any way create a surplus of agricultural products in the United States? Do you believe that the additional land to be cultivated will in any way increase the production of wheat, corn, and cotton? The answer is that at this elevation the latter products can not be grown successfully for profit.

It is apparent that we are not producing sufficient sugar in the United States to meet 20 per cent of the consumption of the same; this consumption will increase from year to year as the population increases.

The only areas in which sugar-beet cultivation can be carried on with any degree of success are the reclamation areas of the western part of the United States, where the altitude is above 4,000 feet, and where the climate is dry, and abundant sunshine exists. Sunshine, water, soil, and an altitude where the temperature is not too extremely warm will afford a future beet production to supply much of our sugar, and this must be obtained by reclamation.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 13831. An act granting the consent of Congress to the Momence conservancy district, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, repair, and improve a dam across the Kankakee River at Momence, in Kankakee County, Ill.; and

H. R. 16656. An act providing for retired pay for certain members of the former Life Saving Service, equivalent to retired pay granted to members of the Coast Guard.

The message also announced that the Senate concurs in the following resolution:

House Concurrent Resolution 59

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That during the remainder of the present session of Congress the engrossment and enrolling of bills and joint resolutions by printing, as provided by an act of Congress approved March 2, 1895, may be suspended, and said bills and joint resolutions may be engrossed and enrolled by the most expeditious methods consistent with accuracy.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 3936) entitled "An act to regulate the practice of the healing art to protect the public health in the District of Columbia"

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H. R. 16714) entitled "An act making appropriations for the Navy Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, and for other purposes," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. HALE, Mr. PHIPPS, and Mr. SWANSON to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H. R. 14659) entitled "An act to provide for the appointment of two additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. BORAH, Mr. WATERMAN, and Mr. WALSH of Montana, to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION REFERRED

Joint resolution of the Senate of the following title was taken from the Speaker's table and under the rule referred as follows:

S. J. Res. 209. Joint resolution to create a joint congressional committee to be known as the Committee on Narcotic Traffic; to the Committee on Rules.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

Mr. CAMPBELL, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills and a joint resolution of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H. R. 924. An act for the relief of Joe D. Donisi;

H. R. 8551. An act to create an additional judge in the district of South Dakota;

H. R. 9200. An act to provide for the appointment of three additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York;

H. R. 10304. An act authorizing the Secretary of War to erect headstones over the graves of soldiers who served in the Confederate Army and to direct him to preserve in the records of the War Department the names and places of burial of all soldiers for whom such headstones shall have been erected, and for other purposes.

H. R. 12811. An act to provide for the appointment of one additional district judge for the eastern and western districts of South Carolina.

H. J. Res. 425. Providing for an investigation of Francis A. Winslow, United States district judge for the southern district of New York.

BILLS PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. CAMPBELL, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee did on this day present to the President for his approval bills and a joint resolution of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 4084. An act for the relief of persons suffering loss on account of the Lawton, Okla., fire, 1917;

H. R. 5769. An act to authorize the consolidation and coordination of Government purchases to enlarge the functions of the General Supply Committee, to authorize the erection of a public warehouse for the storage of Government supplies, and for other purposes;

H. R. 7452. An act for the erection of a tablet or marker to be placed at some suitable point between Hartwell, Ga., and Alfords Bridge in the county of Hart, State of Georgia, on the national highway between the States of Georgia and South Carolina, to commemorate the memory of Nancy Hart;

H. R. 9168. An act for the relief of Simon A. Richardson;

H. R. 9597. An act for the relief of Fred Elias Horton;

H. R. 9659. An act for the relief of F. R. Barthold;

H. R. 10191. An act for the relief of G. J. Bell;

H. R. 10374. An act authorizing the acquisition of land and water rights for forest-tree nurseries;

H. R. 11285. An act to establish Federal prison camps;

H. R. 11385. An act for the relief of Dr. Andrew J. Baker;

H. R. 13461. An act to provide for the acquisition of land in the District of Columbia for the use of the United States;

H. R. 14153. An act to authorize an additional appropriation of $150,000 for construction of a hospital annex at Marion Branch;

H. R. 924. An act for the relief of Joe D. Donisi;

H. R. 8551. An act to create an additional judgeship in the district of South Dakota;

H. R. 9200. An act to provide for the appointment of three additional judges of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York;

H. R. 10304. An act authorizing the Secretary of War to erect headstones over the graves of soldiers who served in the Confederate Army and to direct him to preserve in the records of the War Department the names and places of burial of all soldiers for whom such headstones shall have been erected, and for other purposes;

H. R. 12811. An act to provide for the appointment of one additional district judge for the eastern and western districts of South Carolina;

H. R. 14466. An act to provide for the sale of the old post-office property at Birmingham, Ala.;

H. R. 14924. An act to authorize the Secretary of War to grant to the city of Salt Lake, Utah, a portion of the Fort Douglas Military Reservation, Utah, for street purposes;

H. R. 16568. An act to repeal that portion of the act of August 24, 1912, imposing a limit on agency salaries of the Indian Service;

H. J. Res. 135. Joint resolution for the relief f special disbursing agents of the Alaska Railroad; and

H. J. Res. 425. Joint resolution providing for an investigation of Francis A. Winslow, United States district judge for the southern district of New York.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. MAPES. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Whereupon (at 6 o'clock and 18 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, February 26, 1929, at 12 o'clock noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

868. Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, a letter from the general Secretary of Near East Relief, transmitting report of the Near East Relief for the year ending December 31, 1928, was taken from the Speaker's table and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. UNDERHILL: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 280. Resolution to pay Fred R. Miller for extra and expert services to the Committee on Pensions; without amendment (Rept. No. 2695). Ordered printed.

Mr. UNDERHILL: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 316. Resolution providing for an assistant clerk to the Committee on Enrolled Bills; with amendment (Rept. No. 2696). Ordered printed.

Mr. UNDERHILL: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 311. Resolution directing that the sum of $1,000 be paid to Margaret Elma Naylor for extra and expert services to the Committee on Invalid Pensions (Rept. No. 2697). Ordered printed.

Mr. UNDERHILL: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 315. Resolution providing for a legislative clerk to the minority leader of the House of Representatives (Rept. No. 2698). Ordered printed.

Mr. UNDERHILL: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 301. Resolution for the payment of additional compensation to Bingham W. Mathias, clerk to the Committee on Invalid Pensions (Rept. No. 2699). Ordered printed.

Mr. UNDERHILL: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 338. Resolution to employ additional clerical services for the enrolling room for the present session (Rept. No. 2700). Ordered printed.

Mr. ROBINSON of Iowa: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. S. 5664. An act to extend the times for the commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River between Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Omaha, Nebr.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2702). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CORNING: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. S. 4566. An act authorizing the New York Development Association (Inc.), its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the St. Lawrence River near Alexandria Bay, N. Y.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2703). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. HUDDLESTON: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 16847. A bill to amend section 2 of the act, chapter 254, approved March 2, 1927, entitled "An act authorizing the county of Escambia, Fla., and/or the county of Baldwin, Ala., and/or the State of Florida, and/or the State of Alabama to acquire all the rights and privileges granted to the Perdido Bay Bridge & Ferry Co. by chapter 168, approved June 22, 1916, for the construction of a bridge across Perdido Bay from Lillian, Ala., to Cummings Point, Fla.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2704). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. ROBINSON of Iowa: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 16928. A bill authorizing the cities of Omaha, Nebr., and Council Bluffs, Iowa, either independently or both jointly, to purchase, to condemn, or to construct, and to reconstruct, extend, enlarge, maintain, and operate one or more toll or free bridges, not exceeding three, across the Missouri River at or near said cities, or to assign such rights to others, and providing the conditions to the exercise of such powers; with amendment (Rept. No. 2705). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. LEA: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17122. A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Columbia River at a point within 1 mile upstream and 1 mile downstream from the mouth of the Entiat River in Chelan County, State of Washington; with amendment (Rept. No. 2706). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. DENISON: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17126. A bill authorizing C. N. Jenks, F. J. Stransky, L. H. Miles, John Grandy, and Bruce Machen, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Savanna, Ill.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2707). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. LEA: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17160. A bill authorizing J. B. Roberts, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Colorado River at or near Parker, Ariz.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2708). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. MILLIGAN: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17179. A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Miami, Mo.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2709). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. MILLIGAN: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17180. A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Arrow Rock, Mo.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2710). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. NEWTON: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17184. A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Alma, Buffalo County, Wis.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2711). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. SHALLENBERGER: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17208. A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Niobrara, Nebr.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2712). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. ROBINSON of Iowa: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17209. A bill to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Tenth Street in Bettendorf, State of Iowa; without amendment (Rept. No. 2713). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. PARKS: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17238. A bill extending the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Arkansas City, Ark.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2714). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mrs. ROGERS: Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation. H. R. 15921. A bill to authorize an appropriation to provide additional hospital, domiciliary, and out-patient dispensary facilities for persons entitled to hospitalization under the World War veterans' act, 1924, as amended, and for other purposes; with amendment (Rept. No. 2715). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. RAYBURN: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. S. 2594. An act transferring a portion of the lighthouse reservation, Ship Island, Miss., to the jurisdiction and control of the War Department; without amendment (Rept. No. 2716). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. GRAHAM: Committee on the Judiciary. S. 2901. An act to amend the national prohibition act, as amended and supplemented; without amendment (Rept. No. 2717). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. MAPES: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 17159. A bill authorizing Maynard D. Smith, his heirs, successors, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the St. Clair River at or near Port Huron, Mich.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2721). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 16874. A bill authorizing the Commissioner of Prohibition to pay for information concerning violations of the narcotic laws of the United States; without amendment (Rept. No. 2722). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. PERKINS: Committee on Accounts. H. Res. 324. A resolution to pay six months' salary and funeral expenses to Susie Minor; without amendment (Rept. No. 2701). Ordered printed.

Mr. HOFFMAN: Committee on Military Affairs. H. R. 8175. A bill for the relief of William J. McKenna; with amendment (Rept. No. 2718). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GLYNN: Committee on Military Affairs. H. R. 14723. A bill to provide hospitalization for Leroy Wilbur Abbott; with amendment (Rept. No. 2719). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. GLYNN: Committee on Military Affairs. H. J. Res. 362. A joint resolution for the appointment of one member of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers; without amendment (Rept. No. 2720). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. BOYLAN: Committee on Military Affairs. H. R. 15478. A bill for the relief of John D. O'Connell, first lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps; without amendment (Rept. No. 2724). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. McKEOWN: A bill (H. R. 17262) authorizing H. L. Cloud, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Canadian River at or near Francis, Okla.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. JAMES: A bill (H. R. 17263) to authorize appropriations for construction at military posts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. ENGLEBRIGHT: A bill (H. R. 17264) for the inclusion of certain lands in the Lassen National Forest, Calif., and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Washington: A bill (H. R. 17265) to amend the World War veterans' act of 1924; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

Also, a bill (H. R. 17266) to amend the World War veterans act of 1924; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

By Mr. BLACK of New York: Resolution (H. Res. 340) requesting the Navy Department to name one of the 15 new cruisers the Brooklyn; to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Oklahoma: Resolution (H. Res. 341) providing for the appointment of a committee of the House of Representatives for the purpose of investigating and making report on the illegal entrance of aliens into America; to the Committee on Rules.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

Memorial of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Montana, urging an increase in the tariff duty on plumbago, graphite, and graphite ores; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Memorial from the State of Arizona, urging Congress to enact legislation which may be necessary to provide adequate appropriation for the construction and maintenance of highways over and upon Indian reservations in Arizona; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. LEAVITT: Memorial of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Montana, urging an increase in the tariff duty on plumbago, graphite, and graphite ores; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. EVANS of Montana: Memorial of the State Legislature of Montana memorializing Congress for the passage of necessary legislation providing for an increase of the tariff on plumbago, graphite, and graphite ores; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAWLEY: Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Oregon, memorializing Congress to provide for a congressional inquiry authorizing a nation-wide investigation of the telephone utilities relative to rates, service, etc.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, memorial of the State of Oregon, memorializing Congress to make inquiry relative to the growth of capital assets and capital liabilities of public-utility corporations, etc.; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. KVALE: Memorial of the State Legislature of Minnesota, memorializing the Congress of the United States that it is the sense of the members of the legislature that they favor the retention of the principle of the flexible tariff law; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MAAS: Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Minnesota, memorializing the Congress and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States to oppose tariff on Canadian lumber and shingles; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Colorado: Memorial of the Twenty-seventh General Assembly of the State of Colorado, protesting against the continuance of the embargo placed by the Government on use of waters in the San Luis Valley, Colo., in 1896; to the Committee on Immigration and Reclamation.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BEERS: A bill (H. R. 17267) granting a pension to Edith Harner; to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOGG: A bill (H. R. 17268) granting an increase of pension to Anna M. Smurr; to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Washington: A bill (H. R. 17269) granting a pension to Frank Patterson; to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. LINTHICUM: A bill (H. R. 17270) for the relief of First Lieut. S. Roy Hetzer; to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LOZIER: A bill (H. R. 17271) granting an increase of pension to Nancy A. Branaman; to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 17272) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth C. Jackson; to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SNELL: A bill (H. R. 17273) granting an increase of pension to Maria L. Agon; to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred, as follows:

13433. By Mr. ANDREW: Petition of Local No. 72, Shoe Workers' Protective Union, Boston, Mass., urging tariff duties on imports of shoes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13434. By Mr. BACHMANN: Petition of Eugene E. Tuttle, manager W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., and other dealers, protesting against any change in the present tariff on hides and leather used in the manufacture of shoes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13435. By Mr. BECK of Pennsylvania: Petition of residents of the city and county of Philadelphia, Pa., urging the present quota, based on the census of 1890, be retained, under which immigration is at present controlled; to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

13436. By Mr. BLOOM: Petition of the United Irish-American Societies of New York, urging the repeal of the national-origins provision of the immigration bill; to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

13437. By Mr. BOYLAN: Resolution adopted by executive committee of the New York State Grange, opposing any tariff on lumber and shingles from the Dominion of Canada; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13438. Also, petition by retail shoe dealers of New York City, protesting against any change in tariff on hides and leather used in the manufacture of shoes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13439. By Mr. CASEY: Petition of 272 citizens of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and vicinity, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13440. Also, petition of 139 citizens of Hazleton, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13441. Also, petition of 30 citizens of Kingston, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13442. Also, petition of 44 citizens of Freeland, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13443. Also, petition of 19 citizens of Conyngham, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13444. Also, petition of 99 citizens of Kingston, Pa., and vicinity, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13445. By Mr. CRAIL: Petition of Federal Employees Union of Los Angeles, Calif., favoring shorter hours for employees of the United States; to the Committee on the Civil Service.

13446. By Mr. CULLEN: Petition of the executive committee of New York State Grange, stating that in the interest of the farmers of this country the grange is opposed to any tariff on lumber and shingles from the Dominion of Canada; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13447. Also, petition of the National Builders' Supply Association of the United States, indorsing and urging the prompt passage at the current session of Congress of House bill 13405, introduced by Congressman TREADWAY, of Massachusetts, and requiring such preferential treatment for American-made goods in purchases for Federal Government work; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

13448. Also, petition of the League of the American Civil Service, urging that the Lehlbach bill (H. R. 16643) is objectionable to a vast number of Government employees; to the Committee on the Civil Service.

13449. By Mr. FISHER: Petition of 32 retail shoe dealers; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13450. Also, petition with 18 signers; to the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation.

13451. By Mr. GAMBRILL: Petition of the First Baptist Church of Takoma Park, Md., 20 members present, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13452. Also, petition of the First Baptist Sunday School, Takoma Park, Md., 50 present, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13453. By Mr. JOHNSON of Texas: Petition of Mr. Max D. Almond, vice president and general manager of Whiteselle Brick & Lumber Co., of Corsicana, Tex., favoring tariff on brick; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13454. By Mr. KELLY: Petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, 50 members, of Braddock, Pa., unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13455. Also, petition of the Washington Camp, No. 875, of the Patriotic Sons of America, 125 members, Braddock, Pa., unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13456. Also, petition of the Pennsylvania Civic League, 100 members, of Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13457. Also, petition of the Faith, Hope, and Charity Class, 65 members, of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Braddock, Pa., unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13458. Also, petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Swissvale, Pa., with 39 members, unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13459. Also, petition of 34 members of the Child Conservation League of Swissvale, Pa., unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13460. Also, petition of Young Men's Bible class of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School, of Swissvale, Pa., 17 members, and 18 other signers, total of 35 represented, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13461. Also, petition of the Brotherhood Bible Class, 14 members, St. John's Lutheran Sunday School, Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13462. Also, petition of the W. G. Landis Bible Class, of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School, 14 members, Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13463. Also, petition of the Ladies Bible Class, 12 members, of St. John's Lutheran Sunday School, Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13464. Also, petition of the Choir Corner Class, 50 members, of the Swissvale Methodist Episcopal Church, Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13465. Also, petition of the Ladies' Bible Class, 45 members, of Swissvale First Methodist Episcopal Church, Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13466. Also, petition of the Girls' Friendly Class, 15 members, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13467. Also, petition of the Men's Bible Class, 36 members, of the First Christian Church, Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13468. Also, petition of 13 citizens of Swissvale, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committe on the District of Columbia.

13469. Also, petition of the United Pennsylvania Guards, of Braddock, Pa., with a membership of 587, unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13470. Also, petition of 24 members of the Gospel Bearers Class of the St. Luke's Reformed Church, Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in the enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13471. Also, petition of the Men's Bible Class of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Braddock, Pa., with a membership of 55, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13472. Also, petition of the Patriotic Order Sons of America Camp of Braddock, Pa., with a membership of 133, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13473. Also, petition of the oldest Bible class, membership 16, of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13474. Also, petition of the Dames of Malta, 343 members, of Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13475. Also, petition of the Women's Bible Class of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, of North Braddock, Pa., with a membership of seven, urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided for in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13476. Also, petition of the adult Bible class of the Fourth Street Methodist Reformed Church, membership of nine, North Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in the enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13477. Also, petition of the Women's Bible Class, membership 14, of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, North Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in the enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13478. Also, petition of the Neighborhood Bible Class, membership 30, of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, North Braddock, Pa., unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13479. Also, petition of class No. 3, four members, of the Fourth Street Methodist Church, North Braddock, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13480. Also, petition of the Bible class, nine members, of the Methodist Protestant Church, Rankin, Pa., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13481. Also, petition of the Loyal Women's Class, 25 members, of the Christian Church, Braddock, Pa., unanimously urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13482. By Mr. KVALE: Petition of the Central Cooperative Association, at its annual stockholders' meeting, St. Paul, Minn., urging enactment of legislation to provide Federal supervision of private stockyards and concentration points comparable to that in existence at public stockyards terminal markets; to the Committee on Agriculture.

13483. By Mr. LANKFORD: Petition of the divisional commander of the Salvation Army, and three members, Dallas, Tex., urging the enactment of legislation to protect the people of the Nation's Capital in their enjoyment of Sunday as a day of rest in seven, as provided in the Lankford bill (H. R. 78) or similar measures; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

13484. By Mr. MAAS: Petition of 55 retail shoe dealers and their customers, of St. Paul, Minn., protesting against any change in the tariff on hides and leathers used in the manufacture of shoes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13485. By Mr. MAPES: Petition of Van Coevering Bros., and seven other residents of Grand Haven, Mich., protesting against any change in the present tariff on hides and leather used in the manufacture of shoes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13486. By Mr. MORIN: Petition of W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. and 200 customers of Pittsburgh, Pa., protesting against any change in the present tariff on hides and leather used in the manufacture of shoes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

13487. By Mr. O'CONNELL: Petition of the American Civic Associations (Inc.), opposing the passage of the Wingo bill, to create the Ouachita National Park in Arkansas; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

13488. Also, petition of the American Forestry Association, opposing the passage of House bill 5729; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

13489. By Mr. SELVIG: Petition of 17 residents of Marshall County, 9 residents of Polk County, and 3 residents of Red Lake County, of the ninth district, Minnesota, urging the enactment of House bill 10958; to the Committee on Agriculture.

H 88 78